To WILLIAM JAGGARD,

obiit 1623,

Elizabethan author, printer, and publisher, to whom the world owes more than it deems for the safe preservation of an unparalleled literary heritage, this labour of a lifetime is gratefully dedicated.

Historical Introduction

'The debt immense of endless gratitude
. . . still paying, still to owe.'—Milton.

A long book needs but a short preface. Perchance, then, one may claim privilege for a tired pen, and stand excused if some necessary observations are compressed into the briefest space.

From a remote period the indispensable tribute to distinguished merit has found expression in the form of biography. Like most good things, it is often abused. What probably originated and ended in some simple tombstone inscription now sometimes extends to a set of several ponderous tomes—documentary proof, as Dr. Johnson would say, of misplaced vanity. In modern days literary genius asserts its right to a fresh prerogative in the shape of bibliography, a claim no one will grudge. That form of hero-worship honourably serves a double purpose. It fulfils the desire to pay homage where due, and, as a key to recorded knowledge, becomes a handmaid to fresh literary labour. With these few words I might fitly 'say amen betimes' did not other remarks, perhaps apropos to the place and time, press for notice.

'Man's most of might'—in Browning's expressive phrase—the transcendent genius now surveyed, is by acclaim the chosen spokesman of a race entrusted with profound and world-wide responsibilities. In addition to the labour, that fact did not lessen the serious nature of this gigantic task. But of that more anon. Among millions of Anglo-Saxons influenced by books, either at home or overseas, there can be but few who feel no quickening of the pulse at the mention of that 'great heir of fame' who left so free, so matchless a heritage. Beyond the vast numbers who have read and enjoyed, how many more millions do his happy precepts guide and cheer! How much of his wisdom and wit is woven into the common life and language of the nations! How his judicial sense of simple equity interlaces our laws! His æsthetics, his reverence for all that is good and beautiful, his manly courage, his patriotism—are they not reflected to-day on every side and in many an unexpected place!

Without appearing to court exaggeration, it is difficult to do justice in a few phrases to a power unique in our annals. Not only was he founder and father of our national drama—a mighty means of education, but largely of our national tongue—a still mightier means, to say nothing of our general standard of life and intercourse. To the humble 'son of toil' whose nativity in 1564 at Stratford-upon-Avon shed one of the highest honours any town or kingdom could desire, countless legions stand indebted for an impulse which defies alike calculation and valuation. Over and over again his familiar yet ever-fresh writings prove him to belong to no one age or nation, but to be infinitely royal, infinitely human in all. Not merely was he a man of extraordinary energy, both of thought and action, but the cause of boundless activity in others. Few among the legions of his debtors would dare estimate or hope to redeem their debt. Of the unnumberable myriads, over twenty thousand workers held by his magic spell stand enumerated in this census. Right through the centuries which intervene between his coming and the present year of grace, leading writers of all countries have vied in stripping the dictionary of flowers of praise to heap upon our 'ever-living poet.'

But 'hath not thy rose a thorn'? We live in days of occasional disbelief and doubt, when 'fortune in her shift and change of mood spurns down her late beloved.' A few, learned in the law (I cannot add, in literature), like to whet their wits in discoursing that black is white, despite the avalanche of evidence refuting their absurd contentions. In the United States the Baconian discussion, that pitiful waste of time, breath, and ink, has reached the advanced stage of producing its own bibliography, and in England it has brought forth the inevitable society and journal. Scattered through the following seven hundred or more pages, interested readers may find an overwhelming mass of testimony, from the sixteenth century onwards, proving that William Shakespeare was 'gentle, schooled, and learned,' that in very truth he was the surpassing genius which all sound scholars insist upon. It is not surprising that a land of extremes like America should furnish Baconian cranks and Shakespearean zealots at the same moment. Great Britain sincerely thanks the daughter-country for both. Even our friends the cranks have their uses. They encourage zealots, in the process of holding their own, to study the glorious age of Queen Elizabeth to their infinite pleasure and advantage. The annual stream of pilgrims to a shrine that kings envy sets a good example, and makes for the unity, not only of states, but of continents. At this point it may not be unacceptable to quote a few opinions from better known writers of different countries as a microcosm of this bibliography:—

'Thy empire changeth not, thy sceptre sways
A realm that widens as the years go by;
A little while we love and live, but thou,
Thou, the all-loving, know'st not how to die.'—'Achespè,' 1897.

'Others abide our question. Thou art free.
We ask and ask—thou smilest and art still
Out-topping knowledge . . .
And thou, who didst the stars and sunbeams know,
Self-school'd, self-scann'd, self-honour'd, self-secure,
Didst tread on earth unguessed at. Better so! . . .'
—Matthew Arnold, 1853-55.

'For Shakespeare was, and at his touch with light
Impartial as the sun's, revealed the all.'—Mathilde Blind, 1900.

'Shakespeare! To such name's sounding what succeeds
Fitly as a silence? Falter forth the spell . . .
Two names there are; that which the Hebrew reads
With his soul only . . .
We voice the other name, man's most of might,
Awesomely, lovingly . . .
Shakespeare's creation rises, one remove

'Shakespeare, no mere child of nature . . . first studied patiently, meditated deeply, understood minutely, till knowledge, become habitual and intuitive, wedded itself to his habitual feelings, and at length gave birth to that stupendous power by which he stands alone . . . which seated him on one of the two glory-smitten summits of the poetic mountain . . . Shakespeare becomes all things, yet for ever remaining himself . . .'—Samuel T. Coleridge, 1817.

'Shakespeare was one of the greatest geniuses that the world ever saw . . . One may say of him, as of Homer, that he had none to imitate and is himself inimitable.'—John Dennis, 1712.

'I sing the progresse of a deathlesse soule

A worke t' outweare Seth's pillars, brick and stone,
And, holy writs excepted, made to yeeld to none.'

'It is remarkable that on the same day (23rd April, 1616) expired in Spain his great and amiable contemporary, Cervantes, and the world was thus deprived nearly at the same moment of the two most original writers which modern Europe has produced.'—Nathan Drake, 1828.

'Shakespeare who, taught by none, did first impart
To Fletcher wit, to labouring Jonson art.'—John Dryden.

'Shakespeare's mind is the horizon beyond which at present we do not see.'—R. W. Emerson, 1844.

'Altogether a "manly man" (as Chaucer says) this Shakespeare: strong, tender, humorful, sensitive, impressionable, the truest friend, the foe of none but narrow minds and base . . . What can we do but bless his name, and be thankful that he came . . . a bond that shall last for ever between all English-speaking, English-reading men.'—Dr. F. J. Furnivall, 1877.

'In the seventeenth century Shakespeare was regarded as one of a multitude, a little more careless, and sometimes a little more felicitous, than his fellows. To the eighteenth century he became a Gothic savage, in whose "woodnotes wild" the sovereignty of nature was re-asserted as if by accident. It was left to the nineteenth century to discover in him the most magnificent of the conscious poetic artists of the world.'—Edmund Gosse, 1903.

'Shakespeare . . . in tragedy and comedy . . . may be said to have equalled if not excelled . . . the best writers of any age or country who have thought it glory enough to distinguish themselves in either.'—Sir Thomas Hanmer, 1743.

'Shakespeare glances from heaven to earth and from earth to heaven. All nature ministers to him. No poet comes near Shakespeare in the number of lines that, according to Bacon, "come home to our business and bosoms." '—J. C. & A. J. Hare, 1827.

'Shakespeare has surface beneath surface, to an immeasurable depth, adapted to the plummet-line of every reader. His works present many phases of truth . . . and a thousand years hence a world of new readers will possess a whole library of new books, as we ourselves do, in these volumes old already.'—Nathaniel Hawthorne, 1863.

'The striking peculiarity of Shakespeare's mind was its generic quality, its power of communication with all other minds . . . He was just like any other man but that he was like all other men. He turned the globe round for his amusement, and surveyed the generations of men and the individuals as they passed, with their different concerns, passions, follies, vices, virtues, actions and motives, as well those that they knew as those which they did not know or acknowledge . . . If we wish to know the force of human genius, we should read Shakespeare; if . . . the insignificance of human learning, we may study his commentators.'—Wm. Hazlitt, 1818.

'Mellifluous Shakespeare, whose inchanting quill
Commanded mirth or passion, was but Will.'
—Thomas Heywood, 1635.

'This player was a prophet from on high,
Thine own elected. Statesman, prophet, sage . . .'
—Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1875.

'. . . . . an immortal man,
Nature's chief darling and illustrious mate,
Destined to foil old death's oblivious plan
And shine untarnished by the fogs of fate,
Time's famous rival till the final date.'—Thomas Hood, 1827.

'Our love of Shakespeare, therefore, is not a monomania or unaccountable infatuation, but is merely the natural love which all men bear to those forms of excellence that are accommodated to their peculiar character, temperament, and situation . . .'—Francis Lord Jeffrey, 1811.

'Each change of many-coloured life he drew,
Exhausted worlds, and then imagined new.'
—Dr. Samuel Johnson, 1747.

'While I confess thy writings to be such
As neither man nor muse can praise too much.'
—Ben Jonson, 1623.

'The genius of Shakespeare was an innate universality—wherefore he had the utmost achievement of human intellect prostrate beneath his kingly gaze. He could do easily man's utmost . . .'—John Keats.

'. . . . . most great
And powerful genius! whose sublime control
Still from thy grave governs each human soul.
. . . . . .
Shall I not bless the need to which was given
Of all the angels in the host of heaven
Thee for my guardian, spirit strong and bland,
Lord of the speech of my dear native land.'—F. A. Kemble, 1866.

'I have derived more practical Christianity from reading Shakespeare's plays and seeing them enacted than from any sermon I ever heard preached.'—Charles Kingsley.

'Shakespeare strengthens virtue, kills selfish and mercenary thoughts, induces sweet honourable actions and ideas, teaches benignity, courtesy, generosity, and humanity.'—Charles Lamb.

'In poetry there is but one supreme,
Though there are many angels round his throne,
. . . . . .
One crying out—" All nations spoke through me." '
—Walter Savage Landor, 1846.

'Highest among those who have exhibited human nature stands Shakespeare. . . . Admirable as he is in all parts of his art, we most admire him for this—that while he has left a greater number of striking portraits than all other dramatists put together, he has scarcely left us a single caricature.'—Lord Macaulay, 1843.

'And for all time he wears the crown
Of lasting limitless renown;
He reigns, whatever monarchs fall,
His throne is in the hearts of all.'—Gerald Massey.

'Shakespeare is as astonishing for the exuberance of his genius in abstract notions and for the depth of his analytical and philosophical insight as for the scope and minuteness of his poetic imagination.'—Prof. David Masson, 1874.

'O lived the master now to paint us men
That little twist of brain would ring a chime
Of whence it came, and what it caused, to start
Thunders of laughter, clearing air and heart.'

'The muses would speak with Shakespeare's fine filed phrase if they would speak English.'—Francis Meres, 1598.

'What needs my Shakespeare for his honoured bones
The labour of an age in pilèd stones?
Dear son of memory, great heir of fame,
What need'st thou such dull witness of thy name.
Thou in our wonder and astonishment
Hast built thyself a lasting monument.
. . . . . .
And so sepulchred in such pomp dost lie,

'The man whose prudence made him rich, whose affectionate nature made him loved almost to idolatry, and whose genius has been the wonder of the world.'—Wm. Minto, 1874.

'A great author . . . is one who has something to say and knows how to say it. Such pre-eminently is Shakespeare.'—Cardinal J. H. Newman, 1873.

'Our Shakespeare wrote too in an age as blest,
The happiest poet of his time and best.
Most beautiful, amazing, and divine.'—Thomas Otway, 1680.

'Enthroned above the fettered souls of men,
Sublimely great, immeasurably wise.'—H. T. P——, 1902.

'We turn to the "Sonnets" . . . There is, after all, nothing more remarkable or fascinating in English poetry than these personal revelations of the mind of our greatest poet. We read them again and again, and find each time some new proof of his almost superhuman insight into human nature; of his unrivalled mastery over all the tones of love.'—F. T. Palgrave, 1865.

'If ever any author deserved the name of an original it was Shakespeare . . . The poetry of Shakespeare was inspiration indeed . . . nature speaks through him . . . This is perfectly amazing from a man of no education or experience in those great and public scenes of life which are usually the subject of his thoughts. So that he seems to have known the world by intuition, to have looked through human nature at one glance, and to be the only author that gives ground for a very new opinion—that the philosopher and even the man of the world may be born, as well as the poet.'—Alex. Pope, 1723.

'The genius of Shakespeare is unlimited.'—Prof. Wm. Richardson, 1774.

'I believe this to be one of Shakespeare's most wondrous qualities—the humanity of his nature and heart. There is a spirit of sunny endeavour about him and an acquiescence in things as they are . . . with a cheerful resolve to make them better.'—Frederick W. Robertson.

'It does not matter how little, or how much, any of us have read either of Homer or Shakespeare; everything round us, in substance or in thought, has been moulded by them . . . Of the scope of Shakespeare I will say only that the intellectual measure of every man since born in the domain of creative thought may be assigned to him according to the degree in which he has been taught by Shakespeare.'—John Ruskin.

'The effect of the genius of an individual upon the taste of a nation is mighty, but that genius in its turn is formed according to the opinions prevalent at the period when it comes into existence. Such was the case with Shakespeare.'—Sir Walter Scott, 1814.

'. . . . . but, happier Stratford, thou
With uncontested laurels deck thy brow.
Thy bard was thine, unschooled, and from thee brought
More than all Egypt, Greece, or Asia taught.
Not Homer's self such matchless honours won.
The Greek has rivals, but thy Shakespeare none.'

—Anne Seward, 1782.

'Divinest Shakespeare's might
Fills Avon and the world with light,
Like omniscient power which he Imaged 'mid mortality.'—P. B. Shelley, 1818.

'Sweet volume, stored with learning fit for saints,
Where blissful quires imparadize their minds,
Wherein eternall studie never faints,
Still finding all, yet seeking all it finds,
How endless is your labyrinth of blisse,
Where to be lost the sweetest finding is.'—Robert Southwell, 1594.

'Of books that have influenced me, Shakespeare has served me best.'—Robert Louis Stevenson.

'Not if men's tongues and angels' all in one
Spake, might the word be said that might speak thee.
Streams, winds, woods, flowers, fields, mountains, yea, the sea—
What power is in them all to praise the sun?
His praise is this—he can be praised of none.'

—A. C. Swinburne, 1882.

'Shakespeare stands alone, and I do not wonder he so witches the world.'—Walt Whitman, 1898.

'He speaks a language which thrills in our blood in spite of two hundred years . . . and his genius may be contemporary with the mind of every generation for a thousand years to come . . . It was Shakespeare, the most unlearned of all our writers, who first exhibited on the stage perfect images of all human characters and events . . . Except in him we look in vain for . . . perfect art.'—Prof. John Wilson, 1857.

'We may compare the mind of Shakespeare to a diamond, cut into countless polished facets, which in constant movement, at every smallest change of direction or of angle, caught a new reflection, so that not one of its brilliant mirrors could for a moment be idle, but by a power beyond its control was ever busy with the reflection of innumerable images . . .'—Cardinal Wiseman, 1865.

And so one might continue, almost without finality, to gyrate, as a moth, round the flashing, dazzling arc of light known as William Shakespeare. With C. E. Lawrence, 'proud may we be that this superlative genius was an Englishman, gentle-hearted, perhaps sad sometimes, but ever patriotic.' He knew the soul of man better than it is vouchsafed to mortals to know, in all its sunshine, shadow, storm, and stress. His wit was all-embracing, like a summer zephyr. It haunted the taverns with Falstaff, radiated the woodpaths of Arden with Rosalind, explored the lot of the outcast with Lear's fool, flitted hither and thither with Ariel and Puck in their madcap pranks. His wisdom touched the eternities. It peered through the tomb with Hamlet; weighed, with some irony, the responsibilities of princes; uncovered the deeds of the cunning, and deprecated the artificiality of the courtier. His sympathy was world-wide, though he had little for the quack, the insincere, the demagogue, or the unwashed mob. His humanity united all humans into one family with 'one touch of nature.' All ranks, professions, grades, and callings served him as puppets to earn our admiration, sympathy, or condemnation according to his pulling of the strings. His far-sighted vision embraced supermen in the fairies, elves, witches, and monsters employed. 'All the world's a stage' as he saw it, and its vastness and unending variety served to deck his plots. As Prospero he could regard earthly existence as a dream or bubble. But they are no shadows that strut, march, dance, or sneak across his boards; they are living beings, more actual than many we have known in the flesh; folk of majesty or meanness, mirth or passion, and always of wonder. They exult or suffer, earning our smiles or sighs; they ever point a moral or adorn a tale; they illustrate, inform, or deck comedy and tragedy—irony binding the two in the human drama—and so compose and comprise human life, the unknown mighty purpose. In truth, this supreme citizen of no mean empire may stand as the eternal embodiment of all that is best and greatest in human character and achievement.

It may be well to set down something of the provenance of this book, a dictionary so long the desire and despair of scholars and collectors.

Since Francis Meres published his preliminary list in 1598 much water has run past the mill, and most of the many attempts to complete such an undertaking found a sadly common end in failure. As time progressed, the endless flow of fresh editions and new commentaries added to the task, until the mountain of work seemed one for a syndicate to attack, rather than an individual. Apart from scores of writers who have prepared lists of Shakespeareana more or less lengthy, perhaps the earliest effort towards an exhaustive key was Francis Kirkman's 'True . . . catalogue of all comedies, tragedies, and pastorals that were ever yet printed, 1671,' a work far from being so 'perfect and exact' as its title claimed. This was reprinted in 1698, with additions, by Gerard Langbaine, who was followed by W. Mears with his 'Compleat catalogue of plays, 1726.' Six years later came a work palpably founded on Kirkman, entitled the 'True and exact catalogue of all the plays and other dramatic pieces ever yet printed in English . . . 1732.' In 1740 Francis Peck added to his 'Memoirs of John Milton' a 'New catalogue of Shakespeare's writings.' Seven years after came John Mottley's 'List of all the . . . dramatic pieces ever published in English . . . 1747.' W. R. Chetwood in 1752 issued his 'British theatre, containing . . . an account of all plays . . .'; re-issued in 1756 under a fresh title. In 1767 Edward Capell added to his charming edition of the poet a 'Table of the quartos, folios, ascribed plays, and poems.' Succeeding this, in 1773, occurred Theobald's edition of Shakespeare, containing a bibliography, amusingly divided into 'editions of authority, of middle authority, of no authority,' the latter including poor Rowe's 1709 edition, from which all biographers borrow, with or without acknowledgment. Following Theobald occurred a more elaborate effort in the shape of Edward Capell's 'Catalogue of a collection intitl'd Shakesperiana, comprehending all the several editions . . . divers old prose-men and verse-men, with a variety of other articles, chiefly such as tend to illustrate him . . . 1779.' This interesting manuscript is still happily preserved at Cambridge, and was printed in 1779 under the editorship of George Steevens. In the same year appeared the 'Playhouse pocket companion, containing a catalogue of all the dramatic authors who have written for the English stage, 1779.'

A similar work, called the 'New theatrical dictionary,' was put forth in 1792, which hardly fulfilled its pretentious title. In 1803 J. Barker published a 'Complete list of plays, exhibiting at one view the title, size, date, and author from the commencement of theatrical performances . . .' About 1805, or earlier, arose a fresh Mahomet, who failed to move a mountain, in the person of the first Marquis of Bute. His manuscript is preserved at Boston, U.S., and covers fifty-two pages only. It is entitled 'Catalogue containing, or intended to contain, every edition of Shakespeare and all commentaries, etc. regarding that author.' The noble marquis was a man of caution, judged by the reservation 'intended to contain.' In 1818 John Britton added a 'bibliography of detached essays and dissertations on Shakespeare' to his edition of the bard, and remarked 'the number and variety of commentaries on the writings of Shakespeare almost exceed credibility.' If that observation fairly represented the student's library a century ago, what would Britton say now! To continue. In 1824 Robert Watt contributed his well-known but limited list in his invaluable 'Bibliotheca Britannica,' and was followed in 1827 by John Wilson's 'Catalogue of all the books, pamphlets, etc. relating to Shakespeare . . .'—a remarkably modest-looking tome for so brave a title. Two amateur collectors now set to work—one in England, one in America. Thomas Jolley, the well-known bibliophile, compiled a 'List of Shakespeareana, 1834,' a small manuscript I found at Warwick Castle; while Thomas Pennant Barton, of New York, founder of the wonderful collection at Boston, commenced at the same time (ending in 1869) his 'Shakespeariana or a complete list of all the works relating to Shakespeare.' This manuscript, now at Boston, fills over a thousand quarto pages, a treasured memento of that life-long enthusiast. In the same year, 1834, first came out Thomas William Lowndes' indispensable 'Bibliographer's manual,' with its lengthy list of Shakespeareana. He fell a martyr to the cause, and Lowndes' name will always be revered by scholars and bookmen. The year 1841 saw the two friends and co-workers, John Payne Collier and James Orchard Halliwell, both absorbed in this field of research. Collier published his studies 'On the earliest quarto editions' under the ægis of the Shakespeare Society, while Halliwell brought forth his 'Shakespeariana: a catalogue of the early editions of Shakespeare's plays and of the commentaries and other publications illustrative of his works, 1841.' Like Halliwell's many later contributions on the subject, this was exceedingly interesting, but too haphazard ever to be serviceable to any but leisured men. Next must be mentioned E. Cranwell's 'Plays of Shakespeare printed before 1623,' which came out in 1847. Following this appeared Henry George Bohn's new edition of 'Lowndes' Manual' in 1857, the Shakespearean portion of which, much enlarged, he published separately as the 'Biography and bibliography of Shakespeare . . . 1863,' and again in 1864. This Bohn proudly claimed to contain 'every known edition, translation, and commentary.' This statement was far from accurate. His dates are often wrong, while his omissions may be numbered by thousands. The year 1865 witnessed Franz Thimm's 'Shakespeariana form 1564 to 1864,' useful as a supplement to Bohn's compilation. In 1866 William Harrison, a collector, printed privately a 'Descriptive catalogue of Shakspeariana.' Clarence Hopper in 1868 prepared, under the guidance of Halliwell, the first catalogue of the contents of the birthplace library at Stratford. This was followed in 1870 by Allibone's 'Dictionary of English literature,' bearing 'Shakespeare's life and bibliography.' Then Albert Cohn commenced in 1871 his 'Shakespeare bibliographie,' English and foreign, which appeared annually until 1886. The years 1872-76 found Robert K. Dent at work upon his 'Catalogue of the Shakespeare Memorial Library, Birmingham,' and to everyone's sorrow his inventory is practically all that remains of the splendid collection destroyed by fire in 1879. To the city's eternal credit, Birmingham manfully set to work to replace its loss, and, phœnix-like, the largest Shakespeare library in the world now exists there. In 1876 Justin Winsor issued his 'Bibliography of the original quartos and folios of Shakespeare,' followed in 1879 by his similar work on the 'Poems.' At the same time Karl Knortz printed his 'American Shakespeare bibliography, 1876.' By far the most thorough and painstaking contribution next appeared in the 'Catalogue of the works of Wm. Shakespeare, original and translated. Barton Collection, Boston. By

James M. Hubbard and Arthur M. Knapp, 1878-80,' a small folio of over two hundred closely-printed pages. In 1879 Horace H. Morgan issued in Saint Louis a volume entitled 'Topical Shakespeariana.' This was succeeded in 1880 by the New York 'Catalogue of the James Lenox Library,' a compilation not to be overlooked. W. H. Wyman in 1882 produced a 'Bibliography of Bacon-Shakespeare literature,' which ran into a second edition in 1884. Then came James A. Morgan's 'Digesta Shakespeareana, 1886-87.' In 1889 Frederick Hawley commenced his ambitious 'Catalogue of all the known editions of Shakespeare's plays in every language,' and died long ere he could possibly complete it. His folio manuscript is preserved at the Stratford Memorial Library, which splendid institution he served as librarian. In the next year, 1890, the writer prepared his 'Index catalogue of Shakespeareana preserved at Warwick Castle,' which now appears (embodied herein) in print for the first time. In 1898 the present librarian, Mr. Wm. Salt Brassington (whose courtesy all students and visitors thankfully acknowledge) commenced his manuscript 'Classified and indexed catalogue of the Shakespeare Memorial Library, Stratford-on-Avon.' The next year Mr. Marsden Jasael Perry privately printed a 'Catalogue of Shakespeareana' [in the Perry collection]. In 1900 Mr. A. Capel Shaw published the extensive 'Index to the Shakespeare Memorial Library, Birmingham,' a collection now embracing about fourteen thousand volumes. In the pages of 'The Library' for 1903 Dr. Walter W. Greg gave a 'Bibliographical history of the first folio' (the Jaggard canon of 1623), and, with Mr. A. W. Pollard and others, in the same quarterly, and in 'The Athenæum,' 1908-09, gave a series of valuable articles on the falsely dated quartos. In 1909 appeared further welcome help from Mr. Alfred W. Pollard in his 'Shakespeare folios and quartos,' a study affording new light on obscure corners and phases of the subject.

One might so continue almost indefinitely, but the titles already exhibited show that a score or more of writers in succession strove to subdue this great toil, but in the main it subdued them, as it nearly did the writer. The tyranny of an exacting profession leaves one little leisure for adventure in bibliography. I was tempted in early youth to undertake it by the fourth Earl of Warwick, and after twenty-two years' effort, chiefly in time ill-spared from rest and recreation, I have at last reconciled aim with achievement, faith with fulfilment. My sole ambition was to render the book in some measure worthy of that exquisite thinker who gave English character its greatest impetus. So vast a field can hardly prove to be perfectly gleaned at the first full attempt. Something fresh comes to light nearly every week of the year, so I hope to issue occasional supplements, like the present addenda, to keep the work up to date. Meanwhile, if readers will kindly notify omissions I shall be grateful.

Now for the aim of this conspectus. It seeks to be something more than a bibliography; in fact, to be an encyclopædia of Shakespearean information and stage history, or, as Bacon says, the 'image of men's wit and knowledge,' instantly pointing out all recorded data. In effect it is also a convergent or cumulative catalogue, annotated and indexed, of the world's twelve largest Shakespeare libraries, so simply arranged that a child can use it. It contains over thirty-six thousand distinct entries and references, including many hitherto unrecorded editions, with thousands of illustrative notes and extracts. It gives minute details and available locations of every known issue of Shakespeare's writings (whether written, printed, separate, collective, authentic, attributed, private, public, in or out of print); likewise of every tract, pamphlet, volume, or collection of Shakespearean comment; of each analogue or source, with notes of the passages affected; of every important contemporary or subsequent allusion to, or article on, the dramatist or his productions; of each autograph, genuine or forged; of all engraved Shakespeare portraits; with market values of the rarer entries. Key-references are embodied to all incidental Shakespearean actors, actresses, artists, attributes, bibliographers, bibliophiles, biographers, blind-type printings, celebrations, centenaries, clubs, collaborators, commemorations, commentators, composers, controversies, critics, editors, engravers, exhibitions, festivals, forgeries, illustrations (pictorial or literary), jubilees, managers, manuscripts, memorials, monuments, printers, prompters, pseudonyms, publishers, societies, theatres, translators, vellum-printings. [There is one exception: firms of printers and publishers still trading have not been indexed.] It will thus be seen that men of thought, of art, and of business, rightly take their place side by side in the great Shakespearean army, each having his due share of credit.

Shakespeare's best monument, like his real portrait, lies in print, at once the most fragile, imperishable, and world-wide tablet.

Finally, to whom do I owe thanks? To some, alas! called hence during progress; among others, to George Guy Greville, fourth Earl of Warwick, for initial encouragement and unfailing courtesy; to Charles Edward Flower and his good wife Sarah Flower, of Stratford-on-Avon, devoted benefactors of the town, whose forethought and generosity have made the student's path easy and pleasant; to Alderman Timmins, of Birmingham, and to Thomas Simmons, of Leamington, whose store of knowledge was ever at my disposal.

Much do I owe Sir Edward Russell, who personifies the words of Sir Wm. Temple, another worthy knight—'the greatest medicine is a true friend.'

Specially am I indebted to that tireless enthusiast, Mrs. C. C. Stopes, beside the courteous librarians and assistants at the British Museum, the Bodleian, at Birmingham, Harvard University, Manchester, Melbourne, Stratford Memorial; also to Mr. Edmund L. Armstrong of Melbourne, Mr. George Boyden of Stratford, Mr. E. Gordon Duff of Liverpool, Mr. A. W. Pollard of the British Museum, and last, though not least, to my careful, painstaking printers, all of whom united in removing obstacles from my path.

'Here let us breathe and haply institute
A course of learning and ingenious studies.'

WILLIAM JAGGARD.

Bacon (Delia S.) Philosophy of the plays of Sh— unfolded. With preface by N. Hawthorne. Ln: Groombridge, 1857. 8°, pp. 680

BM | BPL | BUS | CPL | MPL | SML

Reviewed in the 'Athenæum,' 11 April, 1857. The authoress is graphically described by N. Hawthorne in 'Our old home' (q.v.). She died insane at Stratford-on-Avon. One of the first to question Sh—'s claims to greatness, Delia Bacon may be regarded as the founder of the Bacon-Sh— controversy. She spent years in preparing her voluminous MS. before kindly Hawthorne found her a publisher; meanwhile W. H. Smith (q.v.) published a small work on the subject.

Bacon Baron Verulam (Francis) Conference of pleasure. Ed. from a manuscript belonging to the Duke of Northumberland by J. Spedding. Ln: Longman, 1870. 8° SML

] Declaration of the practises and treasons attempted and committed by Robert late Earle of Essex and his complices, against her Maiestie and her kingdoms, and of the proceedings as well at the arraignments and conuictions of the said late Earle, and his adherents, as after: Together with the very confessions and other parts of the evidences themselves . . . taken out of the originals. Imprinted at Ln by Robert Barker, 1601. Fcp. 4°. Sig. A to Q4 unpaged CTC | W

Upon the last page but one occurs this note of 'King Richard II.': 'That the afternoone before the rebellion Merricke with a great company of others, that afterwards were all in the action, had procured to be played before them the play of deposing 'King Richard the Second.' Neither was it casual but a play bespoken by Merricke. And not so onely, but when it was told him by one of the players that the play was olde and they should have losse in playing it because fewe would come, there was Fourty Shillings extraordinary given to play it, and so thereupon playd it was. So earnest hee was to satisfie his eyes with the sight of that tragedie which he thought soone after his lord should bring from the stage to the state, but that God turned it upon their owne heads.'

Bacon Baron Verulam (Francis) Instauratio Magna [Novum Organum . . .]. Ln: John Bill, 1620. F°. With engraved title by S. Pass showing a ship under full canvas

The Baconians have discovered a passage in 'Love's labours lost' (probably written thirty years before the above was issued) which they claim supports their theories. It is in Act V., Sc. 2:—

Bir. Abate a throw at Novum, and the whole world again
Cannot pricke out five such; take each one in his vaine.

King. The ship is under sail, and here she comes amain.

'From these our stage, transplanted, took its rise,
The school of virtue and the scourge of vice;
Rude in its youth, till Sh—'s master hand
Taught the strong scene each passion to command.'

Bohn (Henry George) Bibliographical account of the works of Sh—, including every known edition, translation and commentary. Printed off separately from his enlarged edition of the 'Bibliographer's Manual,' with some additions. Ln: Privately printed, 1864. Fcp. 4°, pp. 104, on handmade paper BM | BUS | SML

Issue restricted to twenty-five copies. Some copies are dated 1863.

So far from 'including every known edition,' its omissions may be numbered by thousands. Yet, despite this drawback and its chaotic arrangement, it remained the best available list for nearly half a century.

Biography and bibliography of Sh— ['Miscellanies of the Philobiblion Society']. Ln: 1863. Fcp. 4°. With ten engravings BM

Impression limited to forty copies 'for presentation to persons of wealth and rank.' Apparently intellect did not count.

Breton (Nicholas)] Arbor of amorous devices, wherein young gentlemen may reade many pleasant fancies and fine deuices, and thereon meditate diuers sweete conceites to court the loue of faire ladies and gentlewomen. By N. B. Imprinted at Ln. by Richard Iones at the Rose and Crowne neere S. Andrewe's Church. Fcp. 4°. Sig. A to F4 unpaged CTC

Will of wit, otherwise called wit's will or will's wit. Now first reprinted from the rare edition of 1599. Ed. by J. O. Halliwell. Ln: 1860. Fcp. 4°. BUS

Limited to twenty-six copies.

Entered at Stationers' Hall probably in or before 1580, in which year presumably it was first printed. An edition of 1597 is recorded, but apparently the 1599 one was the earliest available to Halliwell.

It is interesting to compare it with the 'Will' sonnet, first printed in 1609.

To be sold in Pauls Churchyard in London, 1595. Fcp. 4°, without pagination BUS | w

Remarkable as containing the second extraneous printed notice of Sh— by name. It occurs in a marginal note on the verso of signature R2:—

'All praise, worthy Lucrecia [of] sweet Sh—.'

The epithet 'sweet,' peculiar as applied to the sterner sex, appeared again in print shortly after, in the Cambridge play entitled 'Return from Parnassus' [q. v.], thus: 'Sweet Maister Sh—,' and the adjective has clung tenaciously throughout three centuries.

To make him to believe he was a lord.
But you affirm, and in it seem most eager,
'T will make a lord as drunk as any beggar.
Bid Norton brew such ale as Sh— fancies
Did put Kit Sly into such lordly trances;
And let us meet there for a fit of gladness
And drink ourselves merry in sober sadness.'

The list of contents finishes up by enumerating two essays—'On sadness' and 'On the virtues of Julian the Apostate'—as following that 'On debt,' but as the word 'Finis' follows this last composition in the text, the volume was evidently published minus the first-mentioned, and is apparently complete without them. Nevertheless, preceding the 'Paradoxes' in this copy is a quite separate edition of the two essays in question, entitled 'Essays, or rather, Prayses on sadnesse: and of the Emperour Julian the Apostate. Dancing devils, or the roaring dragon: A dumb farce. As it was lately acted at both houses, but particularly at one, with unaccountable success. [By Thomas D'Urfey ?]

'Pray tell me whether, in a vicious age,
The stage corrupts the town, or town the stage,
For both concur when folly makes its way,
And where the fault begins 'tis hard to say.'

Ln: A. Bettesworth, 1724. 8°, pp. 70

At p. 8 occur these lines:—
'Here Sh— to Elizion fled,
And o "rare Ben" should live tho' dead,
That their inimitable plays
In others might a genius raise
And teach 'em to deserve the bays.'

Poems. Vindication of poesie. Ed. by Dr. A. B. Grosart. Privately printed, 1878. 4 vols.

At pp. 28-29, vol. i., are these lines:—
'The sweetest swan of Avon to ye fair
And cruel Delia passionately sings,
Other men's weaknesses and follies are
Honor and wit to him; each accent brings
A sprig to crown him poet, and contrive
A monument, in his own work, to live.'

In the margin against the line, 'Players, I love yee,' are the initials W. S. and R. B., probably intended for Sh— and Burbage.

The full reference is so interesting as to bear repeating here:—

'Players, I love yee and your quality
As ye are men—that pastime not abused;
And some I love for painting, poesy;
And say fell fortune cannot be excused
That hath for better uses you refused.
Wit, courage, good shape, good parts, and all good
(As long as all these goods are no worse used);
And though the stage doth stain pure gentle blood,
Yet generous ye are in mind and mood.'

Usefulness of the stage, to the happiness of mankind, to government, and to religion. Occasioned by a late book written by [Bishop] Jeremy Collier. Ln: Parker, 1698. 8° SML | W

Mentioning the first establishment of the drama in England [p. 40], Dennis speaks of 'so many suns at once appearing. The reader will immediately comprehend that I speak of Spencer, Bacon, and Raleigh, whose like had never been and never would be seen.'

Why Sh— should be ignored is not apparent, in view of the earlier and later writings of Dennis, unless the author's views underwent a temporary change. The omission was probably accidental; otherwise Dennis might rank as founder of the heretics who promulgate the Bacon-Sh— theory.

Though nominally prepared by J. D. Mullins, the real compiler was R. K. Dent.
A few were issued on large paper, royal octavo, of which impression one is at Stratford.
This fine collection of seven thousand volumes was practically annihilated by fire on 11th January, 1879, a fate which almost overtook the Warwick Castle library eight years earlier. With undaunted courage and public spirit the Birmingham Library committee and its officials have gradually replaced their disastrous loss.

On sig. Y3 (p. 165, mispaged 149) is the famous eulogy by William Basse:—

AN EPITAPH UPON SH—.

Renowned Chaucer, lie a thought more nigh
To rare Beaumond; and learned Beaumond lie
A little nearer Spencer, to make roome
For Sh— in your threefold fourefold tombe.
To lie all foure in one bed make a shift
For, untill doomesday hardly will a fift
Betwixt this day and that be slaine
For whom your curtaines need be drawne againe.
But, if precedency of death doth barre
A fourth place in your sacred sepulchre
Under this curled marble of thine owne
Sleepe, rare tragedian Sh—, sleepe alone,
That unto us and others it may bee
Honor hereafter to be laid by thee.

For other references see 'Notes and Queries,' first series, vol. vi., p. 158, by which it will be seen this epitaph (wrongly credited to Donne) was omitted in later editions. See also Sh— Works (Reed), 1803, vol. ii., p. 181.

An evening's love, or the mock astrologer. Ln: T. N—— for H. Herringman, 1671. Fcp. 4°

Dryden was indebted to Sh— at several points in this play. Prefixed is an essay on the merits of the older dramatists, in which remarks on their respective qualities are made with fine discrimination.

The Shakespearean notices and references mention the origin of some of his plays.

Of dramatick poesie. An essay. Ln: H. Herringman, at the Sign of the Anchor, 1668. Fcp. 4° BPL

Dryden's greatest prose production, in which, says Dr. Johnson, 'the account of Sh— may stand as a perpetual model of encomiastic criticism, exact without minuteness and lofty without exaggeration. In a few lines is exhibited a character so extensive in its comprehension and so curious in its limitations that nothing can be added, diminished, or referred, nor can the editors and admirers of Sh—, in all their emulation of reverence, boast of much more than of having diffused and paraphrased the epitome of excellence, of having changed Dryden's gold for baser metal of lower value though of greater bulk.'

Dryden (John) Rival ladies. A tragi-comedy. Ln: T. N—— for H. Herringman, 1675. Fcp. 4°

Dryden falls into a curious error in crediting Sh— with the invention of blank verse. In the 'Address to the Earl of Orrery,' Dryden says: 'Sh—, who with some errors not to be avoided in that age, had undoubtedly a larger soul of poesie than ever any of our nation, was the first who, to shun the pains of continual rhyming, invented that kind of writing which we call blank verse, but the French more properly "prose mesurée," into which the English tongue so naturally slides that in writing prose 'tis hardly to be avoided.'

Elegie on the death of the famous writer and actor Mr. William Sh—. [In Sh— Poems.] Ln: 1640. 8°

On sig. L an anonymous writer says:—

'I dare not do thy memory that wrong
Unto our larger griefs to give a tongue.

How can we then forget thee, when the age
Her chiefest tutor, and the widowed stage
Her only favourite, in thee hath lost,
And nature's self what she did brag of most?

Queen Elizabeth's State Procession to the Marriage of Lord Herbert, 1600

7 Lord Herbert of Cardiff
8 Edward fourth Earl of Worcester, father of 11 Lord Herbert, the bridegroom
12 Lucy Harrington Countess of Bedford

Sleep then, rich soul of numbers, whilst poor we Enjoy the profits of thy legacy;
And thinke it happiness enough we have
So much of thee redeemed from the grave
As may suffice to enlighten future times
With the bright lustre of thy matchless rhymes.'

Farnaby (Thomas) Florilegium epigrammatum Græcorum, eorumque Latino versu a variis redditorum. Ln: 1629. 8°
In the Baconian controversy some dwell on the statement of John Aubrey that 'Bacon was a good poet but concealed.' The verses of Bacon (of which Aubrey quotes the opening lines) formed a parody on a Latin version of the 'Seven ages of man.' Bacon's English rendering, which seems to have fallen into the hands of Farnaby, is printed with the latter writer's Greek on parallel pages herein.

'Sh—, the genius of our isle, whose mind,
The universal mirror of mankind,
Express'd all images, enrich'd the stage,
But sometimes stoop'd to please a barbarous age.
May spring with purple flowers perfume thy urn,
And Avon with his greens thy grave adorn;
Be all thy faults, whatever faults there be,
Imputed to the times, and not to thee.
Jonson the tribute of my verse might claim
Had he not strove to blemish Sh—'s name;
But like the radiant twins that gild the sphere,
Fletcher and Beaumont next in pomp appear.
Few moderns in the lists with these may stand,
For in those days were giants in the land;
Suffice it now by lineal right to claim,
And bow with filial awe to Sh—'s fame;
The second honours are a glorious name.
Achilles dead, they found no equal lord
To wear his armour and to wield his sword.'

Epigram xcii. on recto of sig. K 2 reads:—

'To Master W. Sh—.

Sh—, that nimble mercury, thy brain,
Lulls many hundred argus eyes asleep,
So fit for all thou fashionest thy rein.
At th' horse-foot fountain thou hast drank full deep;
Vertue's or vice's theme to thee all one is.
Who loves chaste life, there's 'Lucrece' for a teacher;
Who but read lust, there's 'Venus and Adonis,'
True model of a most lascivious leacher;
Besides, in plays thy wit winds like meander,
Whence needy new composers borrow more
Than Terence doth from Plautus or Menander.
But to praise thee aright I want thy store;
Then let thine own works thine own worth upraise,
And help to adorn thee with deserved bays.'

In vol. i., pp. 445-446, says: 'We wonder at the grandeur, the moral majesty of some of Sh—'s characters, so far beyond what the noblest among ourselves can imitate, and at first thought we attribute it to the genius of the poet who has outstripped nature in his creations. But we are misunderstanding . . . Sh— created, but only as the spirit of nature created around him. The men whom he draws were such men as he saw and knew; the words they utter were such as he heard . . . At the Mermaid with Ralegh and with Sidney, and at a thousand unnamed English firesides he found the living originals for his Prince Hals, Orlandos, Antonios, Portias, Isabellas. The closer the personal acquaintance which we can form with the English of the age of Elizabeth, the more we are satisfied that Sh—'s great poetry is no more than the rhythmic echo of the life which it depicts.'

At p. 126 says of Sh— (under Warwickshire):—
'He was an eminent instance of the truth of that rule, "poeta non fit sed nascitur . . ." Indeed, his learning was very little, so that, as Cornish diamonds are not polished, but are pointed and smoothed even as they are taken out of the earth, so nature itself was all the art which was used upon him.

Many were the wit-combats betwixt him and Ben Jonson, which two I beheld like a Spanish great galleon and an English man-of-war: Master Jonson (like the former) was built far higher in learning, solid but slow in all his performances. Sh—, the English man-of-war, lesser in bulk but lighter in sailing, could turn with all tides, tack about and take advantage of all winds, by the quickness of his wit and invention.'

Warwickshire: A song [In Dibdin's 'Sh—'s garland' (q.v.)]. 1769. 8°
This song is sometimes attributed to Garrick, although the more likely writer is Charles Dibdin. It has long served as the regimental ballad of the Warwickshire regiments. The lively melody brings to mind the 'native wood notes wild' of Sh—'s country. Two of the verses are here quoted:—
'Each shire has its different pleasures,
Each shire has its different treasures,
But to rare Warwickshire all must submit,
For the wit of all wits was a Warwickshire wit,
Warwickshire wit!
How he writ!
For the wit of all wits was a Warwickshire wit.
. . . . . .
Old Ben, Thomas Otway, John Dryden,
And half a score more we take pride in;
Of famous Will. Congreve we boast too the skill;
But the Will of all Wills was a Warwickshire Will,
Warwickshire Will,
Matchless still,
For the Will of all Wills was a Warwickshire Will.

A large paper copy in quarto (with purchasers' names and prices realised) is at Stratford.
According to T. F. Dibdin (see his 'Bibliog. Decam.,' vol. iii., p. 313), the great Roscius formed his library in anything but an orthodox manner: 'Garrick had free access to the library at Dulwich College founded by Alleyn, and pillaged it without scruple or remorse. He did pretty nearly the same with Sir Thomas Hanmer's library. No wonder therefore that the Garrick collection in the British Museum presents at once an object of vexation, envy, and despair to the bibliomaniac.'

So doth his song all sweet bird-songs rehearse.
But tell me then what wondrous stuff did fashion
That part of him which took those wilding flights

Groats-worth of witte, bought with a million of repentance, describing the follie of youth, the falshood of make-shifte flatterers, the miserie of the negligent and mischiefes of deceiuing courtezans. Written before his death and published at his dyeing request. Foelicem fuisse infaustum. Ln: Imprinted for William Wright, 1592. Fcp. 4°, 24 unpaged leaves; sig. A^1 to F^4 in fours (the first blank) BM

Contains on p. 55 the first extrinsic personal notice of Sh— in print. Greene, who died 3 Sept., 1592, left behind him for publication the above deathbed repentance, in which he exhibits envy of the rising dramatist. Addressing his friends Marlowe, Nash, and others, he says:—'There is an upstart crow, beautified with our feathers, that, with his tyger's heart wrapt in a player's hide, supposes he is as well able to bumbaste out a blanke verse as the best of you; and being an absolute Johannes Factotum is, in his owne conceit, the only Shake-scene in a countrie,' etc. The line in italics is a thin travesty of that in 'King Henry VI.':
'Oh, tiger's heart wrapt in a woman's hide.'
In Dec., 1592, Henry Chettle, Greene's publisher, apologised for this unmerited attack. See Chettle—'Kind harte's dreame.'
It is noteworthy that Sh— uses 'bombast' in 'Love's labours lost,' Act v. 2: 'As bombast and living to the time.' The word is found only three times in his writings.

'W. Sh—, being at a certain time on terms of familiarity and friendship with Ben Jonson, before the latter had become jealous and envious of his rising merits, stood godfather to a child of Ben's, who demanded of him in a pleasant way what gift he would bestow, as the custom was. "I have just been thinking," replied the Warwickshire bard, "and am determined to give the boy a dozen latten spoons, and thou shalt translate them."'
The term latten, otherwise tin, still survives in the stannaries or tin mines of Cornwall.

The compiler was librarian of the Stratford Memorial Library for about three years [1886-89], and did much to develop that institution in its earlier stages. He was trained for the legal profession, admitted solicitor in 1852, but afterwards preferred the stage for a career, playing in various Sh— parts under the name of 'Haywell,' a transposition of his proper name. One of the plays he wrote, 'Agnes of Bavaria,' secured an appearance at the Gaiety Theatre.

Hawthorne U.S. Consul (Nathaniel) Mosses from an old manse. Ln: Routledge, 1851. Cr. 8° BM

In the essay headed 'Earth's holocaust,' pp. 146-147, says: 'The human race had now reached a stage of progress so far beyond what the wisest and wittiest men of former ages had ever dreamed of, that it would have been a manifest absurdity to allow the earth to be any longer encumbered with their poor achievements in the literary line. Accordingly, a thorough and searching investigation had swept the booksellers' shops, hawkers' stands, public and private libraries, and even the little bookshelf by the country fireside, and had brought the world's entire mass of printed paper, bound or in sheets, to swell the already mountain-bulk of our illustrious bonfire. Thick heavy folios, containing the labours of lexicographers, commentators, and encyclopædists were flung, and falling among the embers with a leaden thump, smouldered away to ashes like rotten wood. . . . From Sh— there gushed a flame of such marvellous splendour, that men shaded their eyes as against the sun's meridian glory, nor even when the works of his own elucidators were flung upon him did he cease to flash forth a dazzling radiance beneath the ponderous heaps. It is my belief that he is still blazing as fervidly as ever. . . . The chief benefit to be expected from this conflagration of past literature undoubtedly is that writers will henceforth be compelled to light their lamps at the sun or stars.'

Sh—, Stratford, and recollections of Delia Bacon, pp. 143-193, vol. i.

'Sh— has surface beneath surface, to an immeasurable depth, adapted to the plummet-line of every reader; his works present many phases of truth, each with scope large enough to fill a contemplative mind. Whatever you seek in him you will surely discover, provided you seek truth. There is no exhausting the various interpretations of his symbols; and a thousand years hence a world of new readers will possess a whole library of new books, as we ourselves do, in these volumes old already.'

'The striking peculiarity of Sh—'s mind was its generic quality, its power of communication with all other minds; so that it contained a universe of thought and feeling within itself, and had no one peculiar bias or exclusive excellence more than another. He was just like any other man but that he was like all other men. . . . He not only had in himself the germs of every faculty and feeling, but he could follow them by anticipation intuitively into all their conceivable ramifications through every change of fortune or conflict of passion or turn of thought. . . . He turned the globe round for his amusement, and surveyed the generations of men and the individuals as they passed, with their different concerns, passions, follies, vices, virtues, actions and motives, as well those that they knew, as those which they did not know, or acknowledge to themselves. . . .'

Hermeticall banquet drest by a spagiricall cook for the better preservation of the microcosme. Ln: Printed for Andrew Crooke, 1652. Cr. 8° W

On p. 35 says: 'Poeta . . . prefers all her poor kindred to severall places in the Court. Ovid she makes a major-domo; Homer (because a merry Greek), master of the wine-cellars; Sh—, butler; Ben Johnson, clark of the kitchin; Fenner, his turn-spit; and Taylor, his scullion.'

An odd mixture of alchemy and cookery.

The publisher was William Cartwright, actor and bookseller.

Apology for actors, containing three briefe treatises: I., their antiquity; II., their ancient dignity; III., true use of their quality. Ln: Printed by Nicholas Okes, 1612. Fcp. 4°, sig. A—G4, unpaged CTC

In this tome is to be found the supposed brief conversation with Sh—, the only fragment known, if genuine, of his personal opinion on any subject, if one excepts his dedications, his will, and his tombstone. Yet upon such insecure foundation a few reputed Shakespearean authorities, headed by the forger John Payne Collier (who afterwards withdrew his imputations), have built up an extraordinary tissue of slander and falsehood. Their allegations are remarkable for presumption rather than for judgment, justice, or knowledge, and recoil upon such writers with boomerang effect.

Apology for actors . . . from the edition of 1612, compared with that of W. Cartwright. With introd. and notes [by J. P. Collier]. See Sh—] Sh— Soc.

Hierarchie of the blessed angells: their names, orders, and offices . . . Ln: Printed by Adam Islip, 1635. F°. Illustrated by Marshall, Droeshout, and others

Contains the passage descriptive of the early dramatists:

'Our modern poets to that passe are driven
Those names are curtailed which they first had given
And as we wish to have their memories drowned
We scarcely can afford them halfe their sound.
Greene who had in both academies tane [taken]
Degree of Master, yet could never gaine
To be called more than Robin: who had he
Profest ought, saved the muse, served and been free
With credit too, gone Robert to his grave.
Marlo, renowned for his rare art and wit
Could ne're attain beyond the name of Kit
Altho' his "Hero and Leander" did
Merit addition rather. Famous Kidd
Was called but Tom. Tom Watson (tho' he wrote
Able to make Apollo's selfe to dote
Upon his muse) for all that he could strive
Yet never could to his full name arrive.
Tom Nash, in his time of no small esteeme,
Could not a second syllable redeeme
Excellent Bewmont, in the foremost ranke
Of the rarest wits, was never more than Frank.
Mellifluous Sh— whose inchanting quill
Commanded mirth or passion, was but Will.
And famous Jonson though his learned pen
Be dipt in Castaly, is still but Ben.
Fletcher and Webster of that learned packe
None of the meanest, yet neither was but Jacke.
Decker is but Tom, nor May, nor Middleton
And he's but now Jacke Foord that once were John.
Nor speake I this that any here exprest
Should think themselves lesse worthy than the rest
Whose names have their full syllable and sound.
Or that Franke, Kit, or Jacke are the least wound
Unto their fame and merit. I for my part
(Thinke others what they please) accept that heart
Which courts my love in most familiar phraze.
And think it takes not from my pains or praise
If any one to me so bluntly come
I hold he loves me best that calls me Tom.'

Horn-book [containing the alphabet and our Lord's prayer. Ln: sans printer or place, c. 1590] W 8º: black letter broadside, framed in old oak of the period, faced with a thin translucent sheet of horn: the bottom portion of the frame carved into a handle, after the manner of hand mirrors.

The horn-book thus referred to in Act v., Sc. 1 of 'Love's labours lost': 'Yes, yes; he teaches boys the horn-book,' was the first and most elementary primer for infants in Sh—'s day.

An account of this example will be found in Halliwell's 'Sh— reliques,' 1852, p. 131.

An interesting illustrated history of horn-books has been written by A. W. Tuer.

Some account of them is also to be found in W. Andrews' 'Byegone England,' 1892, pp. 157-162, with an engraving of one.

] Most easie instruction for reading, specially penned for the good of those who are come to yeares, by S. W. A——. [Ln: sans title, place, printer, and date, but c. 1590.] 8°, 2 ll.

Hornby (Mary) Battle of Waterloo: A tragedy. Stratford-upon-Avon, 1819. 8° BPL

'Written in the room which gave birth to my great predecessor, the immortal Sh—.'—Preface.

Miss Hawkins in her 'Anecdotes' thus describes her:—'This Mrs. Hornby, a very decent nurse-like woman in her exterior, appears very singular in mind. She writes and prints plays and verses of her own composition. From the newspapers she made a tragedy of the "Battle of Waterloo," the queerest thing imaginable. . . . Her innocent conceit is the most curious circumstance of her character. Says she has written some beautiful verses on the comet, but not satisfied with them has turned them into a play and made Sh— the comet. She writes a fair hand, and in her style of speaking there is no predominant vulgarity; nothing to distinguish her from her own class. In speaking she always called me "lady," and began the sentence "Lady, I can show you . . ." She spoke of seeing Sh—'s plays, but with no discrimination. Speaking of her children she called them "the little Shakespeares."'

Broken vow: A comedy. Mostly founded on fact. Stratford-upon-Avon: W. Barnacle, 1820. 8°, pp. 100 W

'Written in the house of Sh—'s birth, July, 1820.'

The writer was tenant and show-woman of the birth-house for many years. Her literary ambition soared above her power of fulfilment.

'If Sh— be considered as a man born in a rude age and educated in the lowest manner without any instruction either from the world or from books he may be regarded as a prodigy. If represented as a poet we must abate much of this eulogy. Jonson possessed all the learning wanting in Sh— and wanted all the genius the other possessed. Both of them were equally deficient in taste and elegance, in harmony and correctness. A servile copyist of the ancients, Jonson translated into bad English the beautiful passages of the Greek and Roman authors without accommodating to the manners of his age and country. His merit has been totally eclipsed by that of Sh—, whose rude genius prevailed over the rude art of his contemporary.'

Samuel Ireland was originally a Spitalfields silk weaver, but having a natural taste for the fine arts, forsook that trade and embarked in business as a book-dealer and publisher, himself writing several of the illustrated itineraries he issued. He took a prominent part in the gross forgeries of his son, Samuel Wm. Henry Ireland, and though acquitted of wilful participation by the chief criminal it is difficult to believe him entirely free of blame.

Sixty copies done on large paper, 4°, and some with coloured plates. Lowndes quotes the date 1792 in error (p. 2321).

A considerable portion concerns Sh— and Stratford. Some of the plates rank among the earliest views of Shakespearean spots unaltered since the poet's day.

One scene depicts the ancient farmhouse at Fulbroke, the alleged temporary lock-up in the legendary poaching expedition.

The writer 'navigated down this poetic and enchanting stream attended by a very modest and well-informed man, John Jordan, who is by trade a wheelwright, and possesses considerable knowledge in history and antiquity, and is also no mean poet. . . . It was Jordan who gave S. W. H. Ireland the first information on which he created his visionary falsehood.'—Gentleman's Magazine, Oct., 1800.

Ireland (Samuel William Henry) Miscellaneous papers . . . [Manuscript duplicate set of forgeries]. 1796. 4°, ff. 24 BUS

With a holograph letter by the forger, ending with the phrase:—'Pray excuse this scrawl but I have had another night without a moment's sleep, and am more like a man drunk than in his senses.'

Miscellaneous papers and legal instruments under the hand and seal of Wm. Sh—, including the 'Tragedy of King Lear' and a small fragment of 'Hamlet,' from the original manuscripts in the possession of Samuel Ireland, of Norfolk Street . . . Ln: Cooper & Graham . . . 1796. F°, pp. lxviii.-108-viii. and 26 plates of facsimiles, etc., some in colours

BM | BPL | BUS | CFL | MPL | SML | W

These forgeries by W. H. Ireland, postdated 1796, were issued on Christmas eve, 1795.

Of the 368 copies printed only 138 survived, including 122 to subscribers, some half-dozen as gifts, and the remainder to the State libraries. The forger's youngest sister Jane supervised the destruction of the copperplates and the rending into waste paper of the other 230 copies.

In the original forged manuscripts bought by Mr. Dent, M.P. was a note concerning the suppression of this volume:—'Upon my confessing, the sale of the folio was stopped by my father, nor had the octavo edition made its appearance. . . . In order still further to obliterate I committed to the flames the complete impression of the present reprint reserving no more than the annexed copy which, as a literary curiosity, ranks unique. . . .'

] Miscellaneous papers and legal instruments . . . [Second edition.] Ln: Cooper & Graham . . . 1796. 8°, pp. lii.-156. With folding portrait BUS | CPL | W

The unexpected exposure of these forgeries put an early stop to the sale until Sept., 1814, when a few copies were further disposed of.

In 1871 the extensive library at Warwick Castle narrowly escaped destruction by fire. By the prompt thought of Gregory the butler the books were saved by being pitched through the windows upon the lawn of the inner keep. Many were scorched and battered, but none absolutely destroyed.

Letter to Wm. Sh— [See 'The Drama,' 1822, Vol. 3, p. 28]

At the end of the advt. prefixed to Lintot's edition of the 'Poems,' 1709 [q.v.] it is said 'that most learned prince and great patron of learning, King James I., was pleased with his own hand to write an amicable letter to Mr. Sh—, which letter, though now lost, remained long in the hands of Sir W. D'Avenant, as a credible person now can testify.'

According to a manuscript note by Wm. Oldys in his copy of Fuller's Worthies the 'credible person' was John Sheffield Duke of Buckingham.

Dr. Farmer believed the letter to have been written in return for the compliment paid James I. in 'Macbeth.'

Jeffrey (Francis Lord) Critique of Hazlitt's 'Characters of Sh—'s plays' [In 'Edinburgh Review,' Aug.] 1817. 8° BM | BLO

'More full of wisdom, ridicule and sagacity than all the moralists and satirists that ever existed, he [Sh—] is more wild, airy, and inventive, more pathetic and fantastic, than all the poets of all regions and ages of the world, and has all those elements so happily mixed up in him and bears his high faculties so temperately, that the most severe reader cannot complain of him for want of strength or of reason, nor the most sensitive for defect of ornament or ingenuity. Everything in him is in unmeasured abundance and unequalled perfection, but everything so balanced and kept in subordination as not to jostle or disturb or take the place of another. The most exquisite poetical conceptions, images, and descriptions are given with such brevity and introduced with such skill, as merely to adorn with loading the sense they accompany. Although his sails are purple and perfumed, and his prow of beaten gold, they waft him on his voyage not less but more rapidly and directly than if they had been composed of baser materials. All his excellences, like those of nature herself, are thrown out together, and instead of interfering with, support and recommend each other. His flowers are not tied up in garlands, nor his fruits crushed into baskets, but spring living from the soil in all the dew and freshness of youth; while graceful foliage in which they lurk and the ample branches, the rough and vigorous stem, and the wide spreading roots on which they depend, are present along with them, and share in their places, the equal care of their creator.'

On Sh— [In 'Edinburgh Review.,' Aug., Vol. 18, p. 285]. 1811. 8° BM | BLO

'Our love of Sh— therefore is not a monomania or solitary and unaccountable infatuation, but is merely the natural love which all men bear to those forms of excellence that are accommodated to their peculiar character, temperament and situation, and which will always return and assert its power over their affections, long after authority has lost its reverence, fashions been antiquated, and artificial tastes passed away.'

Jennens was a millionaire grandee of Gopsall Hall, Leicestershire, described by Dr. Johnson as 'a vain fool, crazed by his wealth, who, were he in heaven, would criticize the Lord Almighty; who lives surrounded by all the luxuries of an Eastern potentate—verily an English "Solyman the magnificent"; who never walks abroad without a train of footmen at his heels, and, like Wolsey, with a scented sponge 'neath his nose, lest the breath of the vulgar herd should contaminate his sacred person.'

Prologue spoken by D. Garrick at the opening of Drury Lane theatre, 1747

'When learning's triumph o'er her barbarous foes
First reared the stage, immortal Sh— rose ;
Each change of many-coloured life he drew
Exhausted worlds, and then imagined new.
Existence saw him spurn her bounded reign,
And panting time toiled after him in vain.
His powerful strokes presiding truth impressed,
And unresisted passion stormed the breast.'

Drinking tea one day at Garrick's with Mr. Langton, he (Johnson) was questioned if he was not somewhat of a heretic as to Sh—? Said Garrick, 'I doubt he is a little of an infidel.' 'Sir,' said Johnson, 'I will stand by the lines I have written on Sh— in my prologue at the opening of your theatre.'

Mr. Langton suggested that in the line 'And panting time . . .' Johnson might have had in his eye the passage in 'The tempest' where Prospero says of Miranda: 'She will outstrip all praise and make it halt behind her.'

Johnson said nothing. Garrick then ventured to observe, 'I do not think that the happiest line in praise of Sh—.' Johnson exclaimed, smiling, 'Prosaical rogues! Next time I write I'll make both time and space pant.'—Boswell's Life of Johnson (Langton's notes).

] The Rambler. Ln: J. Payne, 1749-52. 2 vols. F°

In the issue No. 156, 14th Sept., 1751, Johnson wrote, 'Instead of vindicating tragi-comedy by the success of Sh—, we ought perhaps to pay new honours to that transcendent and unbounded genius that could preside over the passions in sport: who, to actuate the affections, needed not the slow gradation of common means, but could fill the heart with instantaneous jollity or sorrow and vary our disposition as he changed his scenes. Perhaps the effects even of Sh—'s poetry might have been greater, had he not counteracted himself; and we might have been more interested in the distresses of his heroes, had we not been so frequently diverted by the jokes of his buffoons.'

Johnstone. Table talker, or brief essays on society and literature. Ln: 1840

Says in Vol. i., p. 183:—'Some men can only acquire knowledge by a careful process of painstaking investigation, while the minds of others descend at once, and with a swoop, as it were, upon the truth of which they are in search. Others again can not only do this, but having grasped the truth they soar upward with it to the highest pinnacles of imaginative loftiness, or beyond these even to the empyrean of thought, where the minds of ordinarily gifted men may not follow them. Of this last class was Sh— the most wonderful of mere men that we know to have ever lived.'

Keate (George) Ferney: An epistle to Mons. de Voltaire. Ln: 1768
The verses begin and end thus:—
'Yes, jealous wits may still for empire thrive,
Still keep the flames of critick rage alive;
Our Sh— yet shall all his rights maintain
And crown the triumphs of Eliza's reign.
O'er the dear vault, ambition's utmost bound
Unheard shall fame her airy trumpet sound,
Unheard alike nor grief nor transport raise
Thy blast of censure, or thy note of praise;
As Raphael's own creation graced his hearse*
And shamed the pomp of ostentatious verse
Shall Sh—'s honours by himself be paid
And nature perish ere his pictures fade.'
* Refers to the fact that Raphael's great picture of the transfiguration did impressive honour to his memory by being carried before his body to the grave.

Letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 18 Feb., 1819
'Sh— led a life of allegory: his works are the comments on it.'

Note on 'Troilus and Cressida,' I., iii.; Marginalia from the Sh— folio of 1807 [In his 'Works,' ed. by H. B. Forman (4 vols.), Vol. iii., p. 254]. 1901. 8° BM | BPL
The genius of Sh— was an innate universality—wherefore he had the utmost achievement of human intellect prostrate beneath his indolent and kingly gaze. He could do easily man's utmost. His plan of tasks to come were not of this world. If what he purposed to do hereafter would not in his own idea 'answer the aim,' how tremendous must have been his conception of ultimates!

Sonnet on sitting down to read 'King Lear' once again [In his 'Life, letters, and literary remains,' ed. by R. M. Milnes, Vol. i., p. 96]. Ln: Moxon, 1848. 2 vols. 8°. With portrait and facsimile
'O golden-tongued romance, with serene lute
Fair plumed syren, queen of far-away!
Leave melodising on this wintry day,
Shut up thine olden pages and be mute.
Adieu! for once again the fierce dispute
Betwixt damnation and impassioned clay
Must I burn through; once more humbly assay
The bitter-sweet of this Shakespearian fruit.

Chief poet! and ye clouds of Albion
Begetters of our deep eternal theme!
When through the old oak forest I am gone
Let me not wander in a barren dream,
But when I am consumèd in the fire
Give me new phoenix wings to fly at my desire.'

Spanish tragedie, or Hieronimo is mad again. Containing the lamentable end of Don Horatio and Belimperia. With the pittiful death of Hieronimo. Newly corrected, amended and enlarged. Ln: W. White for I. White & T. Langley, 1615. Fcp. 4°. With woodcut title

This play closely resembles 'Hamlet,' and is reformed, it is supposed, from an older version (now lost) by the same writer, of 1589 or earlier. The vanished version is thought to have supplied Sh— with material for his greatest tragedy.

The play was the object of much contemporary contumely.

The expressions 'Go by, Jeronimy' and 'In time the savage bull doth bear the yoke' in this play are used by Sh— in 'Taming of the shrew' and 'Much ado' respectively.

'The "Spanish tragedy" bears some similarity to "Titus Andronicus," and points of resemblance to "Hamlet."'—Saintsbury.

Spanish tragedy . . . With new additions as it hath of late been divers times acted. Ln: Augustine Mathewes for Francis Grove, 1633. Fcp. 4°. With woodcut title

Malone attributes the 'Additions' to Ben Jonson, for Henslowe's accounts shew that he received payment for adding to the play about this time.

Epilogue to an amateur performance of 'Richard II.' [In his Works, Vol. v., p. 128]. 1903-04

'In "sad civility" once Garrick sate
To see a play, mangled in form and state;
Plebeian Sh— must the words supply.
The actors all were fools—of quality;
The scenes, the dresses, were above rebuke,
Scarce a performer there below a Duke;
He sate and mused how in his Sh—'s mind
The idea of old nobility enshrined,
Should thence a grace and a refinement have
Which passed these living nobles to conceive
Who with such apish base gesticulation,
Remnants of starts, and dregs of playhouse passion
So foul belied their great forefathers' fashion,
He saw—and true nobility confessed
Less in the high-born blood, than lowly poet's breast.'

Letter to Samuel Rogers, 21st Dec., 1833 [In his Works, Vol. vii.] 1903-04

'I am jealous of the combination of the sister arts. Let them sparkle apart. What injury, short of the theatres, did Boydell's "Sh— gallery" do me with Sh—? To have Opie's Sh—, Northcote's Sh—, light-headed Fuseli's Sh—, heavy-headed Romney's Sh—, wooden-headed West's Sh— (though he did the best in "Lear"), deaf-headed Reynolds' Sh—, instead of my and everybody's Sh—! To be tied down to an authentic face of Juliet! To have Imogen's portrait! To confine the illimitable!

Commences thus:—

'When Sh— leads the mind a dance
From France to England, hence to France;
Talk not to me of time and place,
I own I'm happy in the chase,
Whether the drama's here or there,
'Tis nature, Sh—, everywhere.
The poet's fancy can create,
Contract, enlarge, annihilate,
Bring past and present close together
In spite of distance, seas, or weather,
And shut up in a single action
What cost whole years in its transaction.

Sir Thomas Lucy is popularly supposed to be 'Justice Shallow' in 'King Henry IV., Part ii.,' and again in the 'Merry wives,' Act i., Sc. 1, bearing, in mocking allusion to the surname, 'three louses rampant for his arms.'

The Lucy coat-of-arms exhibits 'three luces hauriant argent' as a distinguishing feature. Sh— writes ('Merry wives'), 'They may give the dozen white luces in their coat,' etc.

Macaulay (Thomas Babington Lord) Essay on the 'Diary of Madame D'Arblay' [In the 'Edinburgh Review,' Vol. lxxvi., pp. 560-561, Jan.] 1843. 8°

'Highest among those who have exhibited human nature stands Sh—. His variety is like the variety of nature, endless diversity, scarcely any monstrosity. The characters of which he has given us an impression, as vivid as that which we receive from the characters of our own associates, are to be reckoned by scores. Yet in all these scores hardly one character is to be found which deviates widely from the common standard and which we should call very eccentric if we met it in real life. The silly notion that every man has one ruling passion, and that this clue once known unravels all the mysteries of his conduct, finds no countenance in the plays of Sh—. There man appears as he is, made up of a crowd of passions, which contend for the mastery over him and govern him in turn. . . . Admirable as he is in all parts of his art we most admire him for this, that while he has left us a greater number of striking portraits than all other dramatists put together, he has scarcely left us a single caricature.'

At Warwick are two copies; one on large paper in original boards, uncut, with a number of manuscript notes and cuttings on the subject; the other with a portrait inserted.
Of the large paper only 25 copies were done, of which one is at Boston, U.S.
This work is of considerable interest because of its facsimiles of the autographs of Sh— and some of his contemporaries—Queen Elizabeth, Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester, Earl of Southampton, Geo. Chapman, Philip Massinger, Richard Burbage, etc.

Mason (William) Caractacus. 1759
'How oft I cried, "Oh come, thou tragic queen!
March from thy Greece with firm, majestic tread,
Such as when Athens saw thee fill her scene
When Sophocles thy choral graces led.

Bring then to Britain's plain that choral throng,
Display thy buskined pomp, thy golden lyre;
Give her historic forms the soul of song
And mingle Attic art with Sh—'s fire!"
"Ah, what, fond boy, dost thou presume to claim?"
The muse replied, "Mistaken suppliant, know,
To light in Sh—'s breast the dazzling flame
Exhausted all Parnassus could bestow.
True, art remains; and if from his bright page
Thy mimic power one vivid beam can seize,
Proceed; and in that best of tasks engage
Which tends at once to profit and to please."'

Massey (Gerald) Secret drama of Sh—'s sonnets unfolded, with the characters identified. Second edition. 1872. 8° BPL
A reprint of 'Sh—'s Sonnets' (by the same author) under a fresh title.
Contains the verses:—
Our prince of peace in glory hath gone,
With no spear shaken, no sword drawn,
No cannon fired, no flag unfurled,
To make his conquest of the world.

. . . . . .
For him no martyr-fires have blazed,
No limbs been racked, no scaffolds raised;
For him no life was ever shed
To make the victor's pathway red.

. . . . . .
And for all time he wears the crown
Of lasting, limitless renown;
He reigns, whatever monarchs fall,
His throne is in the hearts of all!

At page 242 occurs this passage:—

'Sh— is as astonishing for the exuberance of his genius in abstract notions and for the depth of his analytical and philosophical insight as for the scope and minuteness of his poetic imagination.

'It is as if into a mind poetical in form there had been poured all the matter that existed in the mind of his contemporary Bacon. In Sh—'s plays we have thought, history, exposition, philosophy, all within the round of the poet. The only difference between him and Bacon sometimes is that Bacon writes an essay and calls it his own, while Sh— writes a similar essay and puts it into the mouth of a Ulysses or a Polonius.'

The editor, referring to his rival 'Aulicus,' says:—

'His braines have been wonderfully blasted of late and plannet strucke, and he is not now able to provoke the meanest christian to laughter, but lies in a paire of foule sheetes, a wofull spectacle and object of dullnesse and tribulation, not to be recovered by the Protestant or Catholique liquor, either ale or strong beer, sack, claret, hippocras, muscadine, or rosa solis, which has been reputed formerly by his grandfather Ben Jonson, his uncle Sh—, his couzen germains Fletcher and Beaumont, noselesse D'Avenant, and Frier Sherley, the poets, the onely blossoms for the braine, restoratives for the wit, bathing for the nine muses; but none of these are now able either to warme him into a quibble, or inflame him into a sparkle of invention, and all this because he hath profaned the sabbath by his pen.'

Continuing in a further passage—'He [Aulicus] says he barbarously cut his bookes into pieces; those were only some Lady Psalters, Cosins' Devotions, Pockington's Altar, Shelford's Sermons, Sh—'s Workes, and such prelatical trash as your clergymen spend their canonicall houres on.'

This passage shows in what abhorrence Sh— was held by the Puritans and their panegyrists. About the same period Cowley, in satirizing a semi-gentleman of Westminster Hall, wishes he may—

They are, as it were—I put it to suit my present comparison—creatures of the woods and wilds, not in walled towns, not grouped and toned to pursue a comic exhibition of the narrower world of society. . . .'

'A noted school-book,' says Ant. à Wood, 'celebrated for its list, the first printed, of Sh—'s plays, and definitely fixing the fact that six comedies and six tragedies existed in that year, if no earlier.' The volume is a collection of moral and literary reflections and admonitions. In the essay entitled a 'Comparative discourse of our English poets with the Greek, Latin and Italian poets,' he pays high tribute to Sh—, indeed Meres placed Sh— foremost among contemporary men-of-letters. At p. 298 Meres says: 'As the soul of Euphorbus was thought to live in Pythagoras, so the sweet witty soul of Ovid lives in mellifluous and honey-tongued Sh—. Witness his "Venus and Adonis," his "Lucrece," his sugred sonnets among his private friends, etc. As Plautus and Seneca are accounted the best for comedy and tragedy among the Latins, so Sh— among the English is the most excellent in both kinds for the stage. For comedy, witness his "Gentlemen of Verona," his "Errors," his "Love's labours lost," his "Love's labours wonne," his "Midsummer night's dream," and his "Merchant of Venice." For tragedy, his "Richard II.," "Richard III.," "Henry IV.," "King John," "Titus Andronicus," and his "Romeo and Juliet."

'As Epius Stolo said that the muses would speak with Plautus' tongue, if they would speak latin, so I say that the muses would speak with Sh—'s fine filed phrase, if they would speak English.'

'Wits' commonwealth' (or 'Wits' academy'), of which the above work purports to be the continuation, was written by John Bodenham (q.v.)

Milton (John) Epitaph on the admirable dramatic poet, W. Sh— [In Sh—'s Comedies . . .] 1632. F°
'What needs my Sh— for his honoured bones
The labour of an age in piled stones?
Or that his hallowed reliques should be hid
Under a starry-pointing pyramid?
Dear son of memory, great heir of fame,
What need'st thou such dull witness of thy name?
Thou in our wonder and astonishment
Has built thyself a lasting monument;
For whilst to the shame of slow-endeavouring art
Thy easie numbers flow, and that each heart
Hath from the leaves of thy unvalued book
Those Delphic lines with deep impression took,
Then thou our fancy of itself bereaving
Dost make us marble with too much conceiving,
And so sepulchred in such pomp dost lie
That kings for such a tomb would wish to die.'
These lines were repeated, slightly varied, in the 1663-64 and 1685 folio editions of Sh—.

men. . . . Against such a degradation of S—'s character, or of any man's character, it is our duty to protest. On trying to make Sh— more than human, the reckless panegyrist makes him considerably less than human. Instead of the man whose prudence made him rich, whose affectionate nature made him loved almost to idolatry, and whose genius has been the wonder of the world, we are presented with plasticity in the abstract, an object not more interesting than a quarry of potter's clay.'

Newcastle (Margaret Cavendish Duchess of) Two hundred and eleven sociable letters. Ln: 1664. F°

In letter 123 says—'I wonder how that person you mention could either have the conscience or confidence to dispraise Sh—'s plays as to say they were made up only with clowns, fools, watchmen, and the like; but to answer that person—though Sh—'s wit will answer for himself—I say that it seems by his judging or censuring he understands not plays or wit, for to express rightly a fool's humour is as witty as to express the life of kings and princes. . . . Sh— did not want wit to express the life of all sorts of persons of what quality or birth soever, and so well he hath expressed as one would think he had been transformed into everyone of those persons he hath described . . . indeed Sh— had a clear judgment, quick wit, spreading fancy, subtle observation, deep apprehension, and a most eloquent elocution; truly he was a natural orator as well as a natural poet. . . .'

At pp. 291-293 remarks—'A great author is not one who merely has a copia verborum, whether in prose or verse, and can, as it were, turn on at his will any number of splendid phrases and swelling sentences, but he is one who has something to say and knows how to say it. . . . Such pre-eminently is Sh— among ourselves; such pre-eminently is Virgil among the Latins; such in their degree are all those writers who in every nation go by the name of classics.'

Curious for the early metaphorical reference to the stage almost contemporary with the poet. The description occurs in the 'Epistle dedicatory'—

'Foure generations of your honourable family have I seene here upon the stage, successively acting their several parts. Angels and men were the lookers-on and, with great applause, highly commended their true action and generous demeanour. But now, alas! the theater is wholy empted and all the actors quite gone, the stage hourely expected to be pulled down, and if it stand, yet little hope there is that ever our eyes shall see such actors any more upon it to play their parts so commendable as those antients did.'

Important for its reference to an unknown portrait of the poet. A piece entitled 'On Sh—'s monument' opens thus :—

'Old Homer's fancy'd face, a form unknown,
Survives in breathing brass or Parian stone,
While of the mind such images remain
We wish to raise the honour'd shade again.
Immortal wit compels us to admire
The relique rescu'd from devouring fire.
Such Sh— was; from hence invention took
The studious posture and the piercing look.'

* * * *

Following is this note in prose :—

'There is no genuine picture of Sh—. That called his was taken long after his death from a person supposed extremely like him, at the direction of Sir Thomas Clarges.'

The reference in verse clearly relates to the Stratford Church monument; that in prose probably to some painting long since lost sight of.

Pater (Walter Horatio) Appreciations. With an essay on style. Ln: Macmillan, 1889. 8°

On 'Love's labours lost,' 'Measure for measure,' and Sh—'s English kings.

Speaking of 'Love's labours lost,' pp. 174-175, Pater says:—'As happens with every true dramatist, Sh— is for the most part hidden behind the persons of his creation. Yet there are certain of his characters in which we feel that there is something of self-portraiture. And it is not so much in his grander, more subtle, and ingenious creations that we feel this, in 'Hamlet' and 'King Lear,' as in those slighter and more spontaneously-developed figures who, while far from playing principal parts, are yet distinguished by a peculiar happiness and delicate ease in the drawing of them; figures which possess above all that winning attractiveness which there is no man but would willingly exercise, and which resemble those works of art which, though not meant to be very great or imposing, are yet wrought of the choicest material. Mercutio belongs to this group . . . Biron is perhaps the most striking . . . In this character, which is never quite in touch, never quite on a perfect level of understanding with the other persons of the play, we see perhaps a reflex of Sh— himself, when he has just become able to stand aside from and estimate the first period of his poetry.'

Merrie conceited iests . . . wherein is showed the course of his life, how he liued: a man very well knowne in the city of London and elsewhere

Buy, reade, and iudge
The price doe not grudge
It will doe thee more pleasure
Than twice so much treasure.

Ln: Printed for Henry Bell, dwelling in the Little Old Baily in Eliot's Court [1607]. Fcp. 4°, sig. A^1 to D^4 unpaged
Refers to 'Venus and Adonis' on D_2 (verso), and on D_3 says 'For the price of a barrel of beere I have bought a groatsworth of wit,' ridiculing the title of Robert Greene's work.
So far as Peele is concerned, these jests are probably more or less apocryphal. Peele was the City poet, and had the ordering of pageants. He died in or before 1598, as Meres gives the cause in his 'Palladis tamia.' Nash termed Peele the 'chief supporter of pleasance, atlas of poetrie, and primum verborum artifex.'

Pepys (Samuel) Diary and correspondence. With life and notes by Richard Lord Braybrooke. Ln: Bumpus, 1888. 6 vols. Roy. 8°; with portraits BM
On March 1st, 1661-62, Pepys says: 'My wife and I by coach . . . to the Opera, and there saw "Romeo and Juliet" the first time it was ever acted, but it is a play of itself the worst that ever I heard, and the worst acts that ever I saw these people do, and I am resolved to go no more to see the first time of acting, for they were all of them out more or less.'
29th Sept., 1662. 'To the King's Theatre, where we saw "Midsummer night's dream," which I had never seen before, nor ever shall again, for it is the most insipid, ridiculous play that ever I saw in my life.'
28th Dec., 1662. 'To the Duke's House, and there saw "Macbeth" most excellently acted, and a most excellent play for variety. I had sent my wife to meet me there, who did come: so I did go to Whitehall, and got my Lord Bellassis [Belasyse] to get me into the playhouse, and there, after all staying an hour for the players, the King and all waiting, which was absurd, saw "Henry V." well done by the Duke's people, and in most excellent habit, all new vests being put on but this night . . . The play continued till twelve at night; and then up, and a most horrid cold night it was, frosty and moonshine.'
7th Jan., 1666. 'To the Duke's House, and saw "Macbeth," which, though I saw it lately, yet appears a most excellent play in all respects, but especially in divertisement, though it be a deep tragedy, which is a strange perfection in a tragedy, it being most proper here and suitable.'

16th Oct., 1667. 'To the Duke of York's House, and I was vexed to see Young, who is but a bad actor at best, act Macbeth in the room of Betterton, who, poor man, is sick; but Lord! what a prejudice it wrought in me against the whole play, and everybody else agreed in disliking this fellow. . . .'

A life of Sh— occurs in part ii., at p. 194.

The Warwick copy came from the library of Thomas Park, editor of 'Heliconia,' and is enriched with many manuscript notes by him.

The master hand of John Milton may frequently be detected in this production of his elder nephew, more particularly in the descriptions of Sh— and Marlowe.

On p. 194 says, 'Wm. Sh— the glory of the English stage, whose nativity at Stratford upon Avon is the highest honour that town can boast of, from an actor of tragedies and comedies he became a maker; and such a maker, that though some others may perhaps pretend to a more exact decorum and economy, especially in tragedy, never any expressed a more lofty and tragic height, never any represented nature more purely to the life; and where the polishments of art are most wanting, as probably his learning was not extraordinary, he pleaseth with a certain wild and native elegance, and in all his writings hath an unvulgar style as well in his "Venus and Adonis," his "Rape of Lucrece," and other various poems, as in his dramatics.'

Plutarchus. Lives of the noble Grecians and Romanes, compared together . . . Translated out of Greeke into French by James Amyot, Abbot of Bellozane, Bishop of Auxerre . . . and out of French into Englishe by Thomas North. Imprinted

at Ln. by Thomas Vautroullier, dwelling in the Blacke Friers by Ludgate, 1579. F°, sig. *8A—5F6 paged BPL | CTC

'Sh—'s storehouse of learned history.'—Warton.

Sir Thomas North is reputed one of the first great masters of English prose.

To Englishmen these 'Lives,' beside their intrinsic value, possess the special interest of having been Sh—'s chief authority in his great classical dramas. The correspondence between the 'Lives' and the plays is traceable in incident upon incident, personage after personage, and in some places almost line for line, or word for word.

The five plays specially identified with Plutarch are:—'Anthony and Cleopatra,' 'Coriolanus,' 'Julius Cæsar,' 'Midsummer night's dream,' and 'Pericles.' Two others less directly associated are 'Hamlet' and 'Timon.'

Manuscript upon nineteen leaves of paper. 1585-90. Oblong 4° W

A description in detail of this collection (which bears the contemporary autograph of ANNE CORNWALEYS) will be found in Halliwell's 'Sh— reliques, 1852,' page 126.

Poems [Collection of poetry of the time of Charles I., containing upwards of two hundred poems, epigrams, epitaphs, pieces of wit and humour, by F. Atkins, Ben Ionson, Derrick, and others; many unpublished]. Manuscript upon one hundred and five leaves of paper. [Sæc. XVII.] 12° W

Rendered curious and interesting to the Sh— collector by its copy of Corbet's poem on Bosworth Field, differing from the printed editions, and, what is perhaps of greater literary interest, a long epitaph on Burbage, Sh—'s life-long friend, mentioning the characters he impersonated in Sh—'s plays, a list which materially varies from that in the Heber manuscript, printed by J. P. Collier.

A fuller description may be seen in Halliwell's 'Sh— reliques, 1852,' page 29.

Poems [Collection of English poetry of the Stuart period, systematically arranged]. 1625-60. Manuscript upon paper, with two independent paginations of fifty-seven and eighty-seven leaves respectively. Fcp. 4° W

Immediately after an 'Epitaph on Sir W. Ralegh' occurs Basse's famous eulogy 'On Mr. Wm. Sh—' —first printed in Donne's Poems, 1633—but the collection possesses extraordinary interest and curiosity by containing two poetical epitaphs: one—'Epitaph on Sir Edward Standly, ingraven on his tomb in Tong Church,' with the name of Sh— affixed, followed by another—'On Sir Thomas Standly,' also assigned to Sh—.

We have here testimony a quarter of a century earlier than Dugdale to these epitaphs being the productions of Sh—. See Halliwell's 'Sh— reliques, 1852,' p. 32; and Sh— Epitaphs.

Prynne (William) Defence of stage plays, 1649 [reprint]. 1822. 12° BPL

Histrio-mastix: The player's scovrge or actor's tragædie . . . wherein it is evidenced by divers arguments, by concurring authorities . . . of Scripture, of the whole primitive church . . . of fifty-five synodes and councels, of seventy-one fathers and Christian writers . . . and of our oune English statutes, magistrates, vniversities . . . that popular stage-playes, the very pompes of the divell . . . are sinfull, heathenish, lewde, ungodly spectacles, and most pernicious corruptions. Ln: Printed by E. A—— [Elizabeth Allde] and W. I—— [William Jones] for M. Sparke, 1633. Fcp. 4° BM | BPL | BUS

Prynne's unreserved attack herein on 'Women actors' was construed into lèse-majesté, the Queen being about to take part in a pastoral at Somerset House. By writ of rebellion he was summoned before the Court of Star-Chamber on 7 Feb., 1633, and condemned to lose his ears, to be degraded from the legal profession, and to pay £5,000. Sparke the publisher got off more lightly. He paid a fine of £500 and sat in Cheapside pillory.

Curious for its many allusions to the stage and to Sh—. A leaf at p. 708 respecting ladies of quality acting on the stage was ordered by the Privy Council to be cancelled before publication. Prynne says:—'Shakspeere's plaies are printed in [on] the best crowne paper, far better than most Bibles.'—['Address to Christian reader'].

A sketch of the life of Gamaliel Ratsey, a highwayman, hanged at Bedford 26 March, 1605. This sage advice Sh— closely followed in due course. Elsewhere the volume says:—'My conceit is such of thee that I durst all the money in my purse on thy head to play "Hamlet."'

'But that particular which ought to be weighed above all the rest is that the gayest, most polite, and delightful of all genteel pastimes may be said to have absolutely commenced in this [Elizabethan] era of manliness and gravity. This was the stage, which rose under Sh—'s hands to a height of dignity it has never since surpassed. Of all diversions none was received with more approbation and applause; none followed with more appetite and ardour. But the real reason was not because they were dramatic entertainments, but because they were calculated to

Retvrne from Pernassvs, or the scovrge of simony. Publiquely acted by the stvdents in Saint Iohn's Colledge in Cambridge. At Ln: Printed by G. Eld for Iohn Wright and are to bee sold at his shop at Christchurch Gate, 1606. Fcp. 4°, sig. A—I² on 32 unpaged leaves BM | BUS | CTC | W

A dramatic satire which reflects upon the chief poets of the time. Sh— is thus criticised:—

'Who loves Adonis' love or Lucre's rape?
His sweeter verse contains hart-robbing life,
Could but a graver subject him content
Without love's lazy foolish languishment.'

Burbage occurs, instructing a would-be actor in the part of 'King Richard the Third,' and the familiar lines—'Now is the winter of our discontent . . .'—are recited by the pupil as part of his lesson. Subsequently, in a prose dialogue between Sh—'s fellow-actors Kempe and Burbage, Kempe remarks of university dramatists, 'Why, here's our fellow Sh— puts them all down; aye, and Ben Ionson too. O! that Ben Ionson is a pestilent fellow. He brought up Horace, giving the poets a pill, but our fellow Sh— hath given him a purge that made him bewray his credit!' Burbage adds, 'He is a shrewd fellow indeed.'

Elsewhere in the play a poor student enviously complains of the wealth and position which a successful actor derived from his calling—

'England affords those glorious vagabonds
That carried erst their fardles on their backs
Coursers to ride on through the gazing streets,
Sweeping it in their glaring satin suits,
And pages to attend their masterships
With mouthing words that better wits had framed
They purchase lands and now esquires are made.'

Says the character Ingenioso: 'What's thy judgment of Wm. Sh—?'

In the first part Gullio exclaims, 'O sweet Mr. Sh—! I'le have his picture in my study at the Courte.' This expression is remarkable evidence of the existence of the poet's portrait, some years before his death, either in the form of a print or in oils.

This play formed the foundation of Dr. Wild's comedy, 'The Benefice,' issued in 1689.

Philosophical analysis and illustration of some of Sh—'s dramatic characters. Edinburgh, W. Creech; Glasgow, 1774. 8°, pp. iv.-224 CPL
'Macbeth,' 'Hamlet,' 'Jaques,' and 'Imogen.'
'No writer has hitherto appeared who possesses in a more eminent degree than Sh— the power of imitating the passions. All of them seem familiar to him; the boisterous no less than the gentle; the benign no less than the malignant. There are several writers as there are many players who are successful in imitating some particular passions, but who appear stiff, awkward, and unnatural in the expression of others . . . The genius of Sh— is unlimited. Possessing extreme sensibility and uncommonly susceptible, he is the Proteus of the drama; he changes himself into every character and enters easily into every condition of human nature. Many dramatic writers of different ages are capable occasionally of breaking out with great fervour of genius, in the natural language of strong emotion. No writer of antiquity is more distinguished for abilities of this kind than Euripides. His whole art and soul seem torn and agitated by the force of the passion he imitates. He ceases to be Euripides; he is Medea; he is Orestes. Sh—, however, is most eminently distinguished not only by these occasional sallies, but by imitating the passion in all its aspects, by pursuing it through all its windings and labyrinths, by moderating or accelerating its impetuosity according to the influence of other principles and of external events, and finally by combining it in a judicious manner with other passions and propensities, or by setting it aptly in opposition. He thus unites the two essential powers of dramatic invention—that of forming characters; and that of imitating in their natural expressions the passions and affections of which they are composed.'

Roberts (Wm.) Earlier history of English bookselling. Ln: Low . . . 1889. Cr. 8°, pp. xii.-344
'Bookselling in the time of Sh—' fills pp. 46-77. It is disconcerting to find so experienced a writer as Mr. Roberts in the company of less careful scribes. On p. 73 Mr. Roberts says he is 'quite certain that Isaac Jaggard published pirated editions [of Bacon's Essays] in 1606, 1612, 1624.' This is 'confusion worse confounded.' It is fairly well known, and easily ascertainable, that Isaac Jaggard never issued any works, pirated or permissible, of Sir Francis Bacon. His shop, too, was not at the 'Hand and Starre,' and his publications do not include Carew's 'Survey of Cornwall' or Fairfax's 'Godfrey of Bulloigne.' Some of these were the publications of his uncle John, who succeeded Richard Tottell, and one was issued by Elizabeth Jaggard.

Robertson.] Brooke (Stopford A.) Life and Letters of Frederick W. Robertson. Ln: 1886. 2 vols. Cr. 8° BM | BPL
At p. 289, vol. i., says:—'What I admire in Sh—, however, is that his loves are all human, no earthliness hiding itself from itself in sentimental transcendentalism, no loves of the angels, which are the least angelic things, I believe, that float in the clouds, though they do look down upon mortal feelings with contempt . . . Sh— is healthy, true to humanity in this, and for that reason I pardon him even his earthly coarseness. You always know that you are on an earth which has to be refined instead of floating in an empyrean with wings of wax. Therein he is immeasurably greater than Shelley. Shelleyism is very sublime, sublimer a good deal than God, for God's world is all wrong and Shelley is all right; much purer than Christ, for Shelley can criticise Christ's heart and life; nevertheless, Shelleyism is only atmospheric profligacy, to coin a Montgomeryism. I believe this to be one of Sh—'s most wondrous qualities—the humanity of his nature and heart. There is a spirit of sunny endeavour about him and an acquiescence in things as they are, not incompatible with a cheerful resolve to make them better.'

Some account of the life of Mr. Wm. Sh—. See Sh—] Rowe

'The delicacy of his taste and the natural bent of his own genius, equal if not superior to some of the best of theirs [the ancients], would certainly have led him to read and study them with so much pleasure that some of their fine images would naturally have insinuated themselves into and been mixed with his own writings; so that his not copying at least something from them may be an argument of his never having read them. Whether his ignorance of the ancients were a disadvantage to him or no may admit of a dispute, for though the knowledge of them might have made him more correct, yet it is not improbable but that the regularity and deference for them . . . might have restrained some of that fire, impetuosity, and even beautiful extravagance which we admire in Sh—, and I believe we were better pleased with those thoughts altogether new and uncommon which his own imagination supplied him so abundantly with than if he had given us the most beautiful passages out of the Greek and Latin poets, and that in the most agreeable manner that it was possible for a master of the English language to deliver them.'

Rowe (Nicholas) Tragedy of Jane Shore. Written in imitation of Sh—'s style. Ln: Bernard Lintott at the Cross Keys between the two Temple Gates in Fleet St. [c. 1710]. Fcp. 4° W

'In such an age immortal Sh— wrote,
By no quaint rules nor hampering criticks taught,
With rough majestick force he moved the heart,
And strength and nature made amends for art.'

Scott (Sir Walter) Essay on the drama [Article in 'Ency. Brit.']. 1814. 4°

'The English stage might be considered as equally without rule and without model when Sh— arose. The effect of the genius of an individual upon the taste of a nation is mighty; but that genius in its turn is formed according to the opinions prevalent at the period when it comes into existence. Such was the case with Sh—. With an education more extensive and a taste refined by the classical models it is probable that he also, in admiration of the ancient drama, might have mistaken the form for the essence, and subscribed to those rules which had produced such masterpieces of art. Fortunately for the full exertion of a genius as comprehensive and versatile as intense and powerful, Sh— had no access to any models of which the commanding merit might have controlled and limited his own exertions. He followed the path which a nameless crowd of obscure writers had trodden before him, but he moved in it with the grace and majestic step of a being of a superior order, and vindicated for ever the British theatre from a pedantic restriction to classical rule. Nothing went before Sh— which in any respect was fit to fix and stamp the character of a national drama, and certainly no one will succeed him capable of establishing by mere authority a form more restricted than that which Sh— used.'

Sewell (George)] Tragedy of Sir Walter Raleigh as it is acted at the theatre in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields . . . Third edition, corrected. Ln: John Pemberton at the Buck, Fleet St., 1719. 8°, pp. xvi.-64

The epilogue gives imaginary objections of Sh— to the mutilation of his plays:
'Scenes cut and alter'd and miscall'd—his play,
How would the reverend bard regret the shame,
Why thus—To rob my urn, then stab my fame
Should be a sin this learned generous age
Ought to revenge upon the guilty stage.
But if in vain an honest cause I plead
Thus shall my wish and punishment succeed;
Fleckno, the sire of dullness, shall inspire
His sons to scribble, without sense or fire;
Players turn wits, by nonsense rise or fall,
Yet cry out boldly, "——'s blood." We'll stand 'em all.
Thus far for Sh— and our common right,
Now for the author's part, and then—good night!
For I have a request before I go.
Speak plainly:—Is our poet damn'd, or no?
If he is dull, the play perhaps may live,
For wit's a crime we know you can't forgive.'

Jacob Tonson and R. Walker at this period (1734-35) were rival publishers, each claiming the sole privilege of issuing Sh—'s plays and command of the trade-sign 'Sh—'s head.' The serial issues of the competitors' respective editions contained printed notices warning the buying public against the rival's wares. These spirited and defamatory advertisements must have furnished some diversion for onlookers at the time. For instance, an extract from Walker's edition of 'Two gentlemen . . .' runs: 'Concerning J. Tonson and his accomplices . . . each volume of Tonson's may be called a gallimaufrey of scraps and nonsense.'

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.

This tragedy is found in the Jaggard folio of 1623 for the first time, and the first separate edition is Sedley's adaptation of 1677.

It was entered at Stationers' Hall on the 20 May, 1608, thus :—

'Edward Blount. Entred also for his copie by the like auctheritie a booke called "Anthony and Cleopatra, VId." '

Antony and Cleopatra: A tragedy [founded on Sh—]. As it is acted at the Duke's theatre. Written by the Honourable Sir Charles Sedley, baronet . . . Ln: Richard Tonson . . . under Graye's Inne Gate, next Graye's Inne Lane, 1677. Fcp. 4° BPL | W

The list of actors gives Betterton as Antony and his wife as Octavia.

'The only tragedy, except two of Jonson's and one of Sh—'s, wherein Romans speak and do like Romans.' —Shadwell.

[Antony and Cleopatra] All for love; or the world well lost: A tragedy. As it is acted at the Theatre-Royal; and written in imitation of Sh—'s stile. By John Dryden, servant to His Majesty. Ln: In the Savoy, H. Herringman, 1678. Fcp. 4°, pp. xx.-78 BPL | BUS | W

First produced in 1678 at Drury Lane by what was known as the King's Company. It was professedly written in imitation of Sh—'s style, and the author calls it 'the only play he wrote for himself,' all his other dramatic productions having been written to please the prevailing taste of the public. It is generally esteemed by critics as the best of Dryden's theatrical ventures.

ARDEN OF FEVERSHAM.

This play, entered at Stationers Hall 3rd April, 1592, was first issued by Edward White in that year.

[Arden of Feversham] The lamentable and trve tragedie of M. Arden of Feversham in Kent. Who was most wickedlye murdered by the meanes of his disloyall and wanton wyfe; who, for the loue she bare to one Mosbie, hyred two desperat ruffins, Blackwill and Shakbag, to kill him. Wherin is shewed the great mallice and discimulation of a wicked woman, the vnsatiable desire of filthie lust, and the shamefull end of all murderers. Imprinted at London for Edward White, dwelling at the lyttle North dore of Paules Church at the signe of the Gun, 1592. Fcp. 4°, 37 leaves, sig. A to I^1 in fours; black letter

'The only reason for assigning it to Sh— is its merit.'—R. Bayne.
'The possible work of no man's youthful hand but Sh—'s.'—A. C. Swinburne.
In support of the contention that the play is Sh—'s production it should be observed that two syllables from his own name (WILL and SHAK) occur in the cognomens of the characters, and that the title instantly recalls his mother's maiden name.
A copy sold in June, 1907, realised £1,210.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

This comedy first made its appearance in print in the Jaggard folio of 1623, and no separate edition is known before Charles Johnson's adaptation of a century later.

The externals and local colour of the play were largely drawn from the forest of Arden and surroundings of Stratford-upon-Avon.

AUTOGRAPH.

Six indubitably genuine autographs of Sh— exist. They are attached respectively to the Montjoy deposition, 1612-13; Blackfriars deed of conveyance, 1612-13; Blackfriars mortgage document, 1612-13; and his will, 1615-16.

In every other asserted instance of genuineness more evidence is needed before the attributed signatures can be finally accepted or rejected.

[Autograph] Ovidii metamorphoseon . . . Venetiis in ædibus Aldi, 1502. 8° BLO
Bears a contracted signature, 'Wm. Sh—.' The volume was purchased at auction for the Bodleian in or about 1872 by the librarian, Dr. Coxe. At the foot of the page bearing the autograph is this note: 'This little booke of Ovid was given to me by W. Hall, who sayd it was once Will. Sh—'s. [Signed] T. N—, 1682.'
A full account, with facsimiles, is given by W. Carew Hazlitt in his 'Sh—, 1902,' pp. 72-74.

[Autograph] Carion (John) Thre bokes of cronicles . . . Ln: Gwalter Lynne, 1550. Fcp. 4°
The title bears two signatures, 'Wm. Shakespeare' and 'Southampton.' On the verso is a note to the effect that the Earl of Southampton presented the volume to the poet. A second note, signed 'W. S.,' is on the verso of folio LXXXIII., and a third note, signed 'Wm. Shakespeare,' appears on a blank leaf before the 'Table.' An article upon the autographs from the pen of Andrew Lang appeared in the 'Morning Post' of March 27th, 1905, p. 10.

Sh— Autograph . . .
The doubt attached to these signatures was fairly expressed in the sum the volume sold for (£32) in March, 1905.
It appears to belong to the Ireland manufactory.

[Autograph] Saravi (Giovanni) I quattro libri della filosofia. Vinegia: 1565. 8°
The name 'W. Shakespeare' is written twice upon the external vellum cover, and the signatures were first noticed in 1811 by the wife of a Mr. Taylor, who had purchased the volume for sixpence. The autograph corresponds with that in 'Montaigne' at the British Museum.
The volume occurred for sale in 1898, when it realised £102. Perry - Folger.

[Autograph] Booke of common prayer . . . Ln: 1596. Fcp. 4°
Contains three alleged signatures of the poet.
In 1864 a working man took the volume into the shop of John Partridge, bookseller, of Wellington (q.v.), and sold it for eighteenpence. It was re-sold by Partridge in 1865 for £300 to a collector named Rothwell, of Sharples Hall. [See 'N. & Q.,' 10 S. ii., pp. 248 and 332.] See Partridge.

[Autograph] Booke . . . 1596. Photographic copies of several pages of a 'Book of psalms and prayer' which belonged to Sh— and contains his autographs. 1864. Fcp. 4°, pp. 6 BUS

[Autograph] Rastell (Wm.) Collection in English of the statutes now in force from magna charta to XXXV. Queen Elizabeth . . . Ln: T. Wright & B. Norton, 1598. F°
With signature 'Wm. Shakespere' written longitudinally.
The volume, which realised £80 in April, 1904, had been closely compared with genuine signatures of the poet by various experts, and while none would give a definite decision in favour of its authenticity, the consensus of opinion was that it should not be regarded as one of the Ireland forgeries. S/
On the fly-leaf were two signatures of Thomas Bragge, a Stratford contemporary of Sh—.

[Autograph] Mascall. (Leonard) Booke of fishing with hooke and line . . . Ln: Printed by Iohn Wolfe for Edw. White in Paule's . . . 1600. Fcp. 4°
Probably one of Ireland's frauds.
It realised £30 in April, 1907.

[Autograph] Plutarch. Lives of the noble Grecians and Romanes . . . Trans. by Sir Thomas North . . . Ln: R. Field for T. Wight. 1603. F° BUS
Contains a supposed Sh— autograph. For further details see 'Bulletin of Boston Public Library,' 1889, vol. 8, pp. 515-527. See Paton

[Autograph] Montaigne. Essayes . . . Done into English by John Florio. Ln: Printed by Val. Sims for E. Blount, 1603. F° BM
The authenticity of this signature is disputed.
The volume was purchased for the British Museum in 1838. See Catalogue . . . 1838.
A facsimile is given on p. 74 of W. Carew Hazlitt's 'Sh—, 1902.'
'An undoubted autograph of Sh—,' says Lowndes, 'the interest of which is increased by its having been shown that Sh— used Florio's translation of Montaigne in "The tempest, Act ii., Sc. 2."'

Sh— Autograph . . .

[Autograph] True and perfect relation of proceedings at the several arraignments of the late most barbarous traitors [Gunpowder plot] Garnet and his confederates . . . Ln: R. Barker, 1606. Fcp. 4°

With a doubtful signature of the poet.
The volume realised £13 10s. in May, 1905.

[Autograph] Deposition in the suit Bellot v. Mountjoy, entered in the Court of Requests, 1612-13

A contracted signature, quite genuine, attached to a document preserved in the Public Record Office, of which a facsimile is given in 'Harper's Magazine' for March, 1910 [see Wallace], and in 'The Sphere,' 26 Feb., 1910.

[Autograph] Indenture [Vendor's deed of conveyance covering the purchase of a residence on the West side of Saint Andrew's Hill formerly named Puddle Hill, near Ireland Yard, Blackfriars, for £140, dated]. Ln: . . . 10th March, 1612-13

This document, with a veritable signature of Sh—'s, was bought for £145 on the 13th May, 1843, for the Guildhall Library, Ln., where it may now be seen. It is curious that the deed thus sold for £5 more than the property it represented.

[Autograph] Mortgage deed [contracting that sixty pounds of the purchase money of the Blackfriars residence shall remain on mortgage, dated], 11th March, 1612-13

BM

Bears Sh—'s undoubted autograph.
Purchased for the National Museum at J. O. Halliwell's sale, 14 June, 1858, at £315. See Catalogue, 1858.

[Autograph] Robartes (Foulke) Revenve of the gospel in tythes, due to the ministrie of the word, by that word. Cambridge: Printed by Cantrel Legge . . . 1613. Fcp. 4° Seeb "Rylands" MRL

Sh—'s signature herein is one of Ireland's forgeries.

SOMERSET HOUSE

Written on three sheets of paper, each signed by the poet.
These three signatures admit of no doubt as to their genuineness. Critics and Baconians of slight reading or discernment sometimes point to these autographs as the sign manual of an illiterate man, forgetful or ignorant of the fact that they were written hurriedly on his deathbed by the poet; careless, too, of the fact that few writers of Sh—'s output write a clear or legible hand—particularly when using a quill pen.

CARDENIO [otherwise CARDENNA or CARDENNO].

A lost Sh— play. Twice performed by Sh—'s company at court in 1613, in the May marriage celebrations of the Princess Elizabeth, and again on the 8th of June before the Duke of Savoy's ambassador. It is believed to be a dramatised version of an episode in Cervantes' 'Don Quixote,' which appeared in English for the first time in 1612. The piece is found entered in the Stationers' Registers in 1653 by Humphrey Moseley and described as the joint production of Sh— and Fletcher, but beyond this no evidence is forthcoming as to the existence of any printed version.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

Unprinted until it appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623. It is referred to in Gesta Grayorum (q.v.) as having been performed in Gray's Inn in 1594: is mentioned by F. Meres (q.v.) in 1598: and named again by Decker (q.v.) in 1605. The earliest separate edition recorded was issued by J. Tonson in 1734.

CORIOLANUS.

This tragedy appeared in print for the first time in the Jaggard folio of 1623. Nahum Tate's adaptation of 1682 is the first known separate edition, while Tonson's printing of 1734 is the first separate issue with unadulterated text.

[Coriolanus] The ingratitude of a commonwealth, or the fall of Caius Martius Coriolanus. As it is acted at the Theatre-Royal. [Adapted from Sh—] By Nahum Tate. Ln: Printed by T. M—— for Joseph Hindmarsh, 1682. Fcp. 4°, pp. viii.-64 BM | BPL | BUS | W

In the 'Epistle dedicatory' to Charles Marquess of Worcester, Tate says he has 'launch't out in Sh—'s Bottom,' and intends the play as a lesson and rebuke to the political parties of the day.

The fifth act is wholly by Tate.

[Coriolanus] The invader of his country, or the fatal resentment. A tragedy. As it is acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane. By His Majesty's servants. By Mr. [John] Dennis. Ln: J. Pemberton & J. Watts, 1720. 8°, pp. xvi.-80 BPL | BUS | W

Somewhat less than half of the play is from 'Coriolanus.'

This posthumous play was presented 13 Jan., 1749, the leading part being taken by Quin, friend of Thomson. Quin is said to have broken down on reaching these lines in Lyttelton's prologue:—

'Not one unmoral, one corrupted thought,
One line which, dying, he could wish to blot.'

A stage adaptation rather than an alteration, mainly agreeing with Kemble's version (published later), which was probably altered from Sheridan's edition, in turn founded partly on Thomson's.

Coriolanus. An historical play. From the prompt copy of the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane. [Edited by R. W. Elliston.] Ln: J. Tabby, Theatre Royal, 1820. 12°, pp. viii.-62 BM

The play is preceded on p. viii. by an 'Ode of triumph.' The preface deals with the difficulty of staging and costuming this tragedy.

Elliston says:—To represent 'Coriolanus' in its original form would, from the length of the play, be impossible. But though we cannot bring upon the stage all that the great poet has written, there yet appears no just cause for interpolating his text with the works of others. Any alteration but that of omission seems a sin against the majesty of our poet. . . . The 'Coriolanus' of the modern stage is very freely interpolated with extracts from Thomson.

DOUBLE FALSEHOOD.

A double meaning lies in this title. No known record of any kind exists of the play by way of entry, manuscript, printed version, or performance, before Lewis Theobald produced it in 1728 as a precious salvage.

Sh— Double falsehood . . .

The plot is founded upon the story of Cardenio in Cervantes' 'Don Quixote.'

Epitaph on a monument erected to Sir Thomas Stanley, knight, in Tong Church, Salop, c. 1600

Preserved in a collection of epitaphs at the end of Sir Wm. Dugdale's 'Visitation of Salop, 1664,' a manuscript now at the Heralds' College.

'Not monumental stone preserves our fame,
Nor skye-aspiring pyramids our name;
The memory of him for whom this stands
Shall outlive marble and defacer's hands
When all to time's consumption shall be geaven,
Standley for whom this stands shall stand in heaven.
* * *
The west side says:—
'Ask who lyes here but do not weep,
He is not dead, he doth but sleepe;
This stony register is for his bones,
His fame is more perpetuall than stones,
And his own goodness with himself being gone
Shall lyve when earthlie monument is none.'
* * *

In the latter lines is a thought which recurs in 'King Henry VIII.':—
'And when old time shall lead him to his grave
Goodness and he fill up one monument.'

The opening of the second stanza is reminiscent of the verse on John Combe (who lies in Stratford Parish Church chancel), attributed to Sh—:
'If any man ask who lies in this tomb . . .'

Another manuscript version exists (see Poems, 1625-60), written a generation or more before Dugdale, which also attributes these lines to Sh—.

Sh— [Epitaph] Upon one John Coombe of Stratford-upon-Aven, a notable usurer, fastened upon a tombe, that he had caused to be built, in his life-time [1614]:

'Ten in the hundred the devil allows,
But Combe will have twelve he sweares and he vowes;
If any man asks, who lies in this tomb?
"Oh, ho!" quoth the devil, "'tis my John-a-Combe."'

[See Parrot (Hy.) Epigrams, 1608; Camden's Remaines, 1614; R. Brathwaite's Remains, 1618; and Aubrey's Lives, ed. by Clark II., 226].

Rowe's version differs in the opening lines, thus:—
'Ten in the hundred lies here engraved,
'Tis a hundred to ten his soul is not saved. . . .'

The inscription engraved on the tomb is given in Wheler's History of Stratford, 1806, pp. 70-71.

Epitaph on Sh—'s tomb, 1616, supposed to be written by himself [Set to music]. Composed at Coughton Court, Warwickshire. 1801. F° BPL

The well-known curse-verse which has effectually protected the poet's grave for three centuries:—
'Good frend for Iesvs' sake forbeare
To digg the dvst encloased heare,
Blese be ye man yt. spares thes stones,
And curst be he yt. moves my bones.'

No true Shakespearean believes the poet capable of having written this doggerel, but he may have expressed a dying wish that his resting place should be undisturbed by sacrilegious sextons. Until about 1800 it was a too-common custom to remove human remains to the charnel house adjoining Trinity Church, and there burn them.

Epitaph on Elias James [In a manuscript volume of poems by W. Herrick and others, temp. Charles I. Rawlinson Collection, c. 1625] BLO

'When God was pleas'd, the world unwilling yet,
Elias James to nature payd his debt,
And here reposeth: As he liv'd he dyde,
The saying in him strongly verified,
Such life, such death: Then the known truth to tell,
He liv'd a godly life and dyde as well.'—Wm. Sh—.

FAIRE EM.

Attributed to Sh—, to Robert Greene, Thomas Lodge, and Robert Wilson respectively.

'In "Faire Em," says Charles Knight, 'we look in vain for all that sets Sh— so high above his contemporaries: his wit, humour, poetry, philosophy, intimate knowledge of man, and his exquisite method.'

It can hardly be Greene's work, seeing that the author is ridiculed and attacked in Greene's 'Farewell to folly,' 1591.

It is clearly the product of some prentice hand, and in places bears a rough resemblance to 'Love's labours lost,' particularly in Act I., Sc. iv., where lovers, talking aloud to themselves, are overheard.

The play is remarkable as being the first to mention Liverpool and Manchester.

In Act III., Sc. iv. it says:—'Since fortune hath thus spitefully crost our hope let vs leaue this quest and harken after our King who is at this daie landed at Lirpoole.'

The earliest issue known is the undated quarto printed for T. N—— and I. W—— [John Wright] circa 1605.

It was first staged in or about 1590 by a company to which Sh— was attached, whose patron was Lord Strange [Ferdinando fifth Earl of Derby].

'In this same year [1590] was produced a play ["Faire Em"] in which although I cannot detect Sh—'s hand as coadjutor with its probable author, R. Wilson, he most likely appeared as an actor. "Faire Em" is the earliest play we certainly know of which was acted by Lord Strange's Company. It is alluded to by Robert Greene [the profligate parson], to whom it gave offence, in the address to his "Farewell to folly." '—F. G. Fleay.

The library of K. Charles II. contained a copy bound up with 'Mucedorus' and lettered 'Shakespeare, Vol. I.'

Phillips, Dyce, and Winstanley attribute the authorship to Greene. Richard Simpson argues that Sh— wrote it as an allegorical attack on Greene and his school. He tries to prove that William I. represents Wm. Kempe, who took a company to Denmark, that Mountney stands for Marlowe, Manwile for Greene, and the successful Valingford for Sh—, while Faire Em symbolises the Manchester public.

F. G. Fleay agrees in the main with Simpson, but regards R. Wilson as the author, Valingford as Peele, and Faire Em as typifying the company of Queen's players.

HAMLET.

Popularly accepted as the greatest play ever written. The earliest known printed version (which has barely survived the passage of time) is that of 1603, printed by N. L—— [Nicholas Ling] and published by John Trundell. It contains far fewer lines than subsequent issues. Four allusions given by Elizabethan writers prove, however, that an earlier tragedy under the same title was known to them in or before 1598.

[Hamlet] The Tragicall Historie of Hamlet, Prince of Denmarke. By William Shakespeare. As it hath beene diuerse times acted by his Highnesse seruants in the Cittie of London: as also in the two Vniuersities of Cambridge and Oxford, and else-where. [Honeysuckle device.] At London: Printed for N. L—— [Nicholas Ling] and Iohn Trundell, 1603. Fcp. 4°, thirty-three unpaged leaves; sig. B to I⁴ in fours BM | DEVON

This immortal tragedy was first entered at Stationers Hall, 26th July, 1602, by James Roberts. Thus runs the entry:—'A booke called the Revenge of Hamlett, Prince [of] Denmark, as yt was latelie Acted by the Lord Chamberleyne his servantes, VId.'

The British Museum copy lacks the title-page, but is interleaved, and contains MS. notes by J. O. Halliwell, along with printed extracts from subsequent editions.

The sole other copy known lacks the final leaf, and is in the Devonshire Library.

An atmosphere of romance surrounds these surviving copies. Until within so recent a period as 1856 the only known copy of the original 1603 'Hamlet' was that named the 'Devonshire' copy, bound up with twelve other old plays, bought by the Duke in 1825. It formerly belonged to Sir Thomas Hanmer (q.v.) From his library it passed eventually to the old book firm of Payne and Foss for £180, and thence to the Duke of Devonshire for £250, although it lacked the last leaf. From the 'Devonshire' copy William Nicol prepared a careful and accurate reprint, minus the final leaf. Over thirty years passed, until one day a Nottinghamshire youth, studying at Trinity College, Dublin, entered the shop of M. W. Rooney, a Dublin bookseller, with some old books for sale. Among these reposed another copy (unbound) of the 'unique' 1603 Hamlet, this time lacking the title-page, but possessing the priceless last leaf. Rooney secured the copy for one shilling, reprinted the last leaf, and then sold the volume for £70 to Boone, a London bookseller, from whom J. O. Halliwell bought it for £120, and transferred it to the British Museum at a further advance, where it now rests for aye. Rooney asserted the initials of the publisher, N. L., stood for Nicholas Landure (not Ling, as is generally supposed). Landure's name does not occur in Arber's Index.

Reproduced by Payne and Foss, 1825; by Collier, 1858; by Timmins, 1860; by Ashbee, 1866; and several times subsequently.

Fcp. 4°, fifty-one unpaged leaves, including title; sig. B to O² (the latter erroneously marked G²) DEVON | HUTH

Some passages in this version are omitted from the Jaggard folio of 1623. Together the two foregoing editions form the standard text of 'Hamlet.'

Three copies only are known. Apart from the two quoted, the third copy, from Earl Howe's collection at Gopsall, passed to an American collector in Dec., 1907, along with thirteen other early quartos, at a ransom said to be in the neighbourhood of £10,000. The size of the Howe example is 7 by 5in., bound in modern half blue morocco, and on the title occurs this manuscript addition, in an old hand, following the name WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE: 'Who (with some errors not to be avoided in that age, had undoubtedly a larger soule of poesie then for any of our nation) was the first who, to shun ye pain of continuall rhyming, invented that kinde of writing which we call blanch verse, but ye French more properly prose mesurée, into which the English tongue so naturally falls.'

These are the well-known words of Dryden (q.v.), and it would be easy for the present owner to ascertain whether the handwriting is his.

This edition is supposed to be that entered on the Stationers' Registers, 19th Nov., 1607.

On the contrary, Heber, Thomas Rodd, and George Daniel assigned it to the years 1636-1637, but the distinctive spelling, 'I' for J and 'V' for U, had practically passed out of common use years before that period. No other edition is known which at all coincides with the official entry, presuming publication really took place.

[Hamlet] The Tragedy of Hamlet Prince of Denmark. London: Iohn Smethwicke, 1609. Fcp. 4°

The existence at any time of this edition is doubtful. On the strength of Lowndes' entry of an issue bearing this date, Halliwell inserted it in his 'Shakespeareana, 1841,' but apparently no one has ever seen a copy.

JULIUS CÆSAR.

This tragedy is believed to have made its first appearance in type in the Jaggard canon of 1623. No separate edition is known before that issued by Hy. Herringman of 1680, though an earlier play under the same title, written by Wm. Alexander, came out in 1604.

Julius Cæsar [Manuscript, c. 1660]. 8° W

The earliest known manuscript of this play, and transcribed, probably from an old playhouse copy, in the reign of K. Charles II. It occupies sixty-seven pages of a volume of manuscript poetical miscellanies, numbering in all eighty-six leaves. The last scene of the fifth act is missing. This manuscript exhibits so many departures from all the known printed editions that it is safe to assume it was transcribed from some independent version. To judge by a technical direction, 'Pindarus descends,' in the fifth act, it is almost certainly copied from a prompter's copy long since lost. The first and larger part of the volume, including the 'Julius Cæsar,' clearly belongs to the restoration period; but the last portion is in a later hand.

A prefixed note in the autograph of J. O. Halliwell, dated 1870, reads:—'Presented to the library at Warwick Castle, where are preserved, now this volume is added, all known manuscript copies of Sh—'s plays written before the close of the seventeenth century.'

KING EDWARD THE THIRD.

This anonymous play, licensed at Stationers' Hall the first of Dec., 1595, was first issued by Cuthbert Burby in 1596. It is thought to be the work of Christopher Marlowe, assisted by Sh—.

[King Edward III.] The Raigne of King Edward the third: as it hath bin sundrie times plaied about the Citie of London. Ln: Printed for Cuthbert Burby, 1596. Fcp. 4°; sig. A to K² unpaged BM | CTC | W

Published anonymously, and attributed to Sh—.

'That it was indeed written by Sh— it cannot be said with candour that there is any external evidence at all. Something of proof arises from resemblance between the stile of his earlier performances and of the work in question, and a more conclusive one yet from consideration of the time it appear'd in, in which there was no known writer equal to such a play.'—Capell.

'If the play is not Sh—'s, as the English critics maintain, then truly it is a disgrace to them not to have done anything to rescue from forgetfulness this second Sh—, this twin brother of their great poet.'—Ulrici.

The parts which perhaps most resemble the work of such a pen as Sh—'s are the various speeches introduced, and the scene in which the king is spurned by the Countess of Salisbury.

The plot is taken from Holinshed's Chronicles and Painter's 'Palace of pleasure.'

KING HENRY THE FOURTH; FIRST PART.

The first known edition is that of 1598, printed by P. S. [Peter Short] for Andrew Wise, and no fewer than six separate editions were issued before the play appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623. A coeval version in writing also exists, the only contemporary manuscript known to survive.

[King Henry IV., i.] The History of Henrie the Fovrth; With the battell at Shrewsburie, betweene the King and Lord Henry Percy, surnamed Henrie Hotspur of the North. With the humorous conceits of Sir Iohn Falstalffe. [Device.] London: Printed by P. S—— [Peter Short] for Andrew Wise dwelling in Paules Churchyard at the signe of the Angell, 1598. Fcp. 4°, forty unpaged leaves; sig. A to K4 in fours BM | CTC | DEVON

For long this was accepted as the editio princeps, but Halliwell announced in 'The Athenæum,' Jan., 1875, that he had found a fragment of an earlier edition, fcp. 4°, the headline reading, 'The hystorie of Henry the fourth.' [See Halliwell's 'Catalogue of Sh— study books, 1876,' p. 18.]

This fragment, however, may be only a cancelled proof of the 1598 issue.

The edition was reproduced by Halliwell in 1861.

The British Museum copy is imperfect, lacking signs. E4 and K4.

[King Henry IV., i.] The History of Henrie the Fovrth; With the battell at Shrewsburie, betweene the King and Lord Henry Percy, surnamed Henry Hotspur of the North. With the humorous conceits of Sir Iohn Falstalffe. Newly corrected by W. Shake-speare. [Device.] At London: Printed by S. The Bodleian copy lacks leaf C1.

[King Henry IV., i.] The History of Henry the fourth. With the battell at Shrewseburie, betweene the King, and Lord Henry Percy, Surnamed Henry Hotspur of the North. Augustines gate, at the signe of the Foxe, 1608. Fcp. 4°, forty unpaged leaves; sig. A[1]—K4, in fours BM | BLO | DEVON | W

The Warwick copy has the last leaf in facsimile, and bears the autograph of 'John Cooper, 1688,' and another, 'Mr. Thomas Middleton, Esq., of Silksworth,' of the same period.

The British Museum possesses one of the two perfect copies known.

A copy in July, 1905, realised £1,000.

paper, fifty-five leaves, with blank preliminary leaf, c. 1610]. F° W

The sole contemporary manuscript of any of Sh—'s literary productions known to survive. Presumably it is in the holograph of Sir Edward Deryng or Dering, of Surrenden, Kent, who died in 1644, and, conjecturally, transcribed from Sh—'s own MS., or some coeval playhouse copy, as no known printed copy contains its various corrections and alterations. This almost priceless relic was discovered among the charters and papers of the present baronet at Surrenden in 1844, just two centuries after the original owner's death.

It is particularly interesting as showing that private performances existed at this period. This is proved by two lists of dramatis personæ in the 'Spanish curate' in the manuscript, the characters being sustained by Kentish gentlemen of the day.

Possibly Surrenden then possessed its own stage, for which this transcript may have been intended.

It was first printed in 1845 by the Sh— Soc. [q.v.]

In 1843, a year before this discovery, a unique playhouse manuscript (c. 1660) of the 'Merry wives' was secured by Halliwell from bookseller Rodd. This was accepted as the earliest Sh— play in manuscript until the foregoing occurred.

Sir Ed. Dering was the author of 'Godly private prayers,' published by Isaac Iaggard in 1624.

[King Henry IV., i.] The History of Henrie the fourth. With the Battell at Shrewseburie, betweene the King and Lord Henrie Percy, surnamed Henrie Hotspur of the North. At the date of printing there were three printers in business whose initials tally with W. W——, i.e., William Welby, William White, and William Wright, jun.

This edition supplied the text for the Jaggard canon of 1623.

One of the two copies in the British Museum bears the autograph of George Steevens on the title-page. The other exhibits variations at sig. H1, line five from foot, and at sig. H_4 verso, line four, apparently corrections made after issuing the preliminary copies.

The last mentioned lacks the original last leaf, which is supplied in manuscript.

KING HENRY THE FOURTH: SECOND PART.

The first edition known is that printed by V. S—— [Valentine Sims] for Andrew Wise and William Aspley in 1600, of which two varying issues exist. Apparently no subsequent impression appeared until that of 1623 in the Jaggard canon.

[King Henry IV.: part ii.] The Second part of Henrie the fourth, continuing to his death, and coronation of Henrie the fift. With the humours of sir Iohn Falstaffe, and swaggering Pistoll. As it hath been sundrie times publikely acted by the right honourable, the Lord Chamberlaine his seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. [Ornament.] London: Printed by V. S—— [Valentine Sims] for Andrew Wise, and William Aspley, 1600. Fcp. 4°, forty-three leaves unpaged; sig. A to L^2 in fours, except sheet E, which consists of six leaves

BM | BLO | CTC | DEVON | HUTH

In the earliest copies struck off the compositor omitted the entire first scene of the third act. To rectify this blunder sheet E (four leaves) was reprinted upon six leaves, and the deficiency made good. One of the two copies in the British Museum contains the autograph of George Steevens.

When the play appeared in the Jaggard folio of 1623 it received considerable and important additions.

Reproduced by Halliwell in 1866.

A copy of the first issue realised £1,035 in April, 1904.

In July, 1905, a copy realised £500. The title was missing and supplied in manuscript, the top corner of one leaf defective, and some headlines shaved. The collation tallied with the 1600 issue, and the written date may therefore have been an error. No other record of this edition is extant.

Sh—] KING HENRY THE FIFTH.

The first known edition is that printed by 'Thomas Creede for Thomas Millington and John Busby, 1600,' which was unregistered at Stationer's Hall. This reappeared in 1602, and in 1619; the latter with the fictitious date of 1608. This last quarto gives a total of eighteen hundred lines only, as compared with three thousand five hundred in the next printing of this play in the Jaggard folio of 1623.

Hill created a famous phrase. After handsomely acknowledging his indebtedness to the poet in the above adaptation, he remarked that 'Shakespeare spelt ruin to theatrical managers.' This dictum passed into a truism, to be repeated by successive generations of managers for nearly two centuries. The end of the 19th century witnessed a change. New men and methods restored Sh— to his rightful position on the throne of the English drama.

Sh— King Henry the fifth . . .

Hill attacked the fashionables of his day for their devotion to the ballet, for 'wit in the heels rather than in the head.' Much the same criticism applies to-day to the masses which frequent music halls and football fields.

KING HENRY THE SIXTH; SECOND PART.

Believed to have first appeared in its entirety in the Jaggard folio of 1623. It is mainly a revision of the 'First part of the contention' issued in 1594. The second and third parts of 'King Henry VI.' were published together in 1619 under the title of 'The whole contention . . .' [printed by Isaac Jaggard for Thomas Pavier]. In this play Sh— makes a curious slip, which turned out an accurate forecast, in referring to 'all the wealthy kingdoms of the west.'

Sh— King Henry the sixth . . .

[King Henry VI.: part ii.] The First part of the Contention betwixt the two famous Houses of Yorke and Lancaster, with the death of the good Duke Humphrey: and the banishment and death of the Duke of Suffolke and the Tragicall end of the proud Cardinall of Winchester, with the notable Rebellion of Jacke Cade: and the Duke of Yorkes first claime vnto the Crowne. [Device.] Ln: Printed by Thomas Creede, for Thomas Millington, and are to be sold at his shop vnder Saint Peter's Church in Cornwall [Cornhill], 1594. Fcp. 4°; sig. A¹ to H⁴ in fours, on thirty-two unpaged leaves BLO | BUS

There are two varying impressions of this issue, one showing differences in spelling and punctuation from the other in the title.

The date and device are repeated at the end of the play. It was reprinted by the Sh— Soc. in 1843 under the editorship of J. O. Halliwell (q.v.); in Halliwell's folio ed. of the Works, 1853; and in the Cambridge ed., 1863-66.

The copy, which changed hands in June, 1907, for £1,910, represents the topmost financial tide-mark for an early quarto sold publicly so far, but that sum has been exceeded privately. [See Sh— Passionate pilgrim, 1599; also Sh— Titus Andronicus, 1594.]

KING HENRY THE SIXTH; THIRD PART.

The version in the Jaggard folio of 1623 is accepted as the earliest in print. It largely consists of the 'True tragedy . . .' of 1595 in revised form.

An adaptation in separate shape came out in 1723, but the first unspoilt separate text was issued by Tonson in 1734.

KING JOHN.

A manuscript or playhouse copy of this tragedy existed in or before 1598, yet no printed version is known before it appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623. An inferior but somewhat similar play, called "The troublesome raigne of King Iohn" (attributed to Christopher Marlowe), appeared in 1591, 1611, and 1622. The earlier play was undoubtedly made use of by Sh— in shaping his own drama on the same subject.

[King John] The Troublesome Raigne of John King of England, with the discouerie of King Richard Cordelion's Base Sonne (vulgarly named The Bastard Fawconbridge): Also the Death of King Iohn at Swinstead Abbey. As it was (sundry times) publikely acted by the Queene's Maiesties Players in the honourable Citie of London. [Device.] Imprinted at London for Sampson Clarke, and are to be solde at his shop on the backe-side of the Royall Exchange, 1591. Fcp. 4°; sig. A^{1} to G^{4} on twenty-eight unnumbered leaves; black letter CTC

The title of this first part, an anonymous issue, was closely followed in succeeding editions bearing Sh—'s name. It was reprinted in Hazlitt's ' Sh—'s library.'

Only one perfect copy known.

[King John] The Second part of the troublesome Raigne of King Iohn, conteining the death of Arthur Plantaginet, the landing of Lewes and the poysning of King Iohn at Swinstead Abbey. As it was (sundry times) publikely acted by the Queenes Maiesties Players, in the honourable Citie of London. A reprint of the 1611 edition, according to George Steevens, with slight changes. The second part has an independent title-page:—

' The Second Part of the Troublesome Raigne of King Iohn. Containing the entrance of Lewis the French King's Sonne: with the Poysoning of King Iohn by a Monke. Written by W. Shakespeare. London . . . 1622.'

Although stated to be ' Written by W. Shakespeare,' this is not his work, but the third edition of the older ' King John,' probably by Marlowe, which forms the basis of Sh—'s finer conception.

In April, 1907, a copy realised £80. In Dec., 1907, the Howe copy, 7⅞ by 5in., sold for £60.

KING LEAR.

The 1608 impression of this tragedy issued by Nathaniel Butter, bearing his business address, is accepted as the first edition. An anonymous play entitled 'The true chronicle history of King Leir,' published three years earlier, together with William Warner's 'Albion's England,' printed in 1592, furnished Sh— with essentials.

It was entered thus at Stationer's Hall: 26 Nov., 1607. Nathanael Butter, John

Of extreme rarity. This is the oldest known impression, although acted at the Rose Theatre as early as 1593.

As the precursor of Sh—'s tragedy on the same subject, and a play which he must have known and used, its great interest is palpable.

The date 1608 is fictitious (for fuller particulars see A. W. Pollard's 'Sh— folios and quartos'). The real year of issue was 1619.

It was reprinted by Steevens in 1766, who observed, 'There is besides this edition a third of the same year (1608), which with that published by Jane Bell in 1655 is but a copy from the first, and retains even the printer's errors.' It was also reprinted by Halliwell in 1867, and by Daniel in 1885.

At the Bodleian is a copy, lacking the title, which exhibits variations from other examples. In May, 1906, one measuring 7 by 5¼ in. sold for £395, while Earl Howe's copy, in Dec., 1907, realised £200.

[King Lear] The history of King Lear. Acted at the Duke's Theatre. Reviv'd with alterations. By Nahum Tate. Ln: Printed for E. Flesher and are to be sold by R. Bentley and M. Magnes in Russel Street near Covent Garden, 1681. Fcp. 4°, pp. 68 BPL | BUS | W

The changes mainly consist of threading 'through the whole a love between Edgar and Cordelia,' and ending the play with their marriage and Lear's triumph. The part of the Fool is entirely omitted. Addison protested against this outrage on Sh—, and Johnson defended it on the ground of poetical justice, as his feelings were too much agitated by the death of Cordelia.

The epilogue says:—

'But still so many master-touches shine,
Of that vast hand that first laid this design,
That in great Sh—'s right, he's bold to say,
If you like nothing you have seen to-day,
The play your judgment damns, not you the Play.

King Richard the second; an historical play. Adapted to the stage, with alterations and additions, by Richard Wroughton. And published as it is performed at the Theatre-Royal, Drury Lane. Ln: John Miller, 1815. 8°, pp. 72 BM | BPL | BUS | SML | W

The following passage, from the preliminary advertisement, is noteworthy:—'The play of "Richard the second" has been hitherto neglected by the managers of the London theatres, being considered too heavy for representation. As it stood it certainly was so, and might also be felt as bordering too much on the mono-drama. That so exquisite a production of our immortal bard should not grace, among his other works, the boards of our national theatres was almost theatrical treason. The present attempt has been made by a few alterations and additions (and those taken from the writings of Sh—) to rescue it from neglect. Whoever is curious may find the introduced passages in the plays of "Henry the sixth," "Titus Andronicus," and "King Lear"; other lines are here and there necessarily interpolated. The event has justified the deed, and, like Colley Cibber's alteration of "Richard the third," now acted at both theatres, the tragedy of "Richard the second" will also most probably long keep possession of the English stage. It has likewise given an opportunity of fully evincing the complete powers and distinguished judgment of a young actor, Mr. Kean, whose merit is deservedly rewarded by the loudest plaudits of a discriminating publick.'
The cast includes Kean as 'Richard II.'

KING RICHARD THE THIRD.

Of Sh—'s tragedy no issue is known earlier than the anonymous one 'printed by Valentine Sims for Andrew Wise,' which was registered at Stationer's Hall, 29th Aug., 1597, and published immediately after, but an inferior 'True tragedie of Richard the third,' also anonymous, had appeared some three years earlier, from the press of Thomas Creede.

[King Richard III.] The true Tragedie of Richard the Third, wherein is showne the Death of Edward the Fourth, with the Smothering of the two yoong Princes in the Tower. With a Lamentable Ende of Shore's Wife, an example for all wicked women; and lastly the Coniunction and ioyning of the two noble Houses of Lancaster and Yorke. As it was playd by the Queene's Maiesties Players. London: Printed by Thomas Creede and are to be sold by William Barley at his shop in Newgate Market neare Christ Church doore, 1594. Fcp. 4°

This anonymous play was unquestionably used by Sh— in preparing his own production on the subject. It was reprinted in 1844 by the Sh— Soc., and edited by Barron Field; some years later facsimiled by E. W. Ashbee for J. O. Halliwell; and again by Hazlitt in his Sh—'s library, 1876.

No known copy is available in any public collection.

In making up the forme for the inner side of sheet G, the compositor apparently got confused, as the second and seventh pages were made to change places with the sixth and third. The sheet was then folded to bring the catchwords in order. Consequently the signatures should run in this curious order to be correct: G, G3 verso, G2, G4 verso, G3, G verso, G4, and G2 verso.

This volume temporarily supplanted the Jaggard folio on the 12th July, 1905, by achieving the record price up to that date ever paid for a piece of English literature. It was secured for the United States at £1,750, being an advance of £30 on the figure given for the 1623 folio in 1901. It may be described as almost priceless, being the sole known copy still possessing freedom outside two English public libraries. It bears five autographs of Wm. Penn, believed to be Admiral Penn, father of the founder of Pennsylvania.

Life and death of Thomas Lord Cromwell. See Sh— Thomas . . .

LOCRINE.

This tragedy is first found entered on the Stationers' Registers 22nd July, 1594, and was printed in the following year by Thomas Creede, under the initials of 'W. S.' The play was not definitely claimed as Sh—'s until introduced in the Chetwynde folio, 1663-64.

The authorship has been attributed to Charles Tilney.

It bears some likeness to the characteristic style of Greene and Peele. Passages found in 'Selimus' are also found repeated in 'Locrine' with slight alteration.

Sh—'s connection with the composition probably amounted only to general oversight or editorship.

'The London Prodigal . . . written and perhaps acted at the Globe this year [1604] . . . Its publication was unlicensed and surreptitious . . . in 1605, with the name of Wm. Sh— on the title-page. This surely shows some connection of Sh— with the authorship. It is true that in 1600 his name had been attached to "Sir John Oldcastle" . . . and he could not have written that play . . . but the peculiar relation in which it stands to his historical plays places it in a very different category from a play which was acted by his own company, and over the publication of which he may be supposed to have had some control, direct or indirect. Perhaps he "plotted" it. It should be noticed that the publisher, Butter, was the same man who issued the quarto "King Lear" in 1608, which was certainly derived from an authentic copy, however carelessly printed.'—F. G. Fleay.

The printer's emblem is the motto 'Viressit vulnere veritas,' in an oval enclosing the figure of truth receiving a birching. This emblem was used on the title of the first edition of Spenser's 'Colin Clouts come home againe, 1595.'

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

Of this comedy no edition is known earlier than the version in the Jaggard canon of 1623. Two adaptations followed, in 1673 and 1700 respectively. The first separate unaltered issue of the play was published by Jacob Tonson in 1734.

Pages 47-48 are erroneously paged 39-84.

From Davenant 'Gildon has borrowed whatever suited him without acknowledgment.'—Geneste. English stage, vol. II, p. 221. He has left out the parts of 'Much ado . . .' and introduced the 'Loves of Dido and Æneas: A mask.'

The prologue and epilogue were written by Oldmixon.

An account of this issue may be seen in 'The Athenæum,' No. 3994.

George Steevens stated this to be 'the only alteration of the play,' quite ignoring Davenant's adaptation. Kemble's revision of 1815 must also not be lost sight of.

Of this comedy two differing editions exist, each dated 1600. The first was printed by I. R—— [James Roberts] on behalf of Thomas Heyes, and the second, said to be 'printed by James Roberts, 1600,' was really prepared and issued in 1619.

The play was originally registered at Stationers' Hall, 22nd July, 1598, but apparently not proceeded with. It was freshly entered 28th Oct., 1600, when Heyes published it.

The two entries read as follow :—

'22nd Jul. 1598 . . . James Roberts. Entred for his copie vnder the handes of bothe the wardens, a booke of the "Marchaunt of Venyce, or otherwise called the Jewe of Venyce." Prouided that yt bee not prynted by the said James Robertes or anye other whatsoeuer without lycence first had from the Right honorable the lord Chamberlen . . . VId.'

'28 Oct. 1600. Thomas Haies. Entred for his copie vnder the handes of the wardens and by consent of master Roberts, a booke called the booke of the "Merchant of Venyce" . . . VId.'

[Merchant of Venice] The most excellent Historie of the Merchant of Venice. With the extreame cruelties of Shylocke the Iewe towards the sayd Merchant, in cutting a iust pound of his flesh: and the obtayning of Portia by the choyse of three chests. As it hath beene diuers times acted by the Lord Chamberlaine his Seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. [Small ornament.] At London: Printed by I. R—— [James Roberts] for Thomas Heyes, and are to be sold in Paules Church-yard, at the signe of the Greene Dragon, 1600. Fcp. 4°, thirty-eight unpaged leaves, sig. A^1 to K^2 in fours

Sh— Merchant of Venice . . .

Nearly the whole of act 2 and parts of others omitted. The character of Shylock is essentially unchanged. Assertions to the effect that he is here made a comic character seem to have arisen from a misunderstanding of Rowe's remark by D. E. Baker in 'Biographia Britannica.'

'Peleus and Thetis; A masque' is inserted between acts 2 and 3.

The profits of the play were given to Dryden's family.

MERRY DEVIL OF EDMONTON.

This comedy in prose and verse was performed by Shakespeare's company in 1597. It was first entered on the Stationers' Registers, thus :—'22nd Oct., 1607. Arthur

Johnson. Entred for his copie under thandes of Sir George Buck knight and the Wardens a plaie called the Merry devill of Edmonton . . . VId.' A prose history by Thomas Brewer under the same title was entered 5th April, 1608, and has been confused by J. O. Halliwell and others with the play itself, which was first printed in that year.

First ascribed to Shakespeare by F. Kirkman the bookseller; the authorship has since been credited to Antony Brewer, Michael Drayton, Thomas Heywood, and George Wilkins, among others. Tieck believed Sh— wrote it, while Hazlitt thought the more likely writer to be Thomas Heywood.

A^{1} to F^{4} unpaged CTC

The prose narrative under the same title was entered at Stationers' Hall in 1608 by Thomas Hunt and Thomas Archer, who assigned the authorship to T. B—— [probably Tony (or Antony) Brewer].

On the 9th Sept., 1653, the publisher, Humphrey Moseley, recorded this play, with another, entitled the 'History of Cardenio,' both of which he stated were the productions of Sh—.

Modern critics credit Michael Drayton with the comedy, and Sh— may have assisted him with it. Drayton was a native of Sh—'s county.

The earliest known reference to the play occurs in the 'Black book, by T. M——' [Thomas Middleton], 1604, which runs: 'Give him leave to see the "Merry devil of Edmonton" or a "Woman kill'd with kindness."'

Ben Jonson in his prologue to 'The devil is an ass' says:—

'. . . If you'll come
To see new plays, pray you afford us room
And show this but the same face you have done
Your dear delight the "Devil of Edmonton."'

MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

The earliest known edition of this comedy came from the press of T. C—— [Thomas Creede] and was published by Arthur Johnson in 1602.

It was entered at Stationers' Hall :— '18th Jan., 1601-2. John Busby. Entred for his copie vnder the hand of Master Seton a booke called "An excellent and pleasant conceited commedie of Sir Iohn Faulstof and the merry wyues of Windesor, VId."' 'Arthur Johnson. Entred for his copye by assignement from John Busbye, a booke called "An excellent and pleasant conceyted Comedie of Sir John Faulstafe and the merye wyves of Windsor, VId."' Prof. Arber thinks it is quite clear that the 'Merry wives' was printed by J. Busby before this date, but not entered in the registers until he came to assign it to A. Johnson. If so, every copy of Busby's printing appears to have vanished. Mr. Pollard, on the contrary, says 'it seems probable that Johnson preferred that Busby should take the responsibility of entering the book.'

The circumstance recalls the sharp order about the entry of all plays issued by the Archbp. of Canterbury and Bishop of London to the Master and Wardens of Stationers' Hall, found on the registers under date 1st June, 1599.

In this comedy Shakespeare is supposed to have caricatured Sir Thomas Lucy of Charlecote as Justice Shallow, and 'Dr. Caius' is thought to represent John Caius of Norwich (author of 'De canibus Britannicis'), who flourished in 1558.

The singular spelling of fleur-de-lis on the title may be an overt allusion to the Lucy family.

The play, as moderns know it, first fully appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623, where it contained twice as many lines as in the early quartos. While the scenes remained practically the same, the speeches were almost invariably elaborated.

Merry wives of Windsor . . . London: Bedell & Collins, 1656

The sole record of this edition appears in a catalogue of publications at the end of Thomas Goff's 'Three excellent tragedies, 1656,' 8°. It may therefore have been projected and never printed.

Merry wives of Old Windsor. Written by Mr. William Shakespeare. [With] Lines upon the famous Scenicke-Poet, the author, by Hu. Holland [upon the title-page]. Original manuscript, upon twenty-one leaves of paper. c. 1660. Fcp. 4°, pp. 42 W

When discovered by Rodd the bookseller, in 1843, it was secured by J. O. Halliwell, and announced as the earliest Shakespearean MS. known, and the only MS. of this play. It is probably a long-lost acting version, prepared for some private performance. Its great interest lies in the fact that it is not a mere transcript, but presents many variations, and its value is enhanced by the descriptive list of 'dramatis personæ.' Halliwell has described the treasure fully in his 'Account of the only known manuscript . . . 1843' (q.v.)

In the following year the manuscript 'King Henry IV.,' of 1610, came to light, and found a worthy home by the side of the above in Warwick Castle.

The dedication contains the earliest version of the famous tradition connecting Queen Elizabeth with this play, as follows:—'This comedy was written at her [the Queen's] command, and by her direction, and she was so eager to see it acted that she commanded it to be finished in fourteen days, and was afterwards, as tradition tells us, very well pleas'd at the representation.' The prologue also mentions this tradition.

'Dennis has re-written about half the dialogue and materially changed the conduct of the piece.'—Halliwell.

MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM.

Two differing impressions of this comedy exist, each dated 1600. The first came from the press of James Roberts on behalf of Thomas Fisher, and the second, also purporting to proceed from the same press in 1600, was actually printed nineteen years later (doubtless by Isaac Jaggard), and should properly be dated 1619. It was registered at Stationers' Hall thus:—'1600, 8 Oct. Thomas Fyssher. Entred for his copie vnder the handes of Master Rodes and the Wardens a booke called A mydsommer nighte's dreame, VId.'

[Midsummer . . .] A Midsommer nights dreame. As it hath beene sundry times publickely acted, by the Right honourable, the Lord Chamberlaine his seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. [Herring Gull block, with motto.] ¶ Imprinted at Ln. [by Iames Roberts] for Thomas Fisher, and are to be soulde at his shoppe, at the Signe of the White Hart in Fleetestreete, 1600. Fcp. 4°, thirty-two unpaged leaves, sig. A^1 to H^4 in fours BM | BLO | BUS | CTC

Reprinted by Steevens in 1766, by Halliwell in 1865, and by Ebsworth in 1880.

Of all the dramas of Sh— there is none more entirely harmonious than a 'Midsummer night's dream.' All the incidents, all the characters, are in perfect subordination to the will of the poet. It is here that he first felt the greatness of his creative power. . . . We venture to offer an opinion that if any single composition were required to exhibit the power of the English language for purposes of poetry, that composition would be the 'Midsummer night's dream.'—Sir Edward Russell.

MUCEDORUS.

This play made its first printed appearance apparently in 1595, but every copy seems to have perished. It was credited to Sh— as early as 1661, and again in 1691 by Gerard Langbaine (q. v.) It played no mean part as a foundation for 'The Tempest,' the two plays bearing a marked resemblance in sundry places and passages. Fleay thought Thomas Lodge, assisted by G. Wilkins, wrote it. Malone ascribed it to Robert Greene. Although the 1598 edition is commonly described as the first edition, the words 'newly set foorth' indicate the existence of an earlier printing.

In early popularity it appears to have rivalled 'Hamlet.' No fewer than fourteen editions appeared before the civil war commenced.

No entry of the play is found at Stationers' Hall until the following date:— '17 Sept., 1618. John Wright. Assigned ouer vnto him by Mistris Sara Jones, late wife of William Jones deceased, and by direction from Master warden Adames by a note vnder his hand theis two bookes following, viz., "The schoole of good manners," "The comedy called Mucedorus," XIId.'

[Mucedorus] A Most pleasant Comedie of Mucedorus, the Kings Sonne of Valentia and Amadine the Kings daughter of Arragon, with the merie Conceites of Mouse. Newly set foorth, as it hath bin sundrie times plaide in the honorable Cittie of London. Very delectable and full of mirth. BM | CTC | W

A portion of sig. A and all of the last leaf supplied in manuscript in the Warwick copy.
Written in verse and prose.
One of the later versions contained in the additions some uncomplimentary allusions to Ben Jonson (in reply to his satire in 'Volpone'), in which he is termed 'a lean, hungry cannibal' and 'the scrambling raven with a needy beard.' As some soreness is believed to have existed between the rival writers, Sh— and Jonson, about this period, these personalities seem to support the contention that Sh— was concerned in the production.
The passage which most resembles Sh—'s hand is that beginning:—
'If thou wilt love me thou shalt be my queene,
I'll crowne thee with a chaplet made of ivie.'
The lines are reminiscent of those commencing:—
'Come, live with me and be my love . . .'
in Sh—'s 'Passionate pilgrim' (q.v.)

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

The first known edition of this comedy was printed by V. S—— [Valentine Sims] in 1600 for Andrew Wise and William Aspley. The play seems to have met with slender approval, as no other separate edition is recorded until Tonson issued his in 1734.

The play was registered at Stationers' Hall:—'1600, Aug. 14. Andrewe Wyse, William Aspley. Entred for their copies vnder the handes of the wardens two bookes, the one called Muche a doo about nothinge . . . wrytten by Master Shakespere XIId.' Probably printed from a playhouse copy with Sh—'s consent and that of his company. The entry is notable as being the first play on the registers to mention Sh—'s name.

OTHELLO.

The earliest traceable edition of this tragedy is that printed by N. O—— [Nicholas Okes] and published by Thomas Walkley in 1622, just a year before the first collective edition of Sh—'s Works was ushered forth. The play thus originally appeared posthumously, some six years after the author's death. It was entered at Stationers' Hall, as follows :—'6th Oct., 1621. Thomas Walkley. Entred for his copie vnder the handes of Sir George Buck and Master Swinhowe, warden, The tragedie of Othello the Moore of Venice, Vld.' This was not the text employed by W. Jaggard in preparing the 1623 folio.

[Othello] The Tragœdy of Othello, The Moore of Venice. As it hath beene diuerse times acted at the Globe, and at the Black-Friers, by his Maiesties Seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. [Pegasus device.] London: Printed by N. O—— [Nicholas Okes] for Thomas Walkley and are to be sold at his shop, at the Eagle and Child, in Brittan's Bursse, 1622. Fcp. 4°, pp. iv.-92 on forty-eight leaves, irregularly paged: pages 74 and 75 are numbered 78 and 77 in error, and pages 78 to 91 are erroneously paginated 80, 81, 80, 89, 90 to 99; sig. A two leaves, then B to N^2 in fours BM | BLO | BUS | CTC | NY

The publisher's address, headed 'The stationer to the reader,' is perhaps sufficiently curious to quote at length:—'To set forth a booke without an epistle were like to the old English prouerbe, "A blew coat without a badge," and the author being dead I thought good to take that piece of worke vpon mee. To commend it I will not, for that which is good I hope euery man will commend without intreaty; and I am the bolder because the author's name is sufficient to vent his worke. Thus leauing euery one to the liberty of iudgement I haue ventered to print this play and leaue it to the generall censure . . .'

An imperfect copy realised £104 in July, 1903. Reprinted by Steevens in 1766, after collation with the 1630 edition.

[Othello] The Tragœdy of Othello, The Moore of Venice. As it hath beene diuerse times acted at the Globe, and at the Black-Friers by his Maiesties Seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. PASSIONATE PILGRIM.

Composition is conjectured to have taken place between 1594 and 1598. In addition to Sh—, the contributors included Richard Barnefield, Bartholomew Griffin, Christopher Marlowe, and others.

The first edition came from the press of William Jaggard in 1599, and this happy introduction to Sh— culminated in the same press producing his collected writings in 1623.

Of the second edition every copy seems to have disappeared.

John Payne Collier sought to establish [see 'Athenæum,' 17th May, 1856, and 'Notes & Queries,' 5th July, 1856] that the three sonnets erroneously attributed to Richard Barnefield were in reality Sh—'s. The three poems in question are :—'As it fell upon a day,' 'If music and sweet poetry agree,' and 'Whilst as fickle fortune smiled,'—and they appeared the previous year in Barnefield's 'Encomion of Lady Pecunia,' issued by John Jaggard.

For fifty years much silly abuse has been showered upon William Jaggard because for some reason he failed to distinguish the different authors represented in the volume, supposing that he knew them. It has not struck these sagacious critics that the manuscript brought to the printer may have been written entirely in Sh—'s hand. It is quite feasible that Sh— copied the others' poems and added them to his own for some ulterior purpose, as an anthology, like 'Tottel's Miscellany,' or jotted them down for use in unborn plays. Collier originated this unfair attack, and he was the only man with sufficient courage or honesty to withdraw the charge and admit he did Wm. Jaggard a grievous wrong. A score of superficial writers posing as Shakespearean authorities copied Collier's calumny and earned for themselves some ridicule. It is always unwise to condemn before hearing both sides.

Now Thomas Cotes added in 1640 some of Ovid's writings to Sh—'s poems, possibly in ignorance or innocence of the true authorship, a proceeding which evoked little or no comment.

[Passionate pilgrim] 'Come, live with me, and be my love' [A contemporary manuscript version differing from every known printed rendering. Entered in an Elizabethan commonplace book]. 1570-1600. Fcp. 4°, pp. 232

The first printing of this delightful song is found in William Jaggard's edition of 1599. The verses were repeated with variations in 'England's helicon' in 1600. In or about 1601 it was sung by Sir Hugh Evans in the 'Merry wives.' Presumably it appeared in the lost second edition of the 'Passionate pilgrim,' as it figured in the third edition of 1612.

The manuscript described above was disposed of in June, 1903, for £192.

[Passionate pilgrim] The Passionate Pilgrime [and Sonnets to Sundry Notes of Musicke]. By W. Shakespeare. [Ornament.] At London: Printed for W. Iaggard, and are to be sold by W. Leake, at the Greyhound in Paules Churchyard, 1599. 16°, on thirty unpaged leaves (printed on one side only, except the three last leaves); sig. A^1 to D^8 in eights (A^1 and D^8 being blanks)

CTC [4⅛ × 3¼in.] | BRITWELL [4⅝ × 3⅛]

The Cambridge copy bears an early MS. note stating that the copy cost the then owner three-halfpence. Trifling though this sum appears, it will be found, if calculated from 1600 at 5% compound interest, to work out to several thousand pounds, or, roughly, its market value to-day. A copy changed hands privately in 1907 at £2,000, and crossed the Atlantic. This transaction thus represents the highest price yet paid for a separate piece of Sh—.

Including the foregoing, only three copies are known to survive, and one of these is enshrined where collectors may covet in vain.

Passionate pilgrim . . . By W. Shakespeare. Second edition. At London: Printed by William Iaggard [c. 1604 ?] 16°

Issued presumably between 1599 and 1612.

Every copy appears to have vanished, despite diligent search for the last century or more. Collier suggested 1604 as the year of issue.

Passionate Pilgrime. Or Certaine Amorous Sonnets, betweene Venvs and Adonis, newly corrected and augmented. By W. Shakespere. The third edition. Wherevnto is newly added two Loue-Epistles, the first from Paris to Hellen, and Hellens answere backe againe to Paris. [London]: Printed by W. Iaggard, 1612. 16°, on sixty-two pages, without pagination BLO

In some copies Sh—'s name does not occur on the title, and adverse critics allege this is due to Thomas Heywood's complaint in the postscript to his 'Apology for actors, 1612,' where he raises objection against the insertion of some lines from Ovid, taken from 'Troia Britannica.' But as this work was published by W. Jaggard in 1609, it is quite likely it had been purchased outright from Heywood, and the publisher had absolute right in that case to use a scrap of his own property, if short of matter to complete a given sheet. The triviality has created more abuse than all the criticism levelled against Shakesperean forgers put together.

The Bodleian copy contains the two titles, one with and one without Sh—'s name.

Sh—] PERICLES.

The earliest Sh— version yet unearthed is that published by Henry Gosson in 1609.

Omitted from the Jaggard folio, 1623, and from the Cotes folio, 1632, it first secured its rightful place in the bard's works in the Chetwynde folio of 1663-64. Yet doubt of its authenticity continued to cling to the play until the dawn of the nineteenth century [See Cawthorn's 1796 ed.]

It was registered at Stationers' Hall 20th May, 1608:—'Edward Blount. Entred for his copie vnder thandes of Sir George Buck knight and Master Warden Seton a booke called the booke of "Pericles prynce of Tyre . . . VId."'

The composition is so disfigured by error as to suggest it was surreptitiously obtained by faulty shorthand writers at the theatre. Nevertheless, it is the only available text.

A duplicate in the British Museum exhibits numerous small textual variations; in many cases these are corrections of errors. The woodcut initial at sig. A2 is also different.

Geo. Steevens' copy with his autograph is at Boston.

Earl Howe's copy, in half blue morocco, 6¾in. by 4⅝in., was secured by an American collector in Dec., 1907.

Halliwell says the copy at the B.M. is the only one known, but a more interesting example is said to be preserved in the state library at Zurich, bearing a dedication [believed to be unique] to Henry Fermor, J.P., of Middlesex. The composition is stated to be of a quality such as Sh— alone could have written.

The signatures are continued from 'King Henry VI., parts II.-III.,' of the same date, which contained sig. A1 to Q. 'Pericles' formed a supplement to that play, although not mentioned on the first title.

This issue forms part of the set of nine suspects. For fuller information see A. W. Pollard's 'Sh— folios and quartos.'

The Warwick copy bears manuscript corrections, apparently in the hand of Lewis Theobald. The British Museum exemplar came from David Garrick's collection, and that at the Stratford Memorial from Halliwell's library.

Phaeton to his friend Florio
A sonnet appearing in Florio's 'Second frutes, 1591' (q.v.) attributed to the poet's pen.

POEMS.

The pieces which together compose Sh—'s poems were first issued separately as follow: Venus and Adonis, 1593; Rape of Lucreece, 1594; Passionate pilgrim, 1599; Sonnets, 1609.

The first collective edition of Sh—'s poems was issued by Thomas Cotes, successor to Dorothy Jaggard, in 1640.

The poems found no place in the first five collective editions of Sh—'s works. Although issued uniform with Rowe's 1709 edition, the 'Poems' do not form an integral part of that issue of the poet's works.

Poems: VVritten by Wil. Shake-speare, Gent. ['Heb Ddiev' device.] Printed at London by Tho. Cotes and are to be sold by Iohn Benson, dwelling in St. Dunstans Church-yard, 1640. 8°, pp. 192. Preceded by a portrait of the poet engraved by W. M—— [William Marshall] BM | BLO | BPL | BUS | CTC | HUTH | MRL NY | W

Collation: Portrait, 1 leaf
Title, with imprint, 1 leaf
'To the reader,' sig. I.B., 2 pages
'Poems by L. Digges,' 3 pages
'Poem by John Warren,' 1 page
'Poems' (text), A to L, in eights, and M, 4 leaves.

On L2 commences a head title, 'An addition of some excellent poems to those precedent of renowned Sh—, by other gentlemen.'

'Principally consisting of translations which never proceeded from Sh—'s pen,' says Lowndes. This seems a hasty assertion. Granted the translations could not be Sh—'s work, it is yet possible he may have copied them for some purpose; that such copies found among his papers, or in his hand-writing, were too readily but innocently attributed to him by an over-zealous publisher.

The 'Poems . . . by other gentlemen' include excerpts from Thomas Heywood's 'General history of women,' two signed B. I. (Ben Jonson), one F. B. (Francis Beaumont), and one I. G.

Upon the last leaf of the copy belonging to Dr. H. H. Furness, of Philadelphia, is an additional verse in MS. not found in any printed version:—

'Aske me no more whither doth run
When day is done the poasting sun,
For in your bright and sparkling eyes
[His fires remain in love's disguise]'
[or His light remains in slight disguise]
Last lines conjectured. J. H[eber].

Dr. Bliss had a leaf of this edition with a contemporary manuscript note which stated it passed through the press in 1639, and was issued ready bound for fifteen pence.

In Nov., 1906, a copy brought £220. Another in Mar., 1907, £215. Another, 5½in. by 3¼in., Dec., 1907, £260.

[Poems] A collection of poems, viz.: I. Venus and Adonis; II. The rape of Lucrece; III. The passionate pilgrim; IV. Sonnets to sundry notes of musick. By Mr. Wm. Sh—. [Edited by Charles Gildon.] Ln: Printed for Bernard Lintott at the Cross-Keys between the two Temple Gates in Fleet street [1709]. 8°, pp. iv.-156 BM | BPL | BUS | SML

This is really the first of the two volumes forming the succeeding edition. Its four divisions have separate titles, dated respectively 1630, 1632, 1599, and 1599. Rodd said there were two editors, Gildon and Dr. George Sewell. Malone stated it was edited by Gildon, that he found it full of errors, and that the sonnets were separately set to music by John and Thomas Morley, according to a manuscript of Oldys. In the next issue the four early dates were cancelled. Lowndes was apparently unaware of the two-volume issue, and describes this as 'forming the seventh volume of the first small edition of Sh—'s works.' In this he is wrong. It was doubtless a separate venture, in which Rowe had no hand, for he remarks in the final paragraph of his life of the poet:—'There is a book of poems publish'd in 1640 under the name of Mr. William Sh—, but as I have but very lately seen it, without an opportunity of making any judgment upon it, I wont pretend to determine whether it be his or no.'

The following curious notice is on the opening page:—'Advertisement. The remains of Mr. Wm. Sh—, called the "Passionate pilgrim and sonnets to sundry notes of musick," at the end of this collection, came to my hands in a little stitch'd book printed at London for W. Jaggard in 1599. It is generally agreed he [Sh—] dy'd about the year 1616, so that it appears plainly they were published by himself, being printed seventeen years before his death. I will say nothing of "Venus and Adonis" nor of the "Rape of Lucrece," they being universally allowed to be Sh—'s, only that I have printed them from very old editions which I procur'd, as the reader will find by my keeping close to the spelling. The writings of Mr. Sh— are in so great esteem that several gentlemen have subscribed to a late edition of his "Dramatic Works" in six volumes, which makes me hope that this little book will not be unacceptable to the publick. I shall not take upon me to say anything of the author, an ingenious person [Rowe] having compil'd some memoirs of his life and prefixed it [them] to the late abovementioned edition. But I cannot omit inserting a passage of Mr. Sh—'s life very much to his honour and very remarkable, which was either unknown or forgotten by the writer of it. That most learn'd prince and great patron of learning King James the first [of England] was pleas'd with his own hand to write an amicable letter to Mr. Sh—, which letter tho' now lost remain'd long in the hands of Sir William Davenant, as a credible person now living can testify.'

See James I. for further particulars.

[Poems] A collection of poems, in two volumes; being all the miscellanies of Mr. Wm. Sh— which were publish'd by himself in the year 1609, and now correctly printed from those editions. The first volume contains: I. Venus and Adonis; II. The rape of Lucrece; III. The passionate pilgrim; IV. Some sonnets set to sundry notes of musick. The second volume contains one hundred and

The introduction says:—'Only three or four generations of fairly long-lived men tie between us and Sh—. Literature in his own time had reached a high development; his grandeur and sweetness were freely recognised; within seventy years of his death his biography was attempted; yet we know little more of Sh— himself than we do of Homer. Like several of the greatest men, Lucretius, Virgil, Tacitus, Dante, a mystery never to be dispelled hangs over his life. He has entered into the cloud. With a natural and an honourable diligence other men have given their lives to the investigation of his, and many external circumstances, mostly of a minor order, have been thus collected, yet of "the man Sh—," in Hallam's words, we know nothing. Something which seems more than human in immensity of range and calmness of insight moves before us in the plays, but from the nature of dramatic writing the author's personality is inevitably veiled; no letter, no saying of his, or description by an intimate friend, has been preserved, and even when we turn to the "Sonnets," though each is an autobiographical confession, we find ourselves equally foiled. . . . Yet there is after all nothing more remarkable or fascinating in English poetry than these personal revelations of the mind of our greatest poet. We read them again and again, and find each time some new proof of his almost superhuman insight into human nature; of his unrivalled mastery over all the tones of love.'

A puzzling publication to the uninitiated. Each piece has a separate title and pagination. Some sets, either in vellum or paper boards, were sold in five volumes. Other sets, in rough calf or paper boards, were sold bound up in one volume, apparently lacking a general title-page, but, as none was printed, the volume is normally complete without that necessary leaf. It likewise possesses no index, an inexcusable defect. The above entry is copied from the prospectus.

Space will not permit of attempting to correct the errors in this reprint. The editor appears to supply the deficiencies of his knowledge with 'flights of fancy, far from fact.'

RAPE OF LUCRECE.

The first edition is that printed in 1594 by Sh—'s fellow-townsman and friend, Richard Field. It forms one of the two narrative poems which may be assumed to have gone to press by the poet's express wish and under his personal supervision.

The incident is recorded in Ovid's 'Fasti,' in Livy's 'History of Rome,' in 'Gesta Romanorum,' in Gower's 'Confessio amantis,' in Boccaccio's 'De claris mulieribus,' in St. Augustine's 'Civitas Dei,' in Lydgate's 'Fall of Princes,' in Bandello, and again in Chaucer's 'Legend of good women.'

It was registered at Stationers' Hall on May 9, 1594, as 'Master Harrison senior. Entred for his copie vnder thand of Master Cawood, warden, a booke intituled the Ravyshement of Lucrece, VId.'

Sig. A2 recto bears the prefatory dedication signed, 'William Shakespeare,' to his friend and patron the Earl of Southampton.
Some copies of this edition exhibit slight textual variations.

It will be observed that the publisher's sign was 'The White Greyhound,' in St. Paul's Churchyard. That of William Leake, publisher of 'The passionate pilgrim,' 1599, was 'The Greyhound,' also in the Churchyard.
The copy bequeathed by Capell to Trinity College, Cambridge, is missing.

A copy measuring 7 9/16in. by 4⅞in. brought £119 in Nov., 1904. Another in May, 1905, £120. Earl Howe's mended copy, in Dec., 1907, sold for £40.
The two copies at Warwick are bound in red and green morocco respectively.

[Romeo and Juliet] History and fall of Caius Marius. As it is acted at the Duke's Theatre. By Thomas Otway. Ln: . . . 1680. Fcp. 4° BPL

The parts of Romeo, Juliet, and the Nurse, barring the names, are borrowed from Sh— almost word for word.
In the prologue, Otway says:—

> 'Our Sh— wrote too in an age as blest
> The happiest poet of his time, and best;
> A gracious prince's favour cheered his muse,
> A constant favour he ne'er feared to lose,
> Therefore he wrote with fancy unconfined
> And thoughts that were immortal as his mind;
> And from the crop of his luxuriant pen
> E'er since succeeding poets humbly glean.'
> . . . . . .
> 'Our this day's poet fears he's done him wrong,
> Like greedy beggars that steal sheaves away;
> You'll find he's rifled him of half a play,
> Amidst his baser dross you'll see it shine
> Most beautiful, amazing, and divine.'

Romeo and Juliet . . . Adapted by T. Cibber. Ln: . . . 1744. 8°

Romeo and Juliet . . . Revis'd and alter'd from Sh— by Mr. Theophilus Cibber. First reviv'd in Sept., 1744 at the Theatre in the Haymarket: now acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane. To which is added a serio-comic apology for part of the life of T. Cibber, comedian . . . by himself. Interspersed with memoirs and anecdotes relating to stage management, theatrical revolutions, etc. Also cursory observations on some principal players. Concluding with a copy of verses call'd 'The contrite comedian's confession.' Ln: Printed for C. Corbett & G. Woodfall [1748]. 8°, pp. iv.-108

BM | BPL | BUS | SML | W

The alterations embrace an affection between Romeo and Juliet before the play commences. Some lines are borrowed from Otway's 'Caius Marius,' as well as the whole scene in the last act in which Juliet awakes. Geneste says the play was not acted at Drury Lane.

Romeo and Juliet . . . Revis'd and alter'd . . . by T. Cibber. London, 1748. 8°, pp. iv.-68 SML

This edition is without the Apology.

Romeo and Juliet, by Sh—. With some alterations and an additional scene [by David Garrick]. As it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane. Ln: . . . 1748. 12° W

The points differentiating Garrick's version from the original are these:—The allusion to Romeo's earlier love Rosaline is omitted, and an additional tomb scene between Romeo and Juliet is introduced.

Next to the title Garrick adds this sarcastic memorandum:—'The persons who, from great good-nature and love of justice, have endeavoured to take away from the present editor the little merit of this [additional] scene by ascribing it to Otway have unwittingly, from the nature of the accusation, paid him a compliment which he believes they never intended.'

SIR JOHN OLDCASTLE.

Doubtless a joint literary production. According to the first-class evidence of Henslowe's diary, it was composed by Michael Drayton, Anthony Munday, Robert Wilson, and Thomas Hathway.

Henslowe says :—'16th Oct. 1599. Receved by me Thomas Downton of Phillip Henslow, to pay Mr. Monday, Mr. Drayton, Mr. Wilson and [Mr.] Hathway for the first parte of the lyfe of Sr. Jhon Ouldcastell and in earnest of the second parte, for the use of the company, I say receved £10.'

A further entry says :—'Receved of Mr. Hinchloe [Henslowe] for Mr. Mundaye and the rest of the poets, at the playnge of Sr. John Oldcastell, the ferst tyme, as a geft, ten shillings.'

In the earliest versions of 'King Henry IV.' Sh— utilised Oldcastle as a character, and presumably gave offence to the Cobham family, as the name was afterwards changed to Falstaff. It is conjectured that Sh—'s share in the authorship of 'Sir John Oldcastle' at the most consisted of editorial revision.

It is entered in the Stationers' Registers twice in 1600, and the second entry is thought to be a fraud, enacted in 1619, by Thomas Pavier.

'11th Aug. 1600. Thomas Pauier. Entred for his copies vnder the handes of Master Vicars and the wardens these III. copies, viz., "The first parte of the history of the life of Sir John Oldcastell lord Cobham." Item; the "Second and laste parte of the history of Sir John Oldcastell lord Cobham with his martyrdom." Item; "Ye history of the life and deathe of Captaine Thomas Stucley" . . .'

No edition is known of the 'Second part.'

SIR THOMAS MORE.

An anonymous tragedy, ascribed in part to Sh—. The original manuscript, from the Harleian collection, is in the British Museum.

Sir Thomas More [Original manuscript, written in several hands, on twenty varying sheets of paper, c. 1600] BM

First edited and published in 1844. Since then some words and lines have crumbled away and become illegible.

The portions ascribed by Simpson and Spedding to Sh— are act II., sc. iii.-iv., lines 1-172, and act III., sc. ii.-iii.

Dyce's transcript and arrangement is exact and excellent, and for the illegible portions is now the sole authority.

SONNETS.

The earliest known printed version of the 'Sonnets' is the quarto printed by George Eld in 1609, although copies, apparently in manuscript, were referred to by Francis Meres in 1598 as 'Sh—'s sugred sonnets among his private friends.'.

It was registered at Stationers' Hall thus: '20th May, 1609. Thomas Thorpe. Entred for his copie vnder thandes of Master Wilson and Master Lownes warden a booke called Shakespeare's Sonnettes, VId.'

BM | CPL | CTC | ELLESMERE | MRL

The dedication to 'Mr. W. H.' has caused much expenditure of breath and ink. It was almost certainly indited to William Herbert Earl of Pembroke, as may be seen by the similar dedication in St. Augustine's 'De Civitate Dei, 1610,' signed Th. Th. [Thomas Thorpe].

With more ingenuity than reason, it was suggested by D. Barnstorff that 'W. H.' stands for 'William Himself.'

In April, 1907, a cropped copy sold for £800, a remarkable advance on the published price of fivepence.

The original cost was found in a manuscript at Dulwich College, where Edward Alleyn noted the purchase at the time thus:—

'A book of Shaksper Sonnets, 5d.'

This is confirmed elsewhere by Lord Spencer, of Althorpe fame.

The B.M. copy measures 7 1/16in. by 5 3/16in.

It was reprinted in 1766 by G. Steevens, in 1850, 1862, 1870, 1886, 1901, twice in 1905, in 1908, and again in 1909.

The Sonnets end on the recto of sig. K_1 and 'A Louer's Complaint' begins on verso of the same.

The recto of the second leaf bears inscription which runs:—

Wright's name in the imprint is much rarer than that of Aspley.

The impertinent patronage of Sh— by 'Sidney Lee' is (in his own words) 'not to be matched elsewhere.' In the opening lines of the introduction he says:—'Though Sh—'s sonnets are unequal in literary merit, many reach levels of lyric melody and meditative energy which are not to be matched. . . . If a few of the poems sink into inanity beneath the burden of quibbles and conceits, others are almost overcharged with mellowed sweetness. . . .'

This editor's overflowing self-satisfaction is patent in his further remark:—'The abundant criticism lavished on my comments has not modified my faith in my general position or in the fruitfulness of my investigation.'

The 'bibliography' (save the mark) alleged on the title to be given in the volume appears to consist of a few remarks on the original editions. Nevertheless, within his very limited effort he achieves a pretty blunder. The Sh— Memorial Library at Stratford is credited with a 1640 copy it never (unfortunately) possessed of Sh—'s Poems.

'"Mr. Sidney Lee" argues that the sonnets were written simply as literary exercises. The mere statement of such views would seem to carry their refutation. When he seeks to persuade us that the most impassioned utterances in these sonnets are to be taken cum grano salis, and that Sh—'s devotion to his friend was merely servile adulation, we lose patience, and have to recall the yeoman service that Mr. Lee has rendered to literature before we can pardon this affront offered to Sh—'s memory and to our intelligence.'—*A. TAMING OF THE SHREW.

This comedy first appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623. [An earlier version, under an almost identical title, to which the dramatist is alike indebted for plot, scenery, and name, thrice appeared, and its authorship has been variously assigned to Sh—, George Peele, and R. Greene.]

It was originally entered on the Stationers' registers by Peter Short, 2nd May, 1594; secondly by Nicholas Ling, 22 Jan., 1606; thirdly by John Smethwicke, 19 Nov., 1607.

An interval occurred of over a century before any untampered separate edition of Sh—'s text succeeded Smethwicke's of 1631.

[Taming of the shrew] A Pleasant Conceited Historie called the Taming of a Shrew. As it was sundry Times acted by the Right Honorable the Earle of Pembrook his Seruants. Printed at London by Peter Short and are to be sold by Cutbert Burbie, at his shop at the Royall Exchange, 1594. Fcp. 4°, on fourteen unpaged leaves, including title DEVON

Anonymous, and supposed to be the play used by Sh— as the foundation of his 'Taming of the shrew.' The difference of the respective texts is as marked as that between the 1603 and 1604 editions of 'Hamlet'; or that between the 'Merry wives' of 1602 and 1623.

Malone assigns 1594 as the year of composition of Sh—'s 'Taming of the shrew,' and when the play was reprinted in 1607 it bore the name of Sh— as author.

'In whatever light it may be considered, whether as the play remodelled by Sh— or as the first draft of his comedy, it is unquestionably of the highest literary interest and curiosity in a Shakespearian library.'—Heber.

'Sh— has made very slight use of it in the composition of his drama on the same subject.'—Halliwell.

'There is scarce a line the same with the present play, yet the plot and scenery scarce differ at all.'—Steevens.

'The "Taming of a shrew" was revised by Sh— and another into the "Taming of the shrew." '—Furnivall.

The title is thought to have been borrowed from an older story, called 'The wyf lapped in morell's skin, or the taminge of a shrew.'

Reprinted by the Sh— Society 1844; by J. O. Halliwell, in his folio Sh—, 1853; by E. W. Ashbee 1870; by W. C. Hazlitt, in Sh—'s library, 1875; and by C. Prætorius 1886.

Only one original known to survive.—(See Catalogue . . . 1826.)

THE PURITAN WIDOW.

One of the seven fresh plays introduced as of Sh—'s composition in the Chetwynde folio of 1663-64. The earliest known version is that published by George Eld in 1607.

The real writer was probably Wentworth Smith.

It was registered at Stationers' Hall :— '6th Aug. 1607. George Elde. Entred for his copie vnder thandes of Sir George Bucke, knight, and the wardens, a book called the comedie of "The puritan widowe" . . . VId.'

THE TEMPEST.

Probably Sh—'s final play. This comedy occupies the premier place in the Jaggard canon of 1623, and in most subsequent editions. So far as is known, it was not printed before that date. Over a century passed away before a separate unadulterated edition was born, and that appeared in Dublin in 1725.

Sh—] THOMAS LORD CROMWELL.

A drama in verse published for the first time by William Jones in 1602. It was registered at Stationers' Hall :—'11th Aug. 1602. William Cotton. Entred for his copie under thandes of Master Jackson and Master Waterson, warden, a booke called the Lyfe and deathe of the Lord Cromwell as yt was lately acted by the Lord Chamberleyn his servantes . . . VId.'

It was not recognised as Sh—'s production until given a place in the Chetwynde folio, 1663-64. Since then it has been ascribed to Sh—'s pen frequently, by virtue perhaps of the similar initials on the original title rather than through any intrinsic merit. The real writer was probably Wentworth Smith.

Before its inclusion in the Chetwynde folio only two editions had appeared.

[Thomas Lord Cromwell] The True Chronicle Historie of the whole life and death of Thomas Lord Cromwell. As it hath beene sundrie times publikely acted by the Right Honourable the Lord Chamberlaine his Seruants. Written by W. S——. Imprinted at London [by William Cotton] for William Iones, and are to be solde at his house neere Holburne conduict at the Signe of the Gunne, 1602. Fcp. 4°, on twenty-eight unpaged leaves (including title); sig. A^1 to G^4 in fours (last leaf blank) NY

The Lenox copy came originally from the Roxburghe collection, vid the Heber sale.

Earl Howe's exemplar, in modern half blue morocco, sold in Dec., 1907, for £222.

[Thomas Lord Cromwell] The True Chronicle Historie of the whole life and death of Thomas Lord Cromwell. As it hath beene sundry times publikely Acted by the Kings Maiesties Seruants. Written by W. THRENOS.

This poem first saw the light in Sh—'s little anthology, 'The passionate pilgrim, 1599.' It is next found in Robert Chester's 'Love's martyr, 1601,' and again in 1611, where it is supposed to have been used without permission.

TIMON OF ATHENS.

Until it figured in the Jaggard canon of 1623 this tragedy appears to have been unprinted. It there bears the title of 'The life of Tymon of Athens.'

Eleven editions of Shadwell's adaptation were published before Tonson issued the first separate edition with a text untampered.

TITUS ANDRONICUS.

This anonymous tragedy was first entered at Stationers' Hall :—'6th Feb. 1593-94. John Danter. Entred for his copye vnder thandes of bothe the Wardens a booke intituled a noble Roman historye of Tytus Andronicus . . . VId.'

It was freshly registered as follows :—'19th April 1602. Tho. Pavier. Entred for his copies by assignment from Thomas Millington these bookes folowing, salvo jure cuiuscunque . . . a booke called "Titus and Andronicus" . . . VId. Entred by warrant vnder master Seton's hand.'

'8th Nov. 1630. Mr. Bird assigns to Ric. Cotes all his estate, right, title, and interest in the copies hereafter menconed . . . Titus and Andronicus . . .'

'4 Aug. 1626. Thomas Pavier assigns his right in "Titus Andronicus" to Edw. Brewster and Rob. Birde.'

Although actually printed in 1594, and referred to by Gerard Langbaine (q.v.) in 1691, the edition was regarded by students for about two centuries as either a myth or a lost work.

In December, 1904, the Shakespearean world was astonished and delighted to hear from the librarian of Lund University that a copy had been providentially found in a Swedish country cottage. Truly one of the strangest literary rescues on record, and a fitting companion-romance to that connected with the recovery of the 1603 'Hamlet' in 1856.

Sh—'s share of the authorship is thought to be much less than that respectively of Kyd, Marlowe, or Greene.

Sh— Titus Andronicus . . .

Edward Ravenscroft (q.v.), who edited in 1687 a fresh version of this play, remarks therein :—'I have been told by some anciently conversant with the stage that it was not originally his [Sh—'s], but brought by a private author to be acted, and he only gave some master touches to one or two of the principal parts or characters.'

[Titus Andronicus] The most lamentable Romaine Tragedie of Titus Andronicus: As it was Plaide by the Right Honourable the Earle of Darbie, Earle of Pembrooke, and Earle of Sussex their Seruants. Sh—'s name is not given.

A copy, doubtless unique, happily discovered in Sweden, was conveyed to London, and there sold, in Dec., 1904, to a well-known American collector for £2,000 in Feb., 1905. It is perfect, with the exception of about ten words scraped or erased.

'The difference between the editions of 1600 and 1611 (says Charles Knight) is trifling, but between them and the 1623 folio the variations are important. Scene II. (about 80 lines) of Act III. is only found in the folio.

In March, 1906, a copy wanting the title realised £106. Earl Howe's copy in half blue morocco, 7⅛ by 5¼ in., was secured by an American collector in Dec., 1907.

Sh— Troilus and Cressida . . .

Feb. 1602-03. Mr. Roberts. The booke of "Troilus and Cressida" as yt is acted by my Lord Chamberlen's men. When he hath gotten sufficient auncthority for yt . . . VId.' Whether Roberts ever proceeded any further in publication is not traceable. It was freshly entered :— 28 Jan. 1608-09. Richard Bonion. Henry Walleys. Entred for their copie vnder thandes of Master Segar, deputy to Sir George Bucke, and Master Warden Lownes, a booke called the history of Troylus and Cressida . . . VId.'

The early quartos were not employed by William Jaggard in preparing his 1623 canon, some independent and unknown original being used.

[Troilus and Cressida] The Historie of Troylus and Cresseida. As it was acted by the Kings Maiesties seruants at the Globe. Written by William Shakespeare. [Ornament.] London: Imprinted by G. Eld for R. Bonian and H. Walley, and are to be sold at the spred Eagle in Paules Church-yeard, ouer against the great North doore, 1609. Fcp. 4°, forty-six unpaged leaves; sig. A^1 to M^2 (the last blank ?) BM

[Troilus and Cressida] The Famous Historie of Troylus and Cresseid. Excellently expressing the beginning of their loues, with the conceited wooing of Pandarus Prince of Licia. Written by William Shakespeare. [Ornament.] London: Imprinted by G. Eld for R. Bonian and H. Walley, and are to be sold at the Spred Eagle in Paules Church-yeard, ouer against the great North doore, 1609. Fcp. 4°, forty-six unpaged leaves BM | BLO | CTC | DEVON
The collation is rather singular. The title has been cut out of the first sheet and replaced by two leaves, bearing a fresh title in which the word 'Famous' is introduced and the letter 'a' omitted from 'Cresseida.' The second of these new leaves is marked ¶2 instead of A_2, and contains a preface. Otherwise the signatures are the same as in the first issue. In the preface we glean the interesting fact that the published price of these early quartos was a tester (i.e. sixpence).
Reprinted by Steevens in 1766; by Halliwell in 1863 and 1871; and by Stokes in 1886.

Says Dryden (in the preface):—'The original story was written by Lollius, a Lombard, in latin verse, and translated by Chaucer into English.

'Sh—, in the apprenticeship of his writing, modelled it into that play which is now called by the name of "Troilus and Cressida."

'I new model'd the plot; threw out many unnecessary persons, improv'd those characters which were begun and left unfinish'd . . .

TWELFTH NIGHT, OR WHAT YOU WILL.

According to Manningham's Diary (q.v.) this comedy was performed in the Middle Temple 2nd Feb., 1602. So far as can be gleaned, it remained unprinted until the Jaggard canon presented it in 1623. No separate untampered text is known earlier than Jacob Tonson's issue of 1714. Burnaby's adaptation appeared in 1703, and Molloy's in 1720.

TWO NOBLE KINSMEN.

This play is founded on Chaucer's 'Knight's tale,' and probably was first acted in 1625. It was originally printed in 1634 by Thomas Coles, successor to Dorothy Jaggard.

Sh— Two noble kinsmen . . .

Its omission from the Chetwynde folio 1663-64 is as remarkable as the exclusion of 'Pericles' from the Jaggard canon. Its claims to a place in Sh—'s works are stronger than those of most of the seven fresh plays introduced in 1663-64.

The authorship is attributed by the best critics variously to Sh—, Fletcher, Massinger, Beaumont, and Rowley, among others.

It was registered at Stationers' Hall :— '8th April 1634. Master John Waterson. Entred for his copy under the hands of Sir Henry Herbert and Master Aspley warden a tragi-comedy called the "Two noble kinsmen, by John Fletcher and William Shakespeare" . . . VId.'

In five acts: in verse.

'If Beaumont, whose name is absent, did not assist Fletcher, it was beyond the reach of anyone else but Sh—.'—F. G. Fleay.

'It is now generally allowed to have been partly written by Sh—.'—F. Locker.

Lamb, Coleridge, and Spalding considered Sh— responsible for a large portion of the play, and Dyce included it in his edition of the poet.

Hazlitt, Hallam, and others, on the contrary, think Massinger or even Rowley had a hand in it.

A copy measuring 7⅛ by 5½in. brought £50 in Dec., 1906. Earl Howe's copy in half blue morocco realised £62 in Dec., 1907.

VENUS AND ADONIS.

Sh—'s first publication. This and his next effort, 'Lucrece,' are probably the only compositions which can be said with any degree of certainty to have gone to press by his desire, unless, as some think, the Jaggard canon of 1623 can be added.

It was licensed by the Archbishop of Canterbury and registered at Stationers' Hall :—'18th April 1593. Richard Feild. Entred for his copie vnder thandes of [John Whitgift] the Archbisshop of Canterbury and Master warden Stirrop a booke intituled "Venus and Adonis" . . . VId. Assigned ouer to Master Harrison senior 25 Jun. 1594.'

The original edition appeared immediately after in that year from the workshop of Sh—'s friend, Richard Field, a Stratfordian settled in London. It was executed with such mechanical purity as to leave little doubt that the poet piloted it through the press. The presence of the dedication supports that view.

Venvs and Adonis.

Vilia miretur vulgus : mihi flauus Apollo Pocula Castalia plena ministret aqua.

[Printer's 'Anchor' device.] London Imprinted by Richard Field, and are to be sold at the signe of the white Greyhound in Paules Church-yard, 1593. Fcp. 4°, twenty-eight unpaged leaves; sig. A^1, A^2, B^1 to H^2 in fours BLO

The leaf following title bears the dedication 'to the Rt. Hon. Henrie Wriothesley Earle of Southampton,' signed by Sh—.

The selection of the motto from Ovid's 'Amores' is held by some to lend colour to Ben Jonson's assertion that Sh— had 'small latin.'

The quotation has been thus rendered :—

'Vulgar people love low things,
But my cup from purest springs
Mid the fair Castalian rills,
Golden-haired Apollo fills.'

The Bodleian copy measures 7⅜ by 5¼in., and is the only exemplar known to survive.

Reprinted by Halliwell in 1866, by Griggs in 1886, and again in 1905.

It is distinguished from the 1594 issue by having no period after 'London' in the imprint.

Collier remarks :—'It is a distinct re-impression; affords some various readings and not a few important confirmations of the correctness of the older text, corrupted more or less in all subsequent editions.'

Edmonds says :—'Its new readings are always improvements, which seems to show this impression had the benefit of the author's revision.'

Reprinted in the Ashbee-Halliwell series in 1867.

Venus and Adonis . . .

Vilia miretur vulgus, mihi flavus Apollo Pocula Castalia plena ministret aqua.

[Woodcut figure of Cupid.] London: Printed by Elizabeth Hodgkinsonne for F. Coles, T. Vere, J. Wright, and J. Clark, 1675. 8°
The Nassau copy, bound in green morocco (sold in 1824), passed into the library of T. J. McKee, and was sold in New York in December, 1901.
The copy in the Bodleian catalogue cannot be found, which makes three early editions all lost there.
In his 1905 facsimile, 'Sidney Lee' asserts, with his usual infallibility, that 'the only copy which seems traceable is now in America,' but see next entry, which discloses a copy in Liverpool.

WILL AND TESTAMENT.

The original document is now preserved in the National Probate Registry, London, and bears the poet's autograph upon each of its three sheets.

Some years since, J. C. Jeaffreson tried to demonstrate in 'The Athenæum' that the above document is in the poet's holograph throughout. More recently Sir Edwin Durning Lawrence attempted to show that not an atom was written by Sh—, but that the signatures were the work of a law clerk.

The executors were John (son-in-law) and Susanna Hall (Sh–'s eldest daughter). OVERSEERS, Thomas Russell and Francis Collins. WITNESSES, Francis Collins, Julius Shawe, John Robinson, Hamnet Sadler, and Robert Whattcott.

Francis Collins was the solicitor of Warwick who prepared the Will.

WINTER'S TALE.

This tragedy was unprinted until it appeared in the Jaggard canon of 1623. The plot is borrowed from Robert Greene's 'Pandosto' of 1588 (q.v.), afterwards renamed 'Dorastus and Fawnia.' Sh— copied Greene's strange error in placing Bohemia on the seaboard. No separate edition is recorded before Jacob Tonson's of 1714.

Winter's tale. A play. Alter'd from Sh—, by Charles Marsh. Second edition. With a preface giving some account of this alteration.

'Think'st thou the swan of Avon spreads her wings,
Her brooding wings, for thee alone to plume
And nestle there, O Garrick? Thou deserv'st
Indeed much cherishing: Thy melody
Charms every ear. But sure, it ill beseems
One cygnet thus to stretch its little pinions
Ambitiously intent to fill that nest
Whose roomy limits well may shelter numbers.

YORKSHIRE TRAGEDY.

One of the seven ascribed plays, freshly published as Sh—'s productions in the Chetwynde folio of 1663-64. It was registered at Stationers' Hall :—'2nd May 1608. Master Pavyer. Entred for his copie vnder the handes of Master Wilson and Master warden Seton a booke called a "Yorkshire tragedy written by Wylliam Shakespere" . . . VId.'

The first edition was printed in 1608 by R. B—— [Richard Bonian ?] for Thomas Pavier.

NOTE.—Collective editions of Sh—'s writings now follow, in chronological order, with a reference key to commentaries and criticism thereon.—W. J.

WORKS.

The first edition of Sh—'s collected works appeared posthumously in Nov. 1623, nearly eight years after his death, and three months after his widow's decease. It came from the press of its probable editor, William Jaggard, whose death on the eve of publication brought his son Isaac's name upon the title-page in place of his own. The volume is of transcendent importance. Not merely is it the editio princeps of England's greatest genius. Among the thirty-six masterpieces presented, no fewer than twenty appeared in print here for the first time. From a literary standpoint it is the most priceless contribution, beyond all bounds and limits, to the whole world's secular literature, and to those giant forces which promote the welfare of humanity.

It was registered at Stationers' Hall :— '8th Nov. 1623. Mr. Blount : Isaak Jaggard. Entred for their copie under the hands of Master Doctor Worrall and Master Cole wardens, Mr. William Shakspeer's Comedyes, Histories, and Tragedyes, soe manie of the said copyes as are not formerly entred to other men, vizt. Comedyes : The tempest, The two gentlemen of Verona, Measure for measure, The comedy of errors, As you like it, All's well that ends well, Twelft night, The winter's tale. Histories : The thirde parte of Henry the sixt, Henry the eight. Tragedies : Coriolanus, Timon of Athens, Julius Cæsar, Macbeth, Anthonie and Cleopatra, Cymbeline.'

The premature death of Isaac Jaggard in 1627 caused this fresh entry in the registers : —'1627 [June]. Thomas Cotes. Richard Cotes. Assigned ouer vnto him [them] by Dorathye Jaggard and consent of a full court holden this day, all the estate, right, title, and interest which Isaacke Jaggard her late husband had in the copies following . . . her parte in Shackspheve's plays . . . 11/6.'

Horne Tooke remarked :—'The first edition is the only one in my opinion worth regarding . . . By the presumptuous license of dwarfish commentators, who are for ever cutting him down to their own size, we risk the loss of Sh—'s genuine text which that folio assuredly contains.'

Between 1623 and 1709 only five editions of Sh—'s collective works appeared, but between the latter year and 1910 about twelve hundred different editions (in English) emerged from the press.

W. Shakespeare' [signed L. Digges] ; 6, Names of the Principall Actors ; 7, 'To the Memory of my beloued . . . by Ben Ionson' ; 8, 'Vpon . . . the Famous Scenicke Poet . . . by Hvgh Holland' ; 9, Catalogve of the severall Comedies, Histories and Tragedies contained in this Volume.'

Then ensues the text, paged in three parts, with numerous irregularities in the pagination and signatures.

A full list of press errors of the first four folio editions may be found in the B.M. Sh— Catalogue, 1897 (q.v.) For highly detailed collations see Allibone, American Bibliopolist 1870, Lowndes and Winsor's Bibliography. For an account of the original Bodleian copy (in which the order of the prefatory matter varies), see Madan. For a census of existing copies (which by no means includes all the known copies), see the folio pamphlet attached to the Oxford facsimile, under Sh— Works, 1902.

A copy varying from others is in the B.M., with a title bearing the word 'and' in place of the usual contraction '&.'

The two copies dated 1622, mentioned by Lowndes, have had the final figure mended or tampered with.

This edition was produced in Barbican (and not in Fleet Street, as so often asserted by 'Sidney Lee.') William Jaggard left Fleet Street for Barbican about twenty years before this book appeared. But (as Mr. Pollard remarks on p. 117 of his 'Sh— folios and quartos') 'As usual, Mr. Lee offers a . . . confident account of everything.'

The published price was twenty shillings. This information is kindly supplied by Mr. R. C. Jackson (originator of the idea of the Bankside national memorial to Sh— at Southwark). He discovered it at Dulwich, on a letter from Wm. Cartwright to Edward Alleyn, founder of the College. Cartwright was an intimate friend and guest of Alleyn's from 1617 onwards. The memorandum runs :—

'Paid a sover-in for Shakspeer's booke of Plaies.'

The letter is dated 30th Nov., 1623, the very week of publication.

A curious early allusion is found in Wm. Prynne's Histrio-mastix, 1633 (q.v.), which runs :—'Some play-books are grown from quartos into folios ; Ben Jonson, Sh— and others . . . Sh—'s plays are printed in [on] the best crowne paper, far better than most Bibles. Above forty thousand play-books have been printed and vented within these two years.'

Dr. Furness remarks :—'Practically the text of the first four editions is the same.'

'This edition is greatly prized by amateurs, as it contains the only portrait which requires no evidence to support its authenticity.'—Anniversary Calendar 1832, p. 737.

The folio was reprinted more or less accurately in 1767-68, 1807, 1808, 1862-64, 1866, 1876, 1887, 1888-89, 1902, and 1910, under which years full details will be found.

For an index to the characters in the 1623 edition, see Smith (A. R.)

For criticism, and a history of the venture, see Greg (W. W.) ; Morgan (J. A.) ; Pollard (A. W.) ; Sh. Sh— bibliography ; and Wright (C.) ; in addition to the lengthy list of critics following the entries of Sh—'s works.

The Warwick copy, measuring 13¾ by 8¼in., and bound by Bedford in scarlet morocco, gold tooled, leaves gilt, and enclosed in an olive green morocco slip case, is perfect from beginning to end, and the condition unusually crisp and fine.

The Rylands copy was used by Theobald, from whom it passed in 1744 to Martin Folkes the antiquary (who assisted Theobald to edit Sh—). In 1756 George Steevens secured it for £35, and about 1790 it passed into Earl Spencer's library, now happily and permanently housed at Manchester.

Sh— Works . . .

The first edition probably consisted of 500 copies, of which about 250 survive, but fewer than twenty are perfect. The Van Antwerp copy, in March, 1907, realised £3,600. Earl Howe's copy, 13 by 8¼in., bound in contemporary calf, brought £2,025 in Dec., 1909. One sold in July, 1910, for £2,000, and another which had been repaired was disposed of in the same month for £1,800.

Text (numbered in three sections) pp. 1-304 (the last one blank), 1-232, 1-420 (the last one blank).

The text follows the first edition, with some corrections. For a list of signatures and irregularities, see 'B. M. Sh— catalogue 1897.'

Lowndes says:—'There were several proprietors of this edition (i.e., sharing the cost and profits), and each one seems to have had a title printed with his own name, so that some bear the name of Robert Allot, others William Aspley, Richard Hawkins, Richard Meighen, or John Smethwick.' Six variations of this kind are in the Lenox Library at New York. Lowndes avers a copy is in existence dated 1631, but gives no particulars. It might be a trial proof of 1632 or a misprint. No other record exists of a copy so dated.

The leaf of Ben Jonson's lines opposite title differs from the first issue in that the letter 'v' takes the place of 'u' in 'Grauer,' and capital letters replace the lower case ones in the words 'With, Wit, Brasse, Face.'

For variations between the first and second editions, see Capell's Shakespeareana, c. 1760, 6 vols.

At Warwick Castle are three copies in all of this folio. The first and finest measures 13⅜ by 9in., bound by Bedford in scarlet morocco, gold tooled, with leaves gilt. The second example bears many manuscript emendations in an old hand on the margins, and came from the library of S. W. Singer (q.v.) It is bound in calf, measures 13 by 8½in., lacks a leaf (pp. 149-150) in the first pagination, and lacks pp. 401-412 in the last part. The third copy is complete, bound in russia, and measures 12½ by 8¾in.

A copy bearing the Wm. Aspley imprint (rarest of the variations), originally in the Lucy library at Charlecote, was sold for £210 in March, 1907. It was disposed of many years previously in the sale at Hampton Lucy Rectory, upon the death of its former owner the Rev. John Lucy.

The second edition was reprinted in 1909.

BM | BPL | BUS | NY

The preliminary leaf of verses is signed 'B. J.' (instead of 'B. I.' as in the two earlier editions), and the words 'drawne, out-doo, looke, booke,' now appear as 'drawn, out-doe, look, book.' The prefatory leaves are set in a larger fount than before. This is the first edition to exhibit the final 'E' clipped from the poet's name, an ugly fashion which lasted until the dawn of the nineteenth century.

'Copies with this date,' says Lowndes, 'do not contain the seven spurious plays, and in some a space is left in the title-page for the portrait, but in a few copies the portrait is engraved [i.e. printed] on the title-page, and the verses by Ben Jonson in large type appear on a leaf opposite.'

Lowndes is hardly accurate. A few copies were issued with the ascribed plays.

The excessive rarity of the 1663 and 1664 issues is due to destruction of almost the entire impressions in the great London fire of 1666, as they lay unsold in the printer's warehouse. In point of rarity they are much scarcer than the first edition.

An example dated 1663 (possessing the seven attributed plays) sold in May, 1907 for £1,550. Earl Howe's copy, in contemporary calf, some edges rough, 13½ by 8¼in., realised £525 in Dec., 1907.

The Warwick Collection includes two copies. The finest, bound by Bedford in scarlet morocco, gold tooled, gilt leaves, measures 13¼ by 8⅝in., and is in perfect order. The second is minus the leaf of verses facing title, but has two extraneous leaves added (the 1663 leaf of verses and the title-page to that issue).

The imprint varies. One as follows sold for £215 in Dec., 1903, '. . . and are to be sold by Joseph Knight and Francis Saunders at the Anchor in the Lower Walk of the New Exchange 1685.'

In importance and interest, this edition ranks second perhaps to the editio princeps. It is the first manual text, the first to present a biography of the poet, the first to bear an editor's name, the first to possess illustrations, and the first of the endless army of editions in octavo. The text is copied from the fourth folio of 1685, and a companion (or seventh) volume was issued by another firm containing the 'Poems.' See next entry.

Rowe commissioned Thomas Betterton, the actor, to glean for him in and around Stratford particulars of Sh—'s life. At that period it was rather late in the day, but still possible to get a few authentic details.

The attributed plays are found also in this version, and the plates are of no small value because of their contemporary costume. In this issue will also be found the earliest effort to trace parallels between Sh— and other classics.

A few sets were printed on large paper (in roy. 8°), one of which is at Birmingham.

[Works: Poems] Volume the seventh. Containing Venus and Adonis, Tarquin and Lucreece, and his miscellany poems. With critical remarks on his plays, &c., to which is prefix'd, an essay on the art, rise and progress of the stage in Greece, Rome and England [by Charles Gildon. Edited by S. N——]. Ln: E. A few copies were struck off on large paper, one of which is at Birmingham.

John Philip Kemble's copy, extra-illustrated, is in the Cambridge Public Library.

The ninth volume contains the 'Poems . . . Essay on the art . . . of the stage, and Remarks on the plays of Sh—.' Each of the sonnets and poems is given a subject heading. The volume bears an imprint, differing from the preceding eight, as follows:— 'Ln: Printed for J. Darby in Bartholomew Close, for E. Curll, K. Sanger, and J. Pemberton. Sold by J. Tonson in the Strand; J. Knapton; and D. Midwinter in St. Paul's Churchyard; A. Betsworth on London Bridg; W. Taylor in Paternoster Row; N. Cliff and D. Jackson near the Poultry; T. Varnam and J. Osborn in Lombard Street; and J. Browne near Temple Bar MDCCXIV.'

It is illustrated with two copperplates engraved by Van der Gucht.

This edition of Sh—'s Works was sold also as separate plays, with the anonymous legend at foot of each title, 'Printed in the year MDCCXIV.' The first stage edition, being produced for sale at the theatres, and for disposal to pedlars who distributed the plays in rural districts.

Works of Mr. Wm. Sh— in nine volumes: with his life, by N. Rowe, Esq. Adorn'd with cuts. To the last volume is prefix'd, I. An essay on the art, rise, and progress of the stage in Greece, Rome, and England [by C. Gildon]; II. Observations upon the most sublime passages in this author [by C. Gildon]; III. A glossary, explaining the antiquated words made use of throughout his works. Ln: Printed for J. Tonson, E. Curll, J. Pemberton, and K. Sanger, 1714. 9 vols. 12°. With frontispiece-portrait and copperplates BM | BPL | SML

The ninth volume embraces the 'Poems, essay on the stage, and remarks on the plays,' and is fully entered under Sh— Poems, 1714 (q.v.) It is identical with the ninth tome in the preceding entry.

Works . . . In six volumes. Collated and corrected by the former editions by Mr. Pope [with 'Some account of the life, &c. of Mr. Wm. Sh—. Written by Mr. Rowe']. Ln: Printed for Jacob Tonson in the Strand, 1723-25. 6 vols. 4°. With portraits BM | BPL | BUS | CTC | MPL | NY | SML | W

Seven hundred and fifty sets were printed for sale at £3 6s. each.

The first edition in quarto, and the earliest edited by Alexander Pope. It embraces Pope's preface, the life by Rowe, an index of characters, sentiments, speeches, and descriptions, and a list of subscribers, in addition to the matter set forth on title. Of the two portraits engraved by G. Vertue, one is said by Boaden to represent King James in a large ruff, and the other, supposed to be the Stratford bust, is unlike it, inasmuch as it gives the poet a profusion of hair.

Volume one is dated 1725; the other five 1723.

'Pope (says Lowndes) is said to have been deficient in the industry of collation, and indulged too much in fanciful alterations. His edition did not satisfy the great expectations raised of it, and Theobald, who followed him, with less ability but more industry, was justly preferred, although he too has ventured upon many innovations.'

In the preface Pope says:—'If ever any author deserved the name of an original it was Sh—. Homer himself drew not his art so immediately from the fountains of nature; it proceeded through Egyptian strainers and channels and came to him not without some tincture of the learning or some cast of the models of those before him. The poetry of Sh— was inspiration indeed: he is not so much an imitator as an instrument of nature, and it is not so just to say that he speaks from her as that she speaks through him . . . Every single character in Sh— is as much an individual as those in life itself. The power over our passions was never possessed in a more eminent degree or displayed in so many instances. Yet all along there is seen no labour, no pains to raise them, no preparation to guide our guess to the effect or be perceived to lead towards it, but the heart swells and the tears burst out just at the proper places. . . . Nor does he only excel in the passions: in the coolness of reflection and reasoning he is full as admirable. . . . This is perfectly amazing from a man of no education or experience in those great and public scenes of life which are usually the subject of his thoughts. So that he seems to have known the world by intuition, to have looked through human nature at one glance and to be the only author that gives ground for a very new opinion—that the philosopher and even the man of the world may be born as well as the poet. . . .'

[Works: Poems] The seventh volume. Containing Venus and Adonis, Tarquin and Lucreece, and Mr. Sh—'s miscellany poems. To which is prefix'd, an essay on the art, rise, and progress of the stage, in Greece, Rome, and England [by C. Gildon]. And a glossary of the old words used in these works. The whole revis'd and corrected, with a preface by Dr. Sewell. Ln: Printed by J. Darby for A. Bettesworth, F. Fayram, W. Mears, J. Pemberton, J. Hooke, C. Rivington, F. Clay, J. Batley, E. Works of Sh—. Collated and corrected by the former editions, by Mr. Pope [Vol. VIII. revised by Dr. Sewell]. Dublin: G. Grierson . . . 1725-26. 8 vols. 8° BM | BPL

The first edition of Sh—'s works published in Ireland, and, almost needless to add, a piracy.

Although dated 1725-26, no sets were issued until the latter year. It appears to have met with poor encouragement, only 162 subscribers offering the needful support.

This second edition of Pope is said to contain additional notes and corrections.

The ninth volume, issued as a supplement, embraces 'Pericles' and the attributed plays, and (at end) a catalogue of publications, pp. vi.

According to Boaden, King James is really represented in the "portrait of Sh—."

The British Museum set formed part of Horace Walpole's library and bears MS. notes in his autograph.

A tenth volume was issued afterwards containing the Poems.

The first edition edited by Lewis Theobald.

'An edition of considerable merit, notwithstanding the abuse of it by Pope and Warburton.'—Lowndes.

The plates are accepted, together with those in Rowe's 1709 edition, as the earliest authentic pictures of the contemporary dress of the characters.

Seventy-five sets were done in royal 8° on large paper, 9¾ by 5¼in.

A list of subscribers is prefixed.

Theobald is stated to have aroused enmity by his outspoken criticism of Pope's edition, earning thereby for himself principal part in Pope's 'Dunciad.'

The second stage edition, being produced for sale at the theatres and for supplying pedlars.

Each play has a separate title-page and pagination.

The British Museum and Stratford Memorial possess sets dated in error 1635.

Considerable friction existed between the rival publishers of Sh—, Jacob Tonson and R. Walker. Appended to Tonson's edition of the separate plays of this period was the following notice:—

ADVERTISEMENT.—Jacob Tonson and the other proprietors of Sh—'s plays, designing to finish their edition now publishing with all speed, give notice, that with the last play they will deliver gratis general titles to each volume of the whole work so that each play may be bound in its proper place. And also do give further notice, that any play of Sh—'s that now is or hereafter shall be out of print will be reprinted without delay. So that all gentlemen who have bought these plays shall not be disappointed, but may depend on having their sets compleated.

N.B.—Whereas one R. Walker has proposed to pirate all Sh—'s plays but through ignorance of what plays are Sh—'s did in several advertisements propose to print OEDIPUS KING OF THEBES,' as one of Sh—'s plays, and has since printed Tate's 'King Lear' instead of Sh—'s, and in that and 'Hamlet' has omitted almost one half of the genuine editions printed by Tonson and proprietors, the world will therefore judge how likely they [sic] are to have a compleat collection of Sh—'s plays from the said R. Walker.

A ninth volume containing the attributed plays was issued.

Contains the Chandos portrait, views of the Westminster Abbey monument and Stratford bust, by Gravelot after Hayman (the latter altered as in Pope's edition), prefaces by Hanmer and Pope, and Rowe's life of Sh—.

The first edition edited by Hanmer and issued apparently under the auspices of the University delegates.

A few were done on large paper.

The first edition to contain the Westminster and Stratford monuments.

'This edition,' says Lowndes, 'though founded on Pope's and wilder even in conjectural criticism, rose to the value of ten guineas before it was reprinted in 1770-71, while Pope's six quartos were at the same period sold off at Tonson's sale at sixteen shillings per set.'

The British Museum and Birmingham sets are dated 1743-44.

BM | BPL | BUS | CTC | SML

The first edition from the pen of Bishop Warburton, who first pillories Theobald on the title-page and then pillages his best readings without acknowledgment, in fact adhering to Theobald's text throughout. Warburton received a well-deserved castigation in the sarcastic 'Supplement to Warburton's Sh—' by T. Edwards (q.v.)

Bearing these facts in mind, one may the better appreciate the humour of the flattering epitaph on Warburton in Gloucester cathedral.

'This edition, founded on Pope's, is thought to be the worst of all (says Lowndes) and was never esteemed. The editor does little more than make his author a stalking horse for the display of his own learning, though some of his conjectures and illustrations are happy.'

Works . . . collated and corrected by the former editions, by Mr. Pope. Printed from his second edition . . . Glasgow: Printed by Robert & Andrew Foulis, 1752-57. 16 vols. Cr. 8°

This first Scottish edition of the poet has eluded all previous bibliographers and the chief public collections of the poet. The plays were issued individually at intervals with separate paginations and titles, commencing with 'The tempest' in 1752 and ending with 'Othello' in 1757. It was re-issued in 1766 (uniformly dated) in 8 vols. with general titles, but still retaining the individual pagination and titles.

The first edition edited by the famous lexicographer, the first variorum edition, and the foundation of hundreds of subsequent issues.

'Though this edition disappointed public expectation it was acknowledged superior to any of its predecessors, and the preface commanded universal admiration.' —Lowndes.

Issue took place in Oct., 1765.

Johnson appears to have received £1,312 10s. as remuneration for his editorial labours. [See Wheatley.]

The Stratford set formerly belonged to the Rev. Joshua Brookes, the eccentric chaplain of Manchester Collegiate Church (now the Cathedral), and he extra-illustrated it with old Shakespearean prints of interest and value.

At Warwick is a set interleaved and extended to twenty-four volumes, octavo. A note in vol. 1 in the hand of J. O. Halliwell remarks: 'This copy is in contemporary half calf binding . . . and contains manuscript notes which I believe to be unpublished and to contain useful criticism. A few of the notes have been purposely mutilated [by a former owner] by tearing the pages containing them.'

The first issue under the editorship of Edward Capell, and the first to contain an attempt towards a bibliography.
'Capell, a careful and industrious editor' (remarks Lowndes) 'is praised for the purity of his collations, but not for any ingenuity; the notes and various readings promised on the title-page were not printed until 1779-80 and then only in quarto.'
A medallion portrait appears in vol. 1, p. 74, engraved by J. Miller. Capell's introduction occupies 74 pp., and he gives a bibliography, vol. 1, pp. 84-88.
The British Museum set is dated in error 1760-68, and a duplicate set in the same institution bears manuscript notes and corrections by Edward Malone, with a portrait of Capell inserted.
Capell's holograph MS. of this work in 6 vols. 4° is preserved at Trinity College, Cambridge.
The fine presswork is suggestive of Baskerville's or of W. Pickering's best efforts
A large paper set, measuring 7⅛ by 4½in. (the only one recorded), is in the collection of the writer.

BM | BPL | BUS | MPL | NY | W

An edition of unusual interest. It was produced at the suggestion of David Garrick, for sale at the great Stratford jubilee of 1769, and is the first Warwickshire edition of its deathless native.
The portrait by an unknown artist, specially engraved for this edition (not repeated elsewhere), presents the poet at the age of forty-five or thereabouts, a bust within an oval frame at the base of a monument, supported by the figures of 'Comedy,' 'Tragedy,' and 'Cupid,' the latter bearing Sh—'s coat-of-arms. Emblems of the sister arts 'Literature' and 'Music' bestrew the base of the column.
The first volume bears a general title in addition, which differs somewhat from the nine ordinary ones. The compositor omitted the letter 'p' from Wolverhamton and the letter 'u' from Glocester, in order perhaps to preserve the symmetry of the lines.
Robert Martin was Baskerville's foreman, and took over his business at this period. The issue appeared monthly in blue paper wrappers at 2/- per volume, and was produced in the great Birmingham printer's own workshop with his fine types.

Probably 9 vols.] 12°. With a frontispiece on copper preceding each play

Only fragments of this edition are available for public reference: at Stratford vol. 1, which contains 'The tempest, Midsummer night's dream, Two gentlemen of Verona, Measure for measure'; at Birmingham vol. 3, embracing 'Twelfth night, Merry wives, Taming of the shrew, Comedy of errors.'
Footnotes by Johnson, Warburton, Theobald, and others are appended.
The first edition to bear a Stratford imprint, and the only edition so far naming most of the other towns mentioned on the title.
Nicholas Boden was a trade rival of Baskerville's, and by issuing a folio Bible caused the latter to resume busine s after announcing his first retirement.

The copperplates include the Chandos portrait, Stratford bust (as altered for Pope's edition), and the Westminster monument. The introduction says:—'The first impression of 1744 having been small, was suddenly bought up and the original price advanced to a very exorbitant sum. A few sets were issued on large paper, f°, of which one is at Warwick Castle, and a second is in the writer's collection.

Lowndes was clearly mistaken when he doubted whether a large paper set ever existed.

Some sets are entirely dated 1771.

Vol. 1 contains two portraits (the Garrick statue as frontispiece, engraved by P. Halpin, and a vignette on p. 3 by Picot and Reilly which presents the poet with a humorous and distinctly Irish appearance. In addition, each part possesses an engraved title and a pretty vignette on copper by C. Grignion.

Some curious misprints occur. For example, p. 180 vol. 1 quotes an edition of the 'Passionate pilgrim dated 1559,' or just forty years before it appeared. Further on, the 'Pape of Lucrece' startles the eye.

All the preliminary matter is pirated from Capell's edition, 1767-68.

Works of Sh—. In which the beauties observed by Pope, Warburton, and Dodd are pointed out. Together with the author's life; a glossary, copious indexes, and a list of the various readings. [Edited by Hugh Blair.] Edinburgh: Printed by A. Donaldson, and sold at his shop, corner of Arundel Street, Strand, London, and at Edinburgh, 1771. 8 vols. Cr. 8° BM | BPL | SML

David Garrick possessed a set on large paper.

A set given by the editor to Robert Burns, and bearing his (Burns') autograph, was sold at auction in New York in 1901.

Ridley, 1773. 8 vols. 12°. With portrait by J. Hall of 'Wm. Sh— at the age of 40' BM | BPL | NY | SML

The last volume contains a bibliography of early editions (commencing with the Jaggard canon). It is divided into three sections, headed:—'Editions of authority, of middle authority, of no authority.' The latter includes Rowe's edition (with presumably the biography) of 1709.

The British Museum set bears MS. notes in the autograph of S. T. Coleridge.

Sh— Works . . .

. . . 1773. 10 vols. Cr. 8°. With portrait by G. Vertue BM | BPL | BUS | MPL | SML

Remainder of imprint identical with preceding entry of same year.

'This edition, in which were united the native powers of Dr. Johnson with the activity, sagacity, and antiquarian learning of George Steevens, superseded all previous editions and became the standard for future editors and publishers.'—Lowndes.

[Works] Bell's edition of Sh—'s plays, as they are now performed at the Theatres Royal in London, regulated from the prompt books of each house . . . [and the 'Poems']. With notes critical and illustrative [an essay on oratory and the life of Sh—] by the authors of the 'Dramatic censor' [Francis Gentleman]. Ln: John Bell . . . 1773-74. 9 vols. 12°. With portrait, also scene and character plates by Sherwin, Grignion, E. Edwards, and Isaac Taylor, engraved on copper by J. Hall and others; forty plates in all, prepared under the superintendence of F. Bartolozzi BM | BPL | SML

A general title-page appears in each of the volumes, in addition to the independent title to each play. All the plays were paginated and printed separately for the use of playgoers. The 'Poems' fill the whole of the ninth volume, with a special title-page.

Like that of 1747, this edition (dedicated to Garrick) was accused of being the worst ever published.

To be 'damned with faint praise' sometimes proves the best aid to sales, as in this case. It scored a greater success than any previous issue, one week alone witnessing the sale of eight hundred sets. Doubtless the beautiful copperplates helped the output considerably.

The list of subscribers' names and addresses in vol. 1 occupies 23 pages, and includes Garrick, Tate Wilkinson, Douce, and other familiar names. One American figures in it, Benjamin Guarred of South Carolina, who ordered a 'Royal paper set.'

Of these 'Royal' or large paper sets, 8°, 134 were subscribed for, and thirteen hundred ordinary sets, of which 98 were ordered from Edinburgh alone.

In the publisher's announcement (p. 24) the volumes were offered 'sewn' (i.e. unbound) at 3/- each.

In 1794 some of the plays were reprinted with that date, added to older issues dated 1774, and published collectively with the former engraved general title.

The publishers asserted the portrait of Sh— was copied from the 'most authenticated painting of the poet,' while that of Garrick was after an 'original picture just finished by Mr. Dance, which is esteemed the best likeness that has yet been taken.'

It is the first edition with artistic illustrations, and clearly influenced by the unrivalled French school of the period.

'It appears (says Lowndes) that Theobald received £652 10s. as his share of profits on his various editions, of which no fewer than 12,860 copies were printed. No other editor gained so much.' Lowndes is wrong in this. Dr. Johnson received more than double this amount. (See Sh— Works, 1765.)

'Malone is generally accredited as a very painstaking and faithful, though not brilliant, editor. But Dr. Symmons, a more recent critic, thought otherwise when he wrote:—"Neither the indulged fancy of Pope, nor the fondness for innovation in Hanmer, nor the arrogant and headlong self-confidence of Warburton has inflicted such cruel wounds on the text of Sh— as the assuming dulness of Malone. Barbarism and broken rhythm dog him at the heels wherever he treads."'—Lowndes.
Some sets were done on fine paper for presents.

[Works] Dramatic works of Sh—. Revised by George Steevens. [Edited by J. Boydell.] Ln: Printed by Bulmer & Co. for John & Josiah Boydell and Nicol, 1802. 18 parts, forming 9 vols. F° BM | BPL | BUS | MPL | NY | SML
This set contains Boydell's series of one hundred large copperplates from paintings by leading English artists of the time, Reynolds, Smirke, Northcote, Porter, Stothard, Hamilton, Bunbury, Opie, and Westall.
According to the prospectus, issued in 1786, a type foundry, an ink factory, and a printing house were all specially erected for the production of this edition. As a matter of fact, issue of this work began serially in 1791 (q.v.)
During the last decade or two, complete surviving sets have greatly decreased in number owing to a curious utilitarian development. Print dealers have discovered that this edition can be profitably broken up, the plates when framed being specially adapted for wall decoration.

Open letter proof sets contain ninety-eight etchings only.
The set is reprinted from Boydell's edition of Sh— works, 1802.
A smaller extra plate, entitled 'Sh— nursed by tragedy and comedy,' engraved by Smith after Romney, is sometimes found with the set, making 101 plates in all. The full collection embraces the 'Seven ages'; Sh— as painted by Smirke; portraits of King George III. and Queen Charlotte.

[Works] Series of engravings to illustrate the works of Sh—. Painted by T. Stothard. Engraved by J. Heath. Ln: . . . 1802. 4° CPL

[Works] A collection of prints from pictures painted for the purpose of illustrating the dramatic works of Sh— [published by J. & J. Boydell in 1802] by the artists of Great Britain. Ln: J. & J. Boydell, 1802-03. 2 vols. F°. One hundred plates BM | BPL | BUS | MPL
The dedication is dated 1805.
The artists and plates are identical with those described in the 1802 issue.

The first Boston edition, probably edited by David Francis, one of its printer-publishers, 'all his life a lover and careful reader of Sh—.' It passed through two subsequent editions (see 1807 and 1810-12). In the Lenox Library set of the third edition, at New York, is this interesting manuscript entry by D. Francis the publisher:—'In 1802 Munroe and Francis issued proposals for publishing an edition of Sh— in serial numbers, two plays to a volume, at fifty cents per number, complete in 16 numbers. Two editions were printed. A third was demanded and we added the "Poems," making 18 numbers. These editions were all printed from types, reset every edition, as stereotype was not then known. The presswork was mostly done by Munroe and Francis personally, on a hand press with inking balls of sheepskin, the ink distributed by hand. These volumes are a specimen of the paper and print. Paper demy size (19in. by 20in.), costing five dollars a ream, made by hand. Ink and type imported, none worth using being made here. The engravings were executed by Dr. Alexander Anderson of New York,' the first professional wood engraver in America.

The titles, copied from the 1792 Edinburgh edition, have vignette portraits, and each play is separately paged.

[Works] A new edition of Sh—'s plays from the corrected text of Johnson and Steevens, with prints engraved by Mr. Heath. [Ten plays.] Ln: Heath & Robinson, 1802-04. 10 parts. 4° BM

The B.M. copy is without title-page. The above particulars are taken from the prospectus inserted in the first number.

In the writer's collection is a set extra-illustrated with portrait by C. Warren, &c., and 119 stipple copperplates by Corbould, Gardiner, Porter, Rivers, Singleton, Stothard, Thurston, and others.

[Works] Plays . . . In twenty-one volumes. With the corrections and illustrations of various commentators. To which are added, notes by Samuel Johnson and George Steevens. Fifth edition. Revised and augmented by Isaac Reed, with a glossarial index. Ln: Printed for J. Johnson . . . 1803. 21 vols. 8°

BM | BPL | BUS | MPL | NY | SML | W

Felton portrait engraved by Neagle. Includes the 'advertisement' by Reed, Mr. Richardson's proposals, Capell's introduction, Malone's preface, and other preliminary matter as in the previous editions by Johnson and Steevens. From Lowndes we learn this issue is an amplification of the 1793 edition, and was left in an advanced state of preparation by George Steevens, who died in 1800. Reed received £300 for editing it, and Harrison £100 for correcting the press. Some of the original proof sheets, with manuscript corrections, are in the British Museum.

The gross sum produced by the output of fifteen hundred copies was £5,844.

For comment on this issue see Howe.

[Works] Plays . . . Fifth edition. Revised by Isaac Reed . . . Ln: Printed for J. Johnson, 1803. [21 vols.] Vol. I. only. 8° W

This volume, containing the prolegomena, came from the library of R. B. Wheler, historian of Stratford-on-Avon, and is preserved on account of the numerous manuscript notes in his autograph it contains.

[Works] Plays . . . Ln: Printed by T. Bensley for Wynne & Scholey and J. Wallis, 1803-05. 8 vols. 8°. Illustrated

BM | BPL | MPL | NY | SML

Some sets were issued on large paper (with two extra volumes), royal 8° size, one of which is at Warwick Castle.

The woodcuts by J. Thurston, after W. H. Pyne, and P. J. Loutherbourg are unworthy of the fine letterpress work.

Includes Rowe's life of the poet.

Each play is separately paged, and selected observations are appended.

Of the two additional volumes found with large paper sets vol. 9 contains the prefaces by Heminge and Condell, Pope, Theobald, Hanmer, Warburton, and Johnson; two 'advertisements' by Steevens; Capell's introduction; Monck Mason's preface to his comments; Farmer's essay on Sh—; Malone's preface, Essay on the chronology of Sh—'s plays, and a history of the stage. Volume 10 includes selected annotations from various commentators and a glossary.

A set of this issue (extended to 20 vols.) printed on vellum (said to be the 'only edition on vellum,' but this is far from correct) was sold 2nd March, 1906, for £106, to an American collector.

Edited by Francis Douce.

This, the first reprint of the first edition in its original form, was executed by J. Wright, St. John's Square, Ln. Wm. Upcott discovered errors, and set to work to collate it with the original. After one hundred and forty-five days' attention, he compiled a list of 368 errors. This fact coming to the notice of John and Arthur Arch, the Cornhill booksellers, two promoters of the supposed facsimile, they importuned him to sell the list to them. Eventually he consented, expecting fair remuneration for his five months' close work. All he received was a copy of the reprint, published at five guineas. [See Notes and Queries, 1st s., vol. vii., p. 47, and 3rd s., vol. 7, p. 139.]

The paper used 'was specially made, and bears the watermark of 'Sh— 1806.'

The Warwick copy is extra-illustrated with one hundred and twenty-seven plates (from Harding's 'Sh— illustrated,' largest paper), the Felton portrait of Sh— engraved by T. Trotter, 1793, in three differing proof states; two portraits of Edmund Kean as Richard the third; and others.

One of the two copies at Stratford contains a manuscript list of errata by Wm. Upcott.

Of the three copies printed on India paper one is in the British Museum.

John Keats (q.v.) wrote some 'Marginalia' upon this reprint.

[Works] Plays and poems of Wm. Sh—, with the corrections and illustrations of various commentators: comprehending a life of the poet and an enlarged history of the stage by the late Edmund Malone, with a new glossarial index. Seventh edition. [Edited by James Boswell. Malone's 'Variorum edition.'] Ln: F. C. & J. Rivington . . . 1821. 21 vols. 8° BM | BPL | MPL | NY | SML

The first edition edited by James Boswell, junior.
At his death in 1812 Malone bequeathed his MS. collections for a fresh edition of Sh— to his friend Boswell the younger, and this issue was the result. It forms a valuable mine of Shakespearean information which time has scarcely affected.
It includes the Chandos portrait, the Burgess miniature, the Stratford bust, and facsimiles.

[Works] Plays . . . Ln: Printed [by Corrall for] William Pickering, 1822-23. 9 vols, issued in 36 parts. 32°. With portrait BM | BPL | SML

Miniature edition, set in diamond type.
The smallest form, up to the end of the nineteenth century, in which Sh— appeared; in contradistinction to the largest edition, issued by Halliwell, 1853-65.
Some sets were issued with thirty-eight engravings after Stothard, and a few sets were impressed entirely upon India paper and published in silk boards.
By some strange oversight the whole of a 'Midsummer night's dream' was omitted from the earliest printings of this edition. The error was afterwards made good by the play being inserted, its pagination being marked with full-points.

[Works . . . edited by Sir Walter Scott and John Gibson Lockhart. Edinburgh: Printed by J. Ballantyne & Co. for A. Constable, 1825.] [Vols. 2 to 4.] 3 vols. 8°. [All ever printed] BUS

In a letter dated 1822, A. Constable suggested to Scott a plan for issuing 'Sh— in twelve or fourteen volumes, with a set of readable and amusing notes.' After further correspondence it was decided to publish it in ten vols., the first to contain a general introduction and life of the dramatist by Scott, while the editing and notes were to be done by Lockhart. Scott was to receive £2,500. The sequel to the project is found in a letter from Constable's son, who wrote:—'Three volumes of the edition were completed before the sad crisis in 1826 and then laid aside, and ultimately, I have been told, the sheets were sold in London as waste paper. It is even doubted whether one copy be now in existence.'

Fortunately one set did survive. It was bought by the bookseller Thomas Rodd at an Edinburgh sale, who wrote in vol. 2:—'The book bears marks of Scott's usual inaccuracies.' This copy is now at Boston.

There are no title-pages. Each play has a brief introduction and foot-notes.

Issued by subscription, with list of buyers, and plates on plain paper, at £105, or with India paper plates (25 sets done) at £150. The whole impression was numbered and signed by the editor and printers, and the issue strictly confined to one hundred and fifty sets. All the blocks and plates employed were afterwards destroyed. There are 142 plates, in addition to the numerous textual woodcuts.
The most extensive repository of literary, historical, and archæological information regarding Sh— and his writings to be found in any single work, and, typographically, the most sumptuous edition.
'Titus Andronicus' and 'King Henry VI.' are printed in smaller type, as Halliwell doubted their Shakespearean authorship.
A critical review in the 'Athenæum' (1853, p. 796) provoked a pamphlet retort from Halliwell entitled, 'Curiosities of modern Shaksperian criticism' (q.v. under Halliwell).
The first issue actually edited by Halliwell, three previous editions bearing his name being fraudulent.
The largest form in which the bard has yet appeared, in contradistinction to Bryce's tiny edition of 1908 (q.v.)
Half a century after publication the set largely retained its original value. An exemplar sold in July, 1923, brought £70.

Issue limited to fifty sets, of which Halliwell destroyed nineteen, and as a fire at the Pantechnicon, 13th Feb., 1874 (where the stock was stored) destroyed others, Halliwell concluded that no more than fifteen complete sets exist. Printed on one side of the leaf only. Subscribed at £5 5s. per volume.

'Every single letter has been traced from the originals by hand, and for practical uses this series is as valuable as a collection of the early quartos themselves.'

A full list of the series may be seen in Halliwell's 'Skeleton handlist 1880.'

The series does not include 'Titus Andronicus, 1594,' as the only known copy was not found until 1904.

First edition of the 'Cambridge Sh—.'

Volumes 2 to 6 were edited by W. G. Clark and W. A. Wright, and vol. 1 by J. Glover.

Reviewed in Dublin Univ. Mag., Feb., 1864. For many years this was considered the purest text available.

G. R. French's laborious 'Shakespeareana genealogica' was issued as a supplement to this edition, and like many other good books failed to find a market until too late, when practically the whole edition had been sacrificed as a 'job lot.'

'. . . Or my Sh—; my great Cambridge Sh—; it has an odour which carries me yet further back in life, for these volumes belonged to my father, and before I was old enough to read them with understanding it was often permitted me to take down one of them from the bookcase and reverently to turn the leaves. . . . What a strange tenderness comes upon me when I hold one of them in hand. For that reason I do not often read Sh— in that edition. . . .—George Gissing [in 'Private papers of Hy. Rycroft'].

An edition founded on the 'Cambridge Sh—' of 1863-66, and which, through the purity of its text, achieved an enormous sale.

In a re-issue in the same year the frontispiece was changed.
The first edition under the auspices of Dr. Furnivall.
'Altogether a "manly man," as Chaucer says, this Sh—, strong, tender, humorful, sensitive, impressionable, the truest friend, the foe of none but narrow minds and base. . . . What can we do but bless his name, and be thankful that he came to be a delight, a lift, and strength to us and our children's children to all time, a bond that shall last for ever between all English-speaking, English-reading men, the great Teutonic brotherhood which shall yet long lead the world in the fight for freedom and for truth.'—Introduction.

Comprises: 'Hamlet, King Richard III., Merchant of Venice, Much ado, Romeo and Juliet, Twelfth night, Winter's tale.'

[Works] 'Hamnet edition.' Plays . . . according to the first folio [spelling modernised]. With tables shewing the number of emphasis-capitals lost and gained by each of Sh—'s plays under each of the second, third and fourth folios, and a few interim remarks upon the facts these tables present and the questions they suggest, by Allan Park Paton. Edinburgh: Edmonston & Company. Ln: Longman & Co. Greenock: William Hutchison, 1877-96. 10 vols. 8° BM | BPL | BUS | MPL | SML
The editor's theory is that the lavish use of capitals in Sh—'s manuscripts and the Jaggard canon was for the express purpose of emphasis.
This excellent venture was never completed.

NOTE.—Extracts from Sh—'s writings now follow, in chronological sequence, with a terminal key to references.—W. J.

[Works: Extracts] England's parnassus, or the choysest flowers of our moderne poets, with their poeticall comparisons, &c., whereunto are annexed various other discourses, both pleasant and profitable

Sh— [Works: Extracts]—

[edited by Robert Allot]. Ln: Printed for N. L——, C. B——, and Th. Hayes, 1600. Cr. 8° BUS | CTC | W

Collation: Two blank leaves (one sig. A), title, dedication 'to Syr Thomas Mounson,' 'to the reader,' and 'errata' (should read 'contents'); 6 leaves in all. Text, B1 to Kk8 (pp. 510), the last leaf blank.

With seventy-nine extracts from Sh—; perhaps the most remarkable evidence of contemporary appreciation of his worth.

Collier's 'Bibliog. account of early English literature' says Allot used over fifty different writers for his compilation. Spenser stands first with 255 quotations, and Sh— is eighth on the list.

It was reprinted in 'Heliconia' (q.v.)

See 'Notes and Queries,' 1908-09, for a valuable dissection of and key to the volume by Charles Crawford.

[Works: Ext.] Jonson (B.) Herrick (Robert) Suckling (Sir J.) & others. Select musicall ayres and dialogues [with music by John Wilson, Dr. Charles Coleman, Henry Lawes, William Lawes, William Webb, Nicholas Lanneare, William Smegergil, Edward Colman, and Jeremy Savile]. Ln: Printed by T. H—— for John Playford and are to be sold at his shop in the Inner Temple near the Church doore, 1653. F°

Many of these songs were rendered by Jack Wilson, the earliest recorded singer of 'Sigh no more, Ladies.'

[Works: Ext.] Poole (Joshua) English parnassus, a helpe to English poesie. Containing a collection of all the rhythming monosyllables, the choicest epithets and phrases. With some general forms upon all occasions, subjects and themes, alphabetically digested. Ln: . . . 1657. 8°, pp. 598 BPL | W

'Sh— was one of the greatest geniuses that the world ever saw for the tragic stage. Though he lay under greater disadvantages than any of his successors, yet had he greater and more genuine beauties than the best and greatest of them. And what makes the brightest glory of his character, those beauties were entirely his own, and owing to the force of his own nature; whereas his faults were owing to his education, and to the age that he lived in. One may say of him, as they did of Homer, that he had none to imitate, and is himself inimitable.'

Contains (pp. 1183-1185) a life of Sh— by the editor, which is chiefly remarkable for crediting the poet with one child only, no mention being made of his twins Hamnet and Judith.
The volume likewise omits lives of the poet's father, mother, brothers and sisters.
This is going one better than Dodd (Beauties of Sh—, 1811) who says, 'Sh— had three daughters,' and ignores his son Hamnet.

'In a conversation between Sir John Suckling, Sir W. D'Avenant, Endymion Porter, Mr. Hales of Eton, and Ben Jonson—Sir John Suckling, who was a professed admirer of Sh—, had undertaken his defence against Ben Jonson with some warmth. Mr. Hales, who had sat still for some time, hearing Ben frequently reproaching him [Sh—] with want of learning and ignorance of the ancients, told him at last that if Mr. Sh— had not read the ancients he had likewise not stolen anything from 'em [a fault the other made no conscience of], and that if he would produce any one topic finely treated by any of them, he would undertake to show something upon the same subject at least as well written by Sh—.'

Valuable for the insight shown in chapter x., headed 'How Sh—'s senses were trained' (pp. 171-208), which sets forth the growth and formation of earth's greatest mind, in Warwickshire farm, field, and forest life, by Stratford lanes and hedgesides, in rustic festival and merrymaking, on the Avon's twenty-mile course between Kenilworth and Bidford, or about the stately castles of Warwick and Kenilworth, where for centuries English history revolved.
Gives insight also into the probable cause of Sh—'s death and the extinction of his direct race.

'Sh—'s tragic story is summed up in his insensate and prolonged love for Mary Fitton, the maid of honour, who had originally betrayed him by yielding to his noble friend Herbert. To the torments of frustrate desire, exquisite in a nature at once acutely sensitive and sensual, are due the last reaches and terrible scope of the great tragedies. . . . That Mr. Harris has realised Sh— more actually than any previous writer —a great achievement—is past doubt.'—Saturday Review, 20th Nov., 1909, pp. 633-634.
A contrary view is taken in the review by 'The Bookman,' Feb., 1910, pp. 232-233, which discourteously declares that 'such judgment would be incapable of measuring a puddle.'

Off-printed from Malone's 'Variorum Sh—,' 1821.

As presents, twenty-one copies were executed on fine paper, roy. 8°, for Boswell.

The four-page prospectus of this 'Life,' issued as a supplement to his 'Inquiry . . . 1796' contains some useful hints to original searchers. Malone points out that Lady Barnard appointed her kinsman, Edward Bagley, of London, as her executor and residuary legatee. He would become possessed of her coffers, cabinets, and grandfather's papers in 1670. If one could trace his death and legatees, it is just possible the history of Lady Barnard's effects might be followed.

Again, on the death of Sir John Barnard, in 1674, administration of his effects was granted to his daughters (by a former wife) and their husbands. Some of the poet's papers might have fallen into their hands. They were (1) Elizabeth, who married Henry Gilbert, of Locko, Derbyshire; (2) Mary, who married Thomas Higgs, of Colesborne; (3) Eleanor, who married Samuel Cotton.

Sh— purchased property of Ralph Hubaud, brother of Sir John Hubaud, of Ipsley, Warwickshire. Some instrument executed or attested by the poet may still lie buried among the papers of that estate.

If any descendant of John Heminges, the actor, still survives, possessing his ancestor's deeds, papers, account books, or theatrical contracts, these would throw light on the stage history of Sh—'s period.

John Heminges died in Oct., 1630, leaving a son (1) named William (the latter died about 1650) and four married daughters (2) Alice, who married John Atkins; (3) Rebecca, who married Capt. Wm. Smith; (4) Margaret, who married Thomas Sheppard; (5) name untraced, who became Mrs. Merefield.

] Sh—'s portrait. Droeshout picture, painted upon a prepared surface of white jesso upon an old panel of elm [probably by an Italian ceiling artist, settled in Ln. c. 1623 ?] SML
Sir Wm. Richmond, R.A. believes this to be the undoubted original of the clumsy Droeshout engraving. It was purchased by Mrs. Charles E Flower for the low sum of £150, and presented to the Sh— Memorial. It was reproduced in colours in 1910, and has frequently been engraved.
It is also known as the Flower portrait.

Produced for charity on behalf of the Chelsea Hospital for Women.

The sonnet by Robert Browning, headed 'The names,' is as follows:—

'Sh—! to such name's sounding, what succeeds
Fitly as a silence? Falter forth the spell,
Act follows word, the speaker knows full well,
Nor tampers with its magic more than needs.
Two names there are: that which the Hebrew reads
With his soul only; if from lips it fell,
Echo, back thundered by earth, heaven and hell,
Would own 'Thou didst create us.' Nought impedes.
We voice the other name, man's most of might,
Awesomely, lovingly; let awe and love
Mutely await their working, leave to sight
All of the issue, as below, above,
Sh—'s creation rises; one remove
Though dread—this finite from that infinite.'

'In the heaven of our tragic song, the first born star on the forehead of its herald god was not outshone till the full midsummer meridian of that greater godhead before whom he [Marlowe] was sent to prepare a pathway for the sun. Through all the forenoon of our triumphant day, till the utter consummation and ultimate ascension of dramatic poetry incarnate and transfigured in the master singer of the world, the quality of his tragedy was as that of Marlowe's, broad, single, and intense; large of hand, voluble of tongue, direct of purpose. . . . With the dawn of its latter epoch, a new power comes upon it, to find clothing and expression in new forms of speech and after a new style. The language has put off its foreign decorations of lyric and elegiac ornament; it has found already its infinite gain in the loss of those sweet, superfluous graces which encumbered the march and enchained the utterance of its childhood.'

At p. 280 is the sonnet :—
'Not if men's tongues and angels' all in one
Spake, might the word be said that might speak thee.
Streams, winds, woods, flowers, fields, mountains, yea, the sea
What power is in them all to praise the sun?
His praise is this—he can be praised of none,
Man, woman, child, praise God for him; but he
Exults not to be worshipped, but to be.
He is, and, being, beholds his work well done.
All joy, all glory, all sorrow, all strength, all mirth
Are his; without him, day were night on earth.
Time knows not his from time's own period.
All lutes, all harps, all viols, all flutes, all lyres
Fall dumb before him ere one string suspires.
All stars are angels; but the sun is God.'

Index to the [catalogue of the] Sh— memorial library. Birmingham: Jones . . . 1903. 4°, pp. 8
The preface, which gives some interesting statistics, says:—'The proposal for a Sh— library was made by Samuel Timmins in 1858, and publicly advocated by George Dawson in 1861. . . . Mr. Dawson said, "I want to see founded in Birmingham a Sh— library which should contain every edition and every translation of Sh—; all the commentators, good, bad, and indifferent; in short, every book connected with the life or works of our great poet. I would add portraits of Sh— and all the pictures, etc. illustrative of his works."'
How faithfully the city has lived up to this noble ideal is to be seen by its great assemblage, completely recorded in print for the first time in this bibliography.

Simmons (Thomas) & Jaggard (William)] Index catalogue of the manuscript and printed literature gathered by George Guy Greville fourth Earl of Warwick, designated the 'General library,' at Warwick Castle. Leamington Spa: T. Simmons, 1890. Manuscript, written upon handmade parchment and bound in green vellum, deckle edges. F° W
This collection of books is rich in early printed and early English literature, much of it illustrative of Sh—'s time and works. The books repose on bookcases fashioned by the Earl's workmen from cedar of Lebanon, grown on the estate by the Avon.
The arrangement, collation, and cataloguing occupied about twelve months. The above is now the only copy existing, the first rough transcript being accidentally destroyed.

'Methinks I see with fancy's magic eye
The shade of Sh— in yon azure sky;
On yon high cloud behold the bard advance,
Piercing all nature with a single glance.
In various attitudes around him stand
The passions waiting for his dread command:
First, kneeling, love before his feet appears
And, musically sighing, melts in tears.
Near him fell jealousy, with fury burns,
And into storms the amorous breathing turns;
Then hope, with heavenward look and joy draws near,
While palsied terror trembles in the rear.'

Sprague (Charles) Prize ode . . . recited at the representation of the Sh— jubilee. Boston [U.S.], 13 Feb., 1824. 8°, pp. 8 BM | BUS

'Who now shall grace the glowing throne
Where all unrivalled, all alone,
Bold Sh— sat, and looked creation through—
The minstrel monarch of the worlds he drew?
That throne is cold, that lyre in death unstrung
On whose proud note delighted wonder hung;
Yet old oblivion, as in wrath he sweeps,
One spot shall spare, the grave where Sh— sleeps.
Rulers and ruled in common gloom may lie,
But nature's laureate bards shall never die;
Art's chiselled boast and glory's trophied shore
Must live in numbers, or can live no more.
While sculptured Jove some nameless waste may claim,
Still roars the Olympic car in Pindar's fame;
Troy's doubtful walls, in ashes passed away,
Yet frown on Greece in Homer's deathless lay;
Rome, slowly sinking in her crumbling fanes,
Stands all immortal in her Maro's strains.

So, too, yon giant empress of the isles,
On whose broad sway the sun for ever smiles,
To time's unsparing rage one day must bend,
And all her triumphs in her Sh— end!
Still o'er our land shall Albion's sceptre wave,
And what her mighty lion lost, her mightier swan shall save.'

Steele (Sir Richard) Essay on Ravenscroft's 'The London cuckolds' [In 'The Tatler,' No. 8, 28 April, 1709]

'The play of the "London cuckolds" was acted this evening before a suitable audience, who were extremely well diverted with that heap of vice and absurdity . . . The amendment of these low gratifications is only to be made by people of condition, by encouraging the presentation of the noble characters drawn by Sh— and others, from whence it is impossible to return without strong impressions of honour and humanity. On these occasions distress is laid before us with all its causes and consequences, and our resentment placed according to the merit of the persons afflicted. Were dramas of this nature more acceptable to the taste of the town, men who have genius would bend their studies to excel in them.'

] Letter from George Peele to Christopher Marlowe [In 'Annual Register,' p. 107]. Ln: 1770. 8°
Reprinted in 'The drama,' 1822, vol. ii., p. 87.
The second attempt in the lengthy series of Shakespearean forgeries. Steevens was imitated by the Irelands, Jordan, Collier, Cunningham, and others.
The letter is as follows:—
'Friend Marlo,—I must desyre that my syster hyr watche and the cookerie book you promysed may be sent hye the man. I never longed for thy company more than last night. We were all very merry at the Globe, when Ned Alleyn did not scruple to affyrme plesauntely to thy friende Will that he had stolen his speeche about the qualityes of an actor's excellencye in "Hamlet" hys trajedye from conversations manyfold which had passed between them and opinyons given by Alleyn touchinge the subjecte.
'Shakespeare did not take this talke in good sorte but Jonson put an end to the strife, with wittylye remarkinge:—"This affaire needeth no contentione; you stole it from Ned, no doubte; do not marvel; have you not seen him act tymes out of number?" Believe me most syncerilie, yours,—G. Peel.'
Such a document would hardly deceive an amateur to-day.

The hours and cares that moved a great man's breast!
Though nought of all we saw the grave may spare,
His life pervades the world's impregnate air.
Above the goodly land more his than ours
He sits supreme, enthroned in skyey towers,
And sees the heroic brood of his creation
Teach larger life to his ennobled nation.
O! shaping brain! O! flashing fancy's hues;
O! boundless heart, kept fresh by pity's dews;
O! wit humane and blythe! O! sense sublime
For each dim oracle of mantled time!
Transcendent form of man! in whom we read
Mankind's whole tale of impulse, thought, and deed,
Amid the expanse of years beholding thee,
We know how vast our world of life may be
Wherein, perchance, with aims as pure as thine,
Small tasks and strengths may be no less divine.'

In vol. 2, pp. 273-274, is the sonnet headed the 'Mighty makers':—

'And such was Sh—, whose strong soul could climb
Steeps of sheer terror, sound the ocean grand
Of passions deep, or over fancy's strand
Trip with his fairies, keeping step and time;
His, too, the power to laugh out full and clear
With unembittered joyance, and to move
Along the silent shadowy paths of love
As tenderly as Dante, whose austere
Stern spirit through the worlds below, above,
Unsmiling strode, to tell their tidings here.'

John Morgan ran this organ for twenty-four years successfully, but towards the end became embarrassed financially, for on the 18th Dec., 1885 he announced the forthcoming suspension of publication and added, 'For a long time we have been greatly hampered by the lack of adequate office accommodation and by want of modern machinery and appliances. In consequence of these hindrances we have been unable to devote more than four of our pages to local and district news and topics . . .' Before his death Morgan stated he lost £1,000 on the venture ultimately.

It gives a full illustrated account of the Sh— tercentenary of 1864, and a mass of other Shakespearean and Stratfordian historical matter.

A weekly newspaper containing innumerable Sh— articles. It was founded by Edward Adams in 1860 as a small four-page paper, partly printed in London. On the death of Adams it was purchased by a small Stratford syndicate, William Hutchings, Edward Downing, and Robert Lunn, in or about 1876, and was enlarged to eight pages, entirely produced in Stratford. This syndicate erected the present suite of offices and workshops, and lost about £3,000 on the venture. In 1880 the property passed to the present editor and proprietor, George Boyden, by purchase.

Table book, or memorandum book. Manuscript, on sixteen leaves of paper, suitable for erasure. 1701-02. 12° W

Traces remain of the removal of older entries than those now appearing in this example. Old table books are of the greatest rarity. Douce possessed one, and only two others are traceable, both in private museums. They were clearly familiar to Sh—, who wrote:

'Brooch, table book, ballad, knife, tape, glove.'—Winter's tale.

'If I had play'd the desk or table book, or given my heart a winking.'—Hamlet.

'Lisping to his master's old tables, his note book, his counsel keeper.'—King Henry IV.

'Therefore will he wipe his tables clean
And keep no tell-tale to his memory.'—King Henry IV.

'From the table of my memory I'll wipe away all trivial fond records.'—Hamlet.

'My tables—meet it is I set it down,
That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain.'

At p. 224 is the poem entitled 'Sh—'s statue, Central Park, New York, 23 May, 1872.'

'Here, in his right, he stands!
No breadth of earth-dividing seas can bar
The breeze of morning, or the morning star
From visiting our lands:
His wit the breeze, his wisdom as the star
Shone where our earliest life was set, and blew
To freshen hope and plan
In brains American.
To urge, resist, encourage, and subdue
He came, a household ghost we could not ban.
He sat, on winter nights, by cabin fires;
His summer fairies linked their hands
Along our yellow sands;
He preached within the shadow of our spires;
And when the certain fate drew nigh, to cleave
The birth-cord, and a separate being leave,
He, in our ranks of patient-hearted men,
Wrought with the boundless forces of his fame
Victorious, and became
The master of our thought, the land's first citizen.
If, here, his image seem
Of softer scenes and grayer skies to dream,
Thatched cot and rustic tavern, ivied hall,
The cuckoo's April call
And cowslip-meads beside the Avon stream,
He shall not fail that other home to find
We could not leave behind!'

In vol. 4, p. 39, Tennyson says:—There are three repartees in Sh— which alway bring tears to my eyes from their simplicity. One is in 'King Lear,' when Lear says to Cordelia, 'So young and so untender,' and Cordelia lovingly answers, 'So young, my lord, and true.' And in the 'Winter's tale,' when Florizel takes Perdita's hand to lead her to the dance, and says, 'So turtles pair that never mean to part,' and the little Perdita answers, giving her hand to Florizel, 'I'll swear for 'em.' And in 'Cymbeline,' when Imogen in tender rebuke says to her husband, 'Why did you throw your wedded lady from you?...' and Posthumus does not ask forgiveness, but answers, kissing her, 'Hang there like fruit, my soul, till the tree die.'

,, Sh— Works, 1733

'In how many points of light must we be obliged to gaze at this great poet! In how many branches of excellence to consider and admire him! Whether we view him on the side of art or nature, he ought equally to engage our attention; whether we respect the force and greatness of his genius, the extent of his knowledge and reading, the power and address with which he throws out and applies either nature or learning, there is ample scope both for our wonder and pleasure. If his diction and the clothing of his thoughts attract us, how much more must we be charmed with the richness and variety of his images and ideas! If his images and ideas steal into our souls and strike upon our fancy, how much are they improved in price when we come to reflect with what propriety and justness they are applied to character. If we look into his characters and how they are furnished and proportioned to the employment he cuts out for them, how are we taken up with the mastery of his portraits. What draughts of nature! What variety of originals and how differing each from the other! Each of them the standard of fashion for themselves.'

Sh— restored, or a specimen of the many errors, as well committed as unamended, by Mr. Pope in his late edition of this poet. Designed . . . to restore the true reading of Sh— in all the editions ever yet published. Ln: R. Francklin . . . 1726. 4°, pp. vi.-viii.-194 BM | BPL | BUS | W

Consists of a critical examination of 'Hamlet.'
In the course of his notes Theobald calmly asserted that whoever edited Sh—, be he Pope or any other, he (Theobald) would at the end still be able to give five hundred emendations which would escape any other editor. Pope retaliated by creating Theobald hero of 'The dunciad,' while Hogarth has given us the only known portrait of him in his print, 'The distrest poet.'
Valuable for its text of 'Hamlet,' formed from that of the Jaggard canon and the second quarto. Theobald's foundation was adopted for the Cambridge edition of 1863-66, and is now the accepted text.

Sh— restored . . . Second edition . . . 1740. 4° BPL

Shakespearean note book [evidently used for the preparation of his edition of Sh—, c. 1730]. 8°. Manuscript on thirty leaves

Sold 8th Dec., 1905, for £26.
On the question of Sh—'s knowledge of the ancients, Theobald favoured the view that Sh—'s classical knowledge was considerable. He remarks:—'The result of the controversy must certainly, either way, terminate to our author's honour: how happily he could imitate them, if that point be allowed: or how gloriously he could think like them, without owing anything to imitation.'

The lines run:—
By yon hills with morning spread,
Lifting up the tufted head;
By those golden waves of corn
Which the laughing fields adorn;
By the fragrant breath of flowers
Stealing from the woodbine bowers;
By this thought-inspiring shade;
By the gleamings of the glade;
By the babblings of the brook,
Winding slow in many a crook;
By the rustling of the trees;
By the humming of the bees;
By the woodlark; by the thrush,
Wildly warbling from the bush;
By the fairy's shadowy tread,
O'er the cowslip's dewy head—
Father, monarch of the stage,
Glory of Eliza's age:
Sh—! deign to lend thy face
This romantic nook to grace,
Where untaught nature sports alone,
Since thou and nature are but one!

Says De Quincey (in his Works, vol. vi., p. 259) of Warburton:—'The natural vegetation of his intellect tended to that kind of fungus which is called "crochet," so much so that if he had a just and powerful thought (as sometimes in germ he had), or a wide and beautiful thought, yet by the mere perversity of his tortuous brain it was soon digested into a crochet.'

,, Sh— Works, 1747 et seq.

'Of all literary exercitations of speculative men, whether designed for use or entertainment, there are none of so much importance than those which let us into the knowledge of our nature. Others may exercise the reason or amuse the imagination; but these only can improve the heart and form the mind to wisdom. Now, in this science our Sh— is confessed to occupy the foremost place; whether we consider the amazing sagacity with which he investigates every hidden spring and wheel of human action, or his happy manner of communicating this knowledge in the just and living paintings which he has given us of all our passions, appetites, pursuits. These afford a lesson which can never be too often repeated or too constantly inculcated.'

The enthusiast, or the lover of nature . . . 1740
'What are the lays of artful Addison,
Coldly correct, to Sh—'s warblings wild?
Whom on the winding Avon's willow'd banks
Fair fancy found and bore the smiling babe
To a close cavern (still the shepherds show
The sacred place, whence with religious awe
They hear, returning from the field at eve,
Strange whisperings of sweet music through the air).
Here as with honey gathered from the rock
She fed the little prattler and with songs
Oft soothed his wondering ears with deep delight,
On her soft lap he sat and caught the sounds.'

Warton the younger (Thomas) Miscellaneous odes . . . 1777
Contains a 'Monody written near Stratford-upon-Avon':
'Avon, thy rural view, thy pastures wild,
The willows that o'erhang thy twilight edge,
Their boughs entangling with the embattled sedge,
Thy brink with watery foliage quaintly fringed,
Thy surface with reflected verdure tinged
Soothe me with many a pensive pleasure mild;
But while I muse that here the bard divine,
Whose sacred dust yon high arched aisles enclose,
Where the tall windows rise in stately rows
Here first at fancy's fairy-circled shrine
Of daisies pied his infant offering made,
Here playful yet in stripling years unripe
Framed of thy reeds a shrill and artless pipe;
Sudden thy beauties, Avon, all are fled,
As at the waving of some magic wand.'

Webster (John) Vittoria Corombona, or the white devil: A tragedy. Ln: 1612. Fcp. 4°
Pays a notable compliment in the preface to Sh—'s industry. 'For mine own part I have ever truly cherished my good opinion of other men's worthy labours, especially of that free and heightened style of Master Chapman, the laboured and understanding works of Master Jonson, the no less worthy composures of the both worthily excellent Master Beaumont and Master Fletcher, and lastly (without wrong last to be named) the righte happie and copious industrie of M. Shakespeare, M. Dekker, and M. Heywood—wishing what I may write may be read by their light.'

Quoted for the sake of the 'Address' by Francis Kirkman, wherein he says:—The pleasure I have taken in plays hath bin so extraordinary that it hath bin much to my cost; for I have been, as we term it, a gatherer of plays for some years, and have more . . . than any man in England, bookseller or other. I can at any time shew seven hundred in number, which is witbin a small matter all that were ever printed. Weever (John) Epigrammes in the oldest cut and newest fashion. Ln: . . . 1599.
Epigram 22 runs:—
AD GULIELMUM SH—.
Honey-tongued Sh—, when I saw thine issue
I swore Apollo got them, and none other;
Their rosy-tinted features clothed in tissue,
Some heaven-born goddess said to be their mother.
Rose-cheeked Adonis, with his amber tresses;
Fair, fire-hot Venus, charming him to love her;
Chaste Lucretia, virgin-like her dresses;
Proud, lust-strong Tarquin, seeking still to prove her;
Romeo, Richard; more whose names I know not,
Their sugared tongues, and power, attractive beauty,
Say they are saints, although that saints they show not,
For thousands vow to them subjective duty.
They burn in love, thy children, Sh—, het [? let] them
Go; woo thy muse, more nymphish brood beget them.

Weever's verse seems to be based on Meres' judgment (q.v.) of the previous year.
An edition of 1595 is spoken of, but no copy can be traced.

'But chief avoid the boisterous roaring sparks,
The sons of fire! you'll know them by their marks.
. . . . . .
Hear them on Sh—! there they foam, they rage,
Yet taste not half the beauties of his page,
Nor see that art, as well as nature, strove
To place him foremost in the Aonian grove;
For there, there only, where the sisters join,
His genius triumphs and the work's divine.
Or would ye sift more near these sons of fire,
'Tis Garrick and not Sh— they admire;
Without his breath inspiring every thought,
They ne'er perhaps had known what Sh— wrote.
Without his eager, his becoming zeal
To teach them, though they scarce know why, to feel
A crude unmeaning mass had Jonson been,
And a dead letter Sh—'s noblest scene.'

Remarks:—'The inward and outward characteristics of Sh— are his vast and rich variety of persons and themes, with his wondrous delineation of each and all, not only limitless funds of verbal and pictorial resource, but great excess . . . But to the deepest soul, it seems a shame to pick and choose from the riches Sh— has left us, to criticise his infinitely royal, multiform quality; to gauge, with optic glasses, the dazzle of his sun-like beams . . . he stands alone, and I do not wonder he so witches the world.'

Two of the commendatory verses read thus:—

'Though Collatine haue deerely bought
To high renowne a lasting life,
And found that most in vaine haue fought
To haue a faire and constant wife;
Yet Tarquyne pluckt his glistering grape,
And Sh— paints poore Lucreece rape.

Then Aui-Susan ioyne in one,
Let Lucres-Auis be thy name;
This English eagle sores alone,
And farre surmounts all others fame,
Where high or low, where great or small,
This Brytan bird out-flies them all.

At pp. 40-41 is the first extraneous and direct printed notice of Sh—, and the most convincing vision of his personality known throughout all literature. It is written in autobiographic form:—'H. W—, being sodenly affected with the contagion of a fantasticall fit at the first sight of A—, pyneth awhile in secret griefe. At length, not able any longer to indure the burning heate of so feruent a humour, bewrayeth the secresy of his disease vnto his familiar friend W. S—, who not long before tryed the curtesy of the like passion, and was now newly recouered of the like infection*; yet, finding his frend let bloud in the same vaine, he took pleasure for a tyme to see him bleed, and instead of stopping the issue, he inlargeth the wound with the sharp razor of a willing conceit, perswading him that he thought it a matter very easy to be compassed, and no doubt with payne, diligence, and some cost in tyme, to be obtained. Thus this miserable comforter comforting his frend with an impossibilitie, eyther for that he now would secretly laugh at his frend's folly, that had giuen occasion not long before vnto others to laugh at his owne, or because he would see whether another could play his part better then himselfe, and in vewing afar off the course of this louing comedy, he determined to see whether it would sort to a happier end for this new actor then it did for the old player. But at length this comedy was like to haue growen to a tragedy, by the weake and feeble estate that H. W. was brought vnto, by a desperate vewe of an impossibility of obtaining his purpose, till time and necessity, being his best phisitions, brought him a plaster, if not to heal yet in part to ease his maladye. In all which discourse is liuely represented the vnrewly rage of vnbrydeled fancy, hauing the raines to roue at liberty with the dyuers and sundry changes of affections and temptations which Will, set loose from reason, can deuise,' etc.

* These pleasant girds reveal personal friendship and intercourse with Sh—, and specially point to his sonnets and love-poems.

The initials 'H. W.' fit his friend and patron, Henry Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton.

The 'eagle' metaphor is also thought to refer to Sh—.

Dr. Grosart believed 'Henry Willobie' to be the pseudonym of the real author Dorrell, and that his christian name 'Hadrian' was likewise borrowed.

The book was reprinted in 1596, and again before 1605, but no exemplars are now known of those issues.

He speaks a language which thrills in our blood in spite of the separation of two hundred years. His thoughts, passions, feelings, strains of fancy, all are of this day as they were of his own, and his genius may be contemporary with the mind of every generation for a thousand years to come. He, above all poets, looked upon man and lived for mankind. His genius, universal in intellect, could find in no more bounded circumference its proper sphere . . . Whatever in nature or life was given to man was given in contemplation and poetry to him also, and over the undimmed mirror of his mind passed all the shadows of our mortal world. Look through his plays and tell what form of existence, what quality of spirit he is most skilful to delineate. Which of all the manifold beings he has drawn lives before our thoughts, our eyes in most unpictured reality? . . . It was Sh—, the most unlearned of all our writers, who first exhibited on the stage perfect models, perfect images of all human characters and all human events. We cannot conceive any skill that could from his great characters remove any defect or add to their perfect composition. Except in him, we look in vain for the entire fulness, the self-consistency, and self-completeness of perfect art.'

Reprinted seven times between 1553 and 1586.

Writers of similar experience will readily agree with the author when he says, 'If others neuer gette more by books than I haue doen, it wer better to be a carter than a scholer for worldlie profite.'

Wilson was imprisoned as a presumptuous and dangerous heretic by the Inquisitors of the holy see at Rome.

For evidence of Sh—'s use of this work, see Drake's 'Sh— and his times,' pp. 440 and 473.

Poems. Ln: Longman . . . 1807. 2 vols. Cr. 8° BM | BLO | CTC
In the 'Sonnets dedicated to liberty,' Wordsworth writes:— '. . . In our halls is hung

We must be free, or die, who speak the tongue
That Sh— spake; the faith and morals hold
Which Milton held. In everything we are sprung
Of earth's first blood, have titles manifold.'

'He (Goethe) does not seem to me to be a great poet in either of the classes of poets. At the head of the first class I would place Homer and Sh—, whose universal minds are able to reach every variety of thought and feeling without bringing their own individuality before the reader. They infuse, they breathe light into every object they approach, but you never find themselves. At the head of the second class, those whom you can trace individually in all they write, I would place Spenser and Milton. In all that Spenser writes you can trace the gentle, affectionate spirit of the man; in all that Milton writes you find the exalted, sustained being that he was . . .'

At p. 16 is a poem dedicated to the memory of W. S—, with punning allusions to his christian name. Being unknown to Sh—'s biographers, and strongly reminiscent of the famous 'Will' sonnets 135, 136, and 143, the lines are here given in full:—

'Verses written at the departure of his friend, W. S—, when hee went to dwell at London.

The absence of a friend
Is griefe unto the hart;
The presence of him worketh joy,
And putteth backe the smart.
So Will, my onely Will,
The absence now of thee
Doth make me waile in woful wise,
To thinke that it should bee.

But when thy friendly corpes
Shall present be to view,
Then shall I joy, as now I mourne
That absence makes me rue.
But, Will, I must content
My dolefull minde with this:
We subject are to fortune's lore,
As certain true it is.

Yet this I doe persuade,
That absence hath no force
A faithful friende to make unkinde,
That were without remorse.
I doe not thinke that Will
Will soe his friende forget;
But will remain in former will,
And be not over set.

By any light conceite,
Which doth procure unrest,
To bring disdaine, whereas delight
Should build within the brest.
No, no, I am disposed
To speake this by the way;
But trust me, Will, beleeve me now,
I doubt not as I say.

For I am firmly fixt,
Thy friendship will not faile,
Although that absence might procure
The same for to prevaile.
Well, for a vauntless vow,
Accept this at my hand:
As I have beene so will I bee,
Good Will to understand.'

'Sh— indeed, without one perfect plan, has perhaps excelled all other dramatic poets as to detached scenes. But he was a wonder! Essays in criticism: Second series [Wordsworth]. Ln: Macmillan, 1888. Cr. 8°

At pp. 129-131 remarks:—'Let me have the pleasure of quoting a sentence about Sh— which I met with by accident not long ago in "The Correspondant," a French review which not a dozen English people, I suppose, look at.' The writer is praising Sh—'s prose.

'With Sh—,' he says, 'prose comes in whenever the subject being more familiar is unsuited to the majestic English iambic.' And he goes on:—'Sh— is the king of poetic rhythm and style, as well as the king of the realm of thought. Along with his dazzling prose, Sh— has succeeded in giving us the most varied, the most harmonious verse which has ever sounded upon the human ear since the verse of the Greeks.' Henri Cochin, the writer of this sentence, deserves our gratitude for it; it would not be easy to praise Sh— in a single sentence more justly.

Poems. Ln: Longmans . . . 1853-55. 3 vols. Cr. 8° BM | BLO | CTC

Contains the beautiful sonnet headed 'Sh—':—

'Others abide our question. Thou art free,
We ask and ask—thou smilest and art still
Out-topping knowledge. For the loftiest hill,
Who to the stars uncrowns his majesty,
Planting his steadfast footsteps in the sea,
Making the heaven of heavens his dwelling-place,
Spares but the cloudy border of his base
To the foil'd searching of mortality.

And thou, who didst the stars and sunbeams know,
Self-school'd, self-scann'd, self-honour'd, self-secure,
Didst tread on earth unguessed at. Better so!
All pains the immortal spirit must endure,
All weakness which impairs, all griefs which bow,
Find their sole speech in that victorious brow!'

B—— (O.) Questions (p. 10, read) Questions of profitable and pleasant concernings talked of by two olde seniors, the one a retired gentleman, the other an upstart frankeling, under an oake in Kenelworth Parke, where they met by accident to defend the partching heate on a hoate day, in grasse or buckhunting time. Called by the reporter a display of vaine life. Together with a panacea or suppling plaister to cure if it were possible the principle diseases wherewith this present time is especially vexed. Ln: Printed by Richard Field dwelling in the Blackfriars by Ludgate, 1594. Fcp. 4°, sig. A to M² in fours

One of the few Warwickshire pieces of Sh—'s lifetime. The dramatist may have had a hand in its production. The scene is laid within walking distance of his birthplace. The printer was his friend and fellow townsman, who published his 'Venus and Adonis' in 1593 and 'Lucrece' in 1594. The phrase 'Upstart frankeling' reminds one that two years before Robert Greene termed the bard an 'Upstart crow.' Sh— uses the terms 'Upstart' and 'Franklin' several times in the plays.

Blind (Mathilde) Poetical works. Edited by Arthur Symons. With memoir by Richard Garnett. Ln: Unwin . . . 1900. Cr. 8°, pp. 478 BM | BLO | CTC

At p. 443 is the sonnet entitled 'Sh—':—

'Yearning to know herself for all she was,
Her passionate clash of warring good and ill,
Her new life ever ground in death's old mill
With every delicate detail, and en masse
Blind nature strove. Lo! then it came to pass
That time, to work out her unconscious will,
Once wrought the mind which she had groped to fill,
And she beheld herself as in a glass.

The world of men, unrolled before our sight,
Showed like a map where stream and waterfall
And village-cradling vale and cloud-capped height
Stand faithfully recorded, great and small,
For Sh— was, and at his touch with light
Impartial as the sun's, revealed the all.'

Edward Grubb, b. 1740, d. 1816, who lies in Trinity Churchyard at Stratford, was a self-taught amateur, who painted everyone of note in the town, from the 'parson and squire, down to the beadle.' Among others, he portrayed John Lord, the mayor, and his wife, and their portraits are to be seen at the Sh— Memorial.
When New Place was demolished by Gastrell in 1759, a bronze lock with iron key, and a bronze sundial therefrom, were secured by John Lord, who inscribed the information upon them. These articles, although they probably date back only to the re-erection of Sh—'s residence, about 1700, have considerable interest, and are to be seen (on loan) at the Sh— Memorial, Stratford.

Cowley (Abraham) Works . . . consisting of those which were formerly printed and those which he design'd for the press. Now published out of the author's original copies. Ln: Printed by J. M—— for Henry Herringman . . . 1668. F°. With portrait eng. by W. Faithorne
In the preface Cowley remarks:—'I began to reflect on the fortune of almost all writers, especially poets, whose works, commonly printed after their deaths, we find stuffed out, either with counterfeit pieces, like false money put in to fill up the bag, though it add nothing to the sum; or with such which though of their own coyn they would have called in themselves for the baseness of the alloy: whether this proceed from the indiscretion of their friends, who think a vast heap of stones or rubbish a better monument than a little tomb of marble, or by the unworthy avarice of some stationers who are content to diminish the value of the author so they may encrease the price of the book; and, like vintners with sophisticate mixtures, spoil the whole vessel of wine, to make it yield more profit. This hath been the case with Sh—, Fletcher, Johnson (Jonson), and many others; part of whose poems I should take the boldness to prune and lop away if the care of replanting them in print did belong to me; neither would I make any scruple to cut off from some the unnecessary young suckers and from others the old withered branches; for a great wit is no more tyed to live in a vast volume than in a gigantick body; on the contrary, it is commonly more vigorous the less space it animates.'

Middleborough is the capital of the Isle of Walcheren, a spot much used at that time for international commerce, especially in English cloth. It proved a convenient centre for printing books which might meet with censure from the Church authorities of England, but there is reason to suppose the name of Middleborough was sometimes affixed to books secretly produced in London.

Denmark.] The King of Denmarke's welcome, containing his ariuall, abode, and entertainment, both in the citie and other places. Ln: Edward Allde . . . 1606. Fcp. 4°
Describes the entertainments and shows given in honour of the king's visit, including the songs. At p. 16 is mentioned a play called 'Abuses . . .' containing both 'comedie and tragedie,' acted by the Children of Paul's.
According to Hazlitt, this piece was produced by Sh—'s fellow-actor, John Heminge. It is more than likely that Sh— assisted, as his company gave three representations before the King of Denmark.
In any case, Sh— and the King of Denmark must have possessed unusual interest for each other, for 'Hamlet' had passed through three editions in the trio of years preceding that king's visit to England.

Howard Earl of Surrey, and others (Henry) Songes and sonettes. [Cn.] Imprinted at Ln. in Flete-stret̃e within Temple barre at the signe of the hand and starre by Richard Tottell, anno 1567. 8° MRL
This publication, better known as 'Tottel's miscellany,' began a new epoch in English literature. It contains two hundred and seventy-one poems, never previously printed, by a number of authors, the chief of whom were Sir Thomas Wyatt (who died in 1542) and Henry Howard (by courtesy Earl of Surrey), executed in 1547. These two were easily the first poets of the period, and were indeed pioneers of a more brilliant school of verse than any since Chaucer's day. Howard first imitated Italian models, especially Petrarca, and, with Wyatt, first brought the sonnet into vogue in England.
The volume may be regarded as the silver-throated herald of the great dawn of Elizabethan poetry.
How long-lived and popular the venture proved is shown by Slender's reference in the 'Merry wives' (I., i.), 'I had rather than forty shillings I had my book of Songs and sonnets here.' Before 1587 eight editions were printed. Only four copies in all of the first three issues are now known.

Michael Drayton, Sh—'s friend, is said to have lived at Clifford Manor. His early home was Polesworth Hall, near Nuneaton, where he resided with Sir Henry Goodere and his two daughters, Anne and Frances. Anne Goodere married Sir Henry Raynesford, of Clifford Manor.
'John Sh—, husbandman, of Clifford Chamberer,' lies buried in the churchyard. His will, made 24 Dec., 1608, was proved 7th Feb., 1611. In it he mentions his 'cosen (nephew) John Sh— and his brothers Thomas and Anthonie Sh—.' He bequeathed an ancient wooden bier to Clifford Church, which is still preserved and bears a brass plate indicating the donor and date.

Rossetti (Dante Gabriel) Collected works, edited by W. M. Rossetti. Ln: Ellis . . . 1886. 2 vols. Cr. 8° BM

On p. 285, Vol. i., occurs the scathing sonnet on the miserable Gastrell, headed 'On the site of a mulberry tree, planted by Wm. Sh—; felled by the Rev. F. Gastrell' :—

'This tree, here fall'n, no common birth or death
Shared with its kind. The world's enfranchised son
Who found the trees of life and knowledge one,
Here set it, frailer than his laurel wreath,
Shall not the wretch whose hand it fell beneath
Rank also singly—the supreme unhung?
Lo! Sheppard, Turpin, pleading with black tongue
This viler thief's unsuffocated breath;
We'll search thy glossary, Sh—! whence almost
And whence alone, some name shall be reveal'd,
For this deaf drudge, to whom no length of years
Sufficed to catch the music of the spheres,
Whose soul is carrion now—too mean to yield
Some Starveling's ninth allotment of a ghost.'

'It does not matter how little, or how much, any of us have read either of Homer or Sh—; everything round us, in substance or in thought, has been moulded by them. All Greek gentlemen were educated under Homer; all Roman gentlemen by Greek literature; all Italian, and French, and English gentlemen by Roman literature and by its principles. Of the scope of Sh—, I will say only that the intellectual measure of every man since born, in the domain of creative thought, may be assigned to him, according to the degree in which he has been taught by Sh—.'

Phaethon to his friend Florio (p. 433, add)—
This sonnet Florio stated was 'written by a gentleman, a friend that loved better to be a poet than to be counted so.' It runs:—
'Sweete friend, whose name agrees with thy increase,
How fit a rivall art thou of the spring;

For when each branche hath left his flourishing,
And green-lockt sommers shadie pleasures cease,
She makes the winter's stormes repose in peace,
And spends her franchise on each living thing;
The daizies sprout, the little birds do sing,
Hearbes, gummes, and plants doo vaunt of their release.
So when that all our English wits lay dead
(Except the laurell that is evergreene),
Thou with thy "frutes" our barrenness o'respread,
And set thy flowrie pleasance to be seene:
Sutch frutes, sutch flowrets of moralitie
Were nere before brought out of Italie.'

ANNOUNCEMENTS of the SHAKESPEARE PRESS

Jaggard 1567?-1623 (Wm.) A catalogve of such English bookes as lately haue bene, and now are, in printing for publication . . . 1618. With notes by Wm. Jaggard, bibliographer. Fcp. 4°. Limited issue on specially woven and watermarked paper. Price 10s. 6d. net. [Ready shortly.]

The earliest English bibliography—a document of great literary interest, prepared in facsimile from the unique original.

Jaggard Bibliographer (Wm.) Dunbar pedigree: A biographical chart tracing descent of the Dunbar family through fourteen successive centuries, from the early English and Scottish kings. With early coat-of-arms and views of Dunbar Castle. 4°, printed on linen, limited issue. Price 10s. 6d. net.

Jaggard press: A bibliography, with some account of Shakespeare's authorised printers and publishers, compiled from family documents and printed sources. [In preparation.]

Liverpool literature: A descriptive bibliography of old deeds, codices, maps, and printed literature. 8°, restricted to 100 numbered copies on special old style paper. Price 2s. 6d. net.

Printing; its birth and growth. With illuminated facsimile of the Gutenberg Bible, and a portrait of Wm. Caxton, England's first printer. Royal 8°. Issue confined to 250 copies. Price 1s. 6d. net.

Shakespeare's first play: Some gleanings and conjectures upon 'Love's labours lost.' An address delivered before the Shakespeare Club of Stratford-upon-Avon. 8°. Only 250 copies printed. Price 6d. net.

Shakespeare's publishers: Notes on the Tudor-Stuart period of the Jaggard press. 8°. Only 250 copies printed. Price 6d. net.

Shakespearean frauds: The story of some famous literary and pictorial forgeries. Illustrated. 8°. Only 250 copies printed. Price 1s. net.

Lucy (Margaret) & Jaggard (Wm.) Shakespeare and the supernatural: A brief study of folk-lore, superstition, and witchcraft in 'Macbeth,' 'Midsummer night's dream,' and 'The tempest.' With a bibliography of the subject. 8°, wrappers, price 6d. net; or in art linen, price 1s. net.

Ditto. Large paper copy upon Japanese vellum. Roy. 8°. Only 25 copies so done. Price 10s. 6d.

'An important contribution to Shakespeare criticism . . . with an admirable bibliography at the end.'—Glasgow Herald.

'In the sixteenth century Sir Thomas Lucy, according to tradition, made things very unpleasant for the future world-dramatist because of a trifling matter of misappropriated venison, and the inspired poacher forthwith retaliated with a shaft of wit which, though not very keen, rankled satisfactorily. In the twentieth century another Lucy of Stratford generously shows that the family feud is at an end by burying the hatchet, not in Shakespeare, but by writing in his praise. . . . "Shakespeare and the supernatural" is written pleasantly and with understanding. The appended bibliography is carefully compiled, as might be expected from one of the house of Jaggard, which all but commenced the bibliography of Shakespeare by publishing his "Passionate pilgrim" in the year of grace 1599.'—Liverpool Courier.

'The writers are to be congratulated on a book which will take a worthy place beside bigger books and more renowned on many a Shakespeare shelf.'—Liverpool Post and Mercury.

'Certainly no student can afford to ignore this suggestive and valuable material.'—Oxford Chronicle.

'The writer is able to present contemporary legends, showing that belief in witchcraft and fairies was general. The admirable bibliography given is indeed valuable.'—Western Daily Press.

'A welcome addition to our Shakespeare library, and it will be appreciated by those who want the cream of the subject without arduous research. Combined is an interesting and useful bibliography.'—Worcester Herald.

Nicholson LL.D. (James Aldwell) No cipher in Shakespeare; being a refutation of Ignatius Donnelly's 'Great cryptogram.' Second edition. With brief memoir and portrait of the author. 8°, old English linen. Price 1s. 6d. net.
